All in Their Seats at Special Session—Ouster Resolution Goes Over.

SPEAKER SWEET EXPLAINS

Recalls Basis of Previous Expulsion and Points to Changes in the Party's Rules.

PROTESTS BY MINORITY

Demand for a Discussion of the Resolution Which May Be Granted Today.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 20.—Action was deferred in the Assembly tonight on the question of whether the five Socialist Assemblymen expelled at the last regular session of the Legislature, but reelected last week for the extraordinary session which opened here tonight, should be expelled again or permitted to remain in the seats which they occupied.

There were developments clearly indicating that the Republican majority which controls both branches of the Legislature, and took the lead in the expulsion of the Socialists a few months ago, is unwilling to assume responsibility for similar action at the extraordinai session.

Speaker Sweet of the Assembly, who took the initiative in having the Socialists arraigned at the bar of the House on the first day of the last regular session, made a speech at the session tonight which was pronounced by members of the Democratic minority as "a crawl."

Pressure brought to bear by the national party leaders and by the Republicans nominee for Governor, ex-Judge Nathan L. Miller of the Court of Appeals, is said to be responsible for the change of front by the Republicans.

A resolution, prepared by Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, Democrat, of New York, calling for the expulsion of the re-elected Socialists was introduced, not by Cuvillier himself, but by Colonel Ransom H. Gillett of Columbia County, Republican and World War veteran. The resolution was referred without debate to the Judiciary Committee after some Democratic members had sought in vain an opportunity to discuss it and others had sought to force a lineup on the motion to refer the resolution to a committee.

The five Socialists, Louis Waldman of the Eighth Manhattan District; August Claessens of the Seventeenth Manhattan, Samuel Orr and Samuel A. DeWitt of the Third and Fourth Bronx Districts and Charles Solomon of the Twenty-third, Brooklyn, all occupied their seats in the Assembly Chamber and were not interfered with.

One of their number, Waldman, in fact managed to edge in a few words in the debate. Prior to appearing in the legislative precincts of the Capitol, all had taken the oath of office before Secretary of State Hugo.

In his speech, which was made at the end of the session, Speaker Sweet emphasized the repudiation by Socialist, national and State Conventions this year of clauses in their party constitutions on the strength of which they had been disqualified as members of an organization disloyal to the United States and to the State of New York. In closing the Speaker more than intimated that in his opinion their acts of recantation were only so much lip service.

It was not until after the Assembly had been in session for nearly two hours and a series of messages from Governor Smith on the housing and other problems had been read that Colonel Gillett offered his resolution and the Socialist members became the topic of discussion. The resolution recalled the election of the five Socialists last year, their expulsion at the regular session and their re-election last Thursday, and continued:

Ouster Resolution Offered.

Whereas, Article III., Section 2, of the Constitution of the State of New York, provides: "The Assembly shall consist of 150 members, which shall be chosen for one year," and

Whereas, Article III., Section 10, of the Constitution provides "each House shall determine the rules of its own proceedings and be judge of the election returns and qualification of its own members," and

Whereas, Louis Waldman, August Claessens, Samuel A. DeWitt, Samuel Orr and Charles Solomon, by reason of their disloyalty to the United States of America and the State of New York, and their violation of their oath of office, their election to the Assembly on the 16th day of September, 1920, is null and void, and they are, and each of them is, ineligible to seats in the Assembly of the State of New York.

Resolved, That Louis Waldman, August Claessens, Samuel A. DeWitt, Samuel Orr and Charles Solomon be and they are, and each of them is, excluded from the extraordinary session of the Legislature called in obedience to the proclamation of the Governor to be convened in the City of Albany, State of New York, on the 20th day of September, 1920; and be it further

Resolved, That the office of Assemblyman in the Eighth and Seventeenth Districts, Borough of Manhattan; the Third and Fourth Districts, Borough of the Bronx, and the

Interchurch World Movement Is Solvent, Bishop Announces

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—The Inter-Church World Movement has been reorganized and is solvent, Bishop Thomas Nicholson of Chicago, Chairman of the Committee of Fifteen, appointed to effect the reorganization, announced today.

More than $1,000,000 has been paid into the organization by the denominations which undertook to underwrite the original $100,000,000 campaign, Bishop Nicholson said, and the pledges due will provide sufficient funds to pay all the debts of the old organization and furnish the budget of the new until Jan. 1.

Conferences will open in New York within t o or three weeks, looking to a new organization on a permanent basis, he said, with all the international bodies of the Protestant Church participating.

LEGISLATURE GETS HOUSING BILLS

Remedial Measures Introduced and Governor Smith Urges Action.

CONGRESS ASKED TO AID

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 20.—Eight major bills designed to remedy housing evils were introduced in the special session of the Legislature tonight in pursuance of recommendations by Governor Smith and the special legislative Housing Committee, headed by Senator Charles S. Lockwood of Brooklyn.

The recommendations contained in the measures introduced follow:

Exempting interest on mortgages from the State income tax law.

Memorializing Congress to grant the same exemptions under the Federal income tax law.

Giving local authorities the right to exempt from taxation for local purposes for a period ending Jan. 30, 1932, all new buildings erected exclusively for housing, provided construction is completed before Oct. 1, 1921, and the premises are ready for occupancy before April 1, 1923.

Creation of local housing boards to be appointed by Mayors of cities to act as an advisory board in meeting immediate pressing needs for more homes.

Making bonds of the State Land Bank a legal investment for State and local sinking funds.

Asking Congress to enact necessary legislation to grant to the transportation of building material a priority subsequent only to that of food and coal and to place an embargo on shipment of building materials to foreign countries.

Requesting Congress to provide for the immediate investigation of the charges that certain manufacturers and producers of building material have entered into unlawful combinations and are engaged in methods of business calculated to maintain the prevailing prohibitive cost of such materials.

Other Bills Recommended.

The committee recommended consideration for bills as follows:

To protect tenants who have received notice to move on Oct. 1.

To prevent short and permit longer stays in hold-over proceedings.

To eliminate the 25 per cent. increase clause so as to force landlords to give a bill of particulars to court and tenant as to his income, maintenance and cost of operation.

To amend the tenement house laws to allow variations from the letter but not the spirit so that construction and reconstruction may be promoted without increasing the fire hazard or lessening sanitary provisions.

To amend the New York City charter to allow Superintendents of Buildings to refuse a permit as to future acquired property to demolish a building used for dwelling purposes, if in the Superintendent's opinion it is in the public interest to continue such building for dwelling purposes, and allowing an appeal to a board of appeals.

To amend the resolution creating the Legislative Housing Committee so as to enlarge its scope and powers.

The Governor in his message declared that the rent laws passed by the regular session last Spring had proved inadequate, and he suggested that they be made more drastic. In this the committee does not agree with the Governor, judging by its report and the failure to introduce bills to carry out the Executive's views.

The committee's report agrees with the contention of the Governor that summary proceedings privileges, given exclusively to landlords, must be either modified or withdrawn altogether before Oct. 1.

Governor's Chief Remedies.

The Governor's chief recommendations, contained in his message, for solving the housing problem not only in New York City but in other cities of the State as well, were:

Stimulate building construction by eliminating combinations to increase the prices of building materials.

Empower the use of State sinking funds for the purchase of State Land Bank bonds and give to municipalities the right to invest in such bonds.

Allow the State Controller to dispose of State property acquired by escheat or

KILLING BY NEGRO IN CHICAGO RUMPUS STARTS RACE RIOT

Mob Besieges Edifice, but Are Held Off by Police with Riot Guns.

CHIEF SAVES THE FUGITIVES

Other Negroes Pursued and Beaten —Fights Begin in Black Belt— All Police Mobilized.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—A renewal of the race riots of last year was threatened tonight, when one of three negroes cut the throat of Thomas E. Barrett, white, of 1,109 East Garfield Boulevard and killed him, at Forty-seventh and Halsted Streets.

The negro used a razor and inflicted such a deep gash that Barrett's head was almost cut off. Barrett was a street car motorman, but he was not in uniform. One report says the negroes attempted to rob him and that he resisted. Another story is that he threatened the negroes and knocked one down.

The negroes ran. Crowds of white men followed them. The colored trio took refuge in St. Gabriel's Roman Catholic Church, at Forty-fifth and Wallace Streets. The church was surrounded by angry men carrying bricks, cudgels and other weapons. They got around the church just before the arrival of Sergeant John Cartan of the detective force and a squad of patrolmen. The policemen overawed the crowd with their revolvers until a squad came armed with riot guns.

The crowd grew both in numbers and in hostility. "Lynch 'em," they cried. "String 'em up. Shoot 'em. Kill 'em." Acting Lieutenant Bullard of the Stock Yards Station telephoned Chief of Police Garrity, who at once mobilized the reserves in eight police stations and arranged for sixty men to be sent to the district in patrol wagons. Meanwhile two negroes chased by whites were rescued by whites and taken to the Stock Yards Station. The patrol wagon that took them out of the hands of the mob was stoned all the way to the station, the crowd jeering the police.

Police Guns Prevent Rush.

The siege of the church was continued for more than an hour. Several attempts were made to rush the police, but the mob hesitated when the guns were leveled at their faces. The negroes, terror stricken, kneeled before the altar and prayed, their voices, high pitched as they were, being drowned in the clamor of the surging mob.

While Captain Hogan was calling for 100 more policemen, and while the mob continued to howl "Lynch 'em" and "Let's show Bill Thompson what we think of his friends," the police in the church became uneasy. Finally they jerked the colored men to their feet, led them to a side door of the church and rushed them into the parochial residence. Father Thomas M. Burke, pastor of the parish, received the frightened fugitives and promised them shelter. The crowd had not seen the transfer of the prisoners.

Chief of Police Garrity and the men of the Homicide Squad arrived at the church shortly after 3 o'clock. One negro had been found hiding in a confessional, the chief was told. The others had taken temporary refuge in the sanctuary, covering themselves with piles of cassocks and surplices. They were glad to see the police and made no attempt at resistance.

Garrity and his men took the three prisoners away in an automobile, unknown to the mob, which for several hours clamored at the church doors for their surrender. At 9 o'clock the three negroes had been locked up in the Hdye Park Police Station and the mob around the church had dispersed, chasing colored people whenever encountered.

Three negroes were pulled off a street car at Forty-seventh Street and Union Avenue by white men and severely beaten. The mob stopped the car by pulling the trolley pole off the wire.

As the rioting continued throughout the south side "Black Belt," Chief Garrity ordered the entire police force mobilized. Every policeman was instructed to report at once to his station to await further orders.

Two hundred policemen are concentrated at the South Wabash and Deering Street Police stations in the vicinity of which trouble is expected.

Many Negroes Are Injured.

Frank Gavin, a white man, suffered a severe wound in the back during a riot between blacks and whites late tonight at Fifty-third Street and Racine Avenue. The police failed to arrest his assailants. Gavin was taken to the German Deaconess Hospital. Frank Stephens, colored, suffered scalp wounds and bruises when attacked by a mob of whites at Thirty-ninth Street and Emerald Avenue.

Shortly before midnight a mob attacked four negroes on a Thirty-ninth Street car at Union Avenue. They were badly beaten but escaped from their pursuers, who were dispersed when a patrol wagon arrived on the scene. The car windows were broken and the car badly damaged in the riot.

The same patrol wagon reached Thirty-fifth and Halsted Streets in time to rescue four more negroes from a crowd which had dragged them from a street car.

At Thirty-ninth and Auburn Avenue a trolley car was badly damaged and two negroes were beaten before the police arrived. They were taken away in a patrol wagon. The patrol wagon had proceeded but a short distance when another negro was found lying in a semi-conscious condition. All were taken to the Provident Hospital.

Joe Green, colored, was found hiding under a street car after a crowd of white men had attempted to remove him from the vehicle. The police took him and his wife Josie, to the police station for protection.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The consumption of wines and liquors in the United States in 1919 was less per capita than during any year since 1870, according to estimates announced today by the Department of Commerce. In 1870 the quantity was 7.70 gallons per capita, rising to 22.79 gallons in both 1907 and 1911 and falling to 9.17 gallons last year.

The total consumption of wines and liquors in 1919 was 992,394,720 gallons, compared with 1,701,827,271 gallons or 15.05 gallons per capita in 1918.

$500,000 VANISHES; INDICT BROKERS' AIDS

Ex-Cashier and Ex-Clerk of J. R. Duff & Co. Held in $7,000 and $1,000 Thefts.

FORGERY ALSO IS CHARGED

More Arrests Near, Says Man Who Made Quick Fortune in "War Babies."

Vincent Amorosa of Woodcliffe-on-Hudson, ex-cashier of the former Stock Exchange firm of J. Robinson Duff & Co., 61 Broadway, and Wesley Doran, 1,064 East Thirty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, who was a clerk in the firm's employ, were arrested yesterday on bench warrants issued by Judge William H. Wadhams of General Sessions and locked up in the Tombs on a indictment for grand larceny and forgery.

Back of these arrests is a story of a plot whereby the firm, it was charged by Mr. Duff, was robbed of approximately half a million dollars in about a year. Mr. Duff has had a spectacular career in the Street. He began by investing a few hundred dollars in Electric Boat. His subsequent speculations in "War Babies" brought him more than $1,000,000.

While he was making money, he charged last night, he was being robbed. Becoming suspicious he put accountants on his books and the result was the arrest of his former employes. He believes there will be more arrests.

Amorosa was arrested in the office of H. L. Eisenberg & Co., 32 Broadway, and Doran was taken into custody by Detective Cunniff in the offices of H. N. Whitney & Co., 15 Broad Street. The indictment alleged that Amorosa obtained $7,000 and Doran $1,000. The names of Alexander Greaner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street and Florence Manuel of Broadway and Fifty-eighth Street, customers of the firm, were forged, according to the indictment. It is alleged the prisoners made fraudulent entries in the books after cashing a draft in a customer's name.

Assistant District Attorney Albert B. Unger will ask that Amorosa's bail be fixed at $10,000 and that Doran be held in $5,000. The prisoners will be arraigned before Judge Wadhams today.

J. Robinson Duff formed the firm in 1915, and later he took in as partner F. A. Travis. Mr. Travis afterward withdrew. Following his successful speculations, and when the United States entered the war, Mr. Duff obtained a commission in the Motor Transport Corps, and until the armistice was signed he was stationed with his command in Texas. He said he believed peculations began while he was in the service of his country. The suspicion that something was wrong with the company's accounts grew until February, when the books were examined. At the outset accountants found a shortage of $7,000, he said. This was quickly traced to an employe, and Mr. Duff said last night that the man made good the amount at once.

"Following this discovery," he said, "we began to turn up others, until there were represented in my office, I believe, every sort of theft from fictitious accounts, cross sales and forgery down to just plain ordinary stealing. What made the work of discovery so difficult was that many of the office records had been stolen. Contracts were gone, records of transactions missing and even names and addresses of customers stolen.

"It is hard to conceive that these things could happen, but you see I took little interest in the books. I left that to others whom I trusted, while I devoted my time to the making of money. I am determined to see this thing through. It is a sort of thing that is going on all the time. A firm loses money, but through fear of what its customers might think if the thefts were known, it simply takes the loss, and those who have been guilty go out and get other jobs in the same neighborhood. It will not be so in this case."

It was the desire to straighten up the affairs of his company, Mr. Duff said, that led him to give up his suite of offices and to sell his seat on the Stock Exchange. He has, he said, already settled some of the outstanding accounts of his company.

"The newspapers have said that I was going out of business," he said. "This is not so. I intend to deal on the curb in unlisted securities."

HARDING 4 TO 1 IN STREET.

Wager of $16,000 to $4,000 Placed —Cox Money Reported Scarce.

Senator Harding became a 4 to 1 favorite in Wall Street betting odds on the Presidential election yesterday. W. L. Darnell & Co. announced that they had placed a wager of $16,000 to $4,000 that Harding would be elected. This is one of the largest individual bets that the campaign has brought forth thus far.

It is stated that there is a big volume of Harding money in sight but that there is little Cox money. The supporters of the Democratic nominee are asking 6 to 1.

BOMB VICTIM DESCRIBES THREE MEN HE SAW FLEEING BEFORE EXPLOSION; FISCHER INSANE, SENT TO BELLEVUE

ASYLUM FOR BOMB PROPHET

PREDICTS WAR IN 3 MONTHS

Action to Commit Him to Insane Hospital Probably Will Be Taken Today.

Hope on the part of the authorities in getting a clue to the perpetrators of last Thursday's Wall Street bomb outrage from Edwin P. Fischer, who sent warnings of the disaster to friends and relatives, ended yesterday after Fischer's arrival here from Hamilton, Ont., where he was detained after the explosion.

After a long and fruitless examination by District Attorney Swann and Assistant District Attorney Alfred J. Talley, Fischer was taken without formal commitment to the psychopathic ward of Bellevue Hospital.

A motion to have Fischer declared mentally irresponsible will be made by the District Attorney in some court, probably today, and he undoubtedly will be committed to a private sanitarium which his relatives will be permitted to select.

Fischer repeated his assertion that he obtained the information upon which he based his warnings "out of the air." He predicted war between England and France within three months and said it would be caused by an attempt of England to saddle upon France all of the allied indebtedness to the United States.

Talks in Rambling Manner.

Although speaking with perfect clarity of thought at times, Fischer talked irresponsibly and in a rambling manner during most of his examination by Mr. Talley. The latter decided that Fischer's warnings were based upon no definite information and could best be explained on the theory of coincidence.

There were a series of coincidences in the Fischer case which make the authorities reluctant to eliminate him entirely, although they are satisfied in their own minds that Fischer had no real knowledge or information of a real plot. In addition to his prophesying the disaster with approximate accuracy, there was his remark at Hamilton, when the card of Mrs. Jokichi Takamine, Jr., was found in his pocket, that she was "the wife of one of the biggest explosives manufacturers in the country and would come to his assistance." Inquiry showed that the Takamine Laboratories manufactures chemicals for dyes and drugs but not explosives.

It was brought out in the examination by Mr. Talley that a letter from Mr. Takamine enclosing a J. P. Morgan & Co. circular of the Anglo-French loan was found in Fischer's pocket. Mr. Takamine, who was questioned by Mr. Talley, explained that he had received the circular in the ordinary course of business and, knowing Fischer's anti-English sentiments, had sent it to him as a joke.

Arrives in Three Suits.

It was further brought out by Mr. Talley that Robert A. Pope, Fischer's brother-in-law, is a member of the Executive and Financial Committees of the Committee of Forty-eight, which is a radical, although not in any way an anarchistic, organization. Fischer himself admitted to the detectives who accompanied him from Hamilton that he was a radical, and said the detectives would be, too, if they knew enough.

Fischer, who arrived at 9:38 at the Grand Central Terminal in charge of Detectives McCoy and O'Hara, seemed in good spirits and smiled at the persons who crowded around him, eager to get a sight of one who had attained so much publicity. He wore an unpressed gray suit, unpolished shoes and a cap. He bore himself jauntily and walked rapidly with the detectives through the Terminal.

It developed later that the visible gray suit was only one of three worn by Fischer. Under that was another business suit, and underneath that, in place of the usual undergarments, was a tennis shirt and flannel trousers. Fischer formerly metropolitan tennis champion, and still an excellent tennis player, explained that this arrangement had several advantages.

First, he said, the more clothes one wore the greater the protection from the heat in the Summertime; second, he was ready for a tennis match at all times, as all he had to do to appear in tennis costume was to shed his two outer suits, and, third, when he wanted a change of outer raiment all that was necessary was to shift the order of the two woolen suits.

Cigars Thrown to Fischer.

One incident of Fischer's walk through the Grand Central Terminal attracted attention and was the first indication that he did not have normal mental control. Three cigars were thrown in his path near the Lexington Avenue exit. He stooped and picked them up, saying,

Armed Guards Increased on Rockefeller Estate; Threatening Letter Reported Sent to John D.

A dozen extra guards, bringing the total number to forty, have been placed on duty in and about John D. Rockefeller's Pocantico Hills estate since the Wall Street explosion. A Tarrytown newspaper published a report that this added precaution was taken because Mr. Rockefeller, who now is on the estate, had received a threatening letter, but no confirmation of this could be got.

The guards are patrolling the County Hose Road, the Bedford Road and both inside and outside the stone walls on either side of a mile and one-half of the tracks of the Putnam division of the New York Central Railroad, which run through the estate.

Automobilists have seen the men on the roads outside the estate as late as 10:30 o'clock at night. Contrary to the usual custom, the guards in the daytime are armed with repeating rifles. Access to the grounds is unusually difficult, and any one who does gain entrance can progress but a few feet beyond a gateway before he finds himself accosted by two of the armed men.

Mr. Rockefeller has just returned from an automobile tour with his brother William and a number of attendants. The party went, according to annual custom, to Richford, N. Y., where the two Rockefellers were born.

Whether precautions similar to those taken on the estate have been adopted at the Standard Oil Building, 26 Broadway, and at the Standard plants throughout the country could not be learned.

THINKS BOMB HELD 100 POUNDS OF TNT

Chemical Engineer Says Wall Street Death Device Was Made by Experts.

CONTAINED A LARGE PIPE

John C. Hebden Would Bar All Suspicious Aliens from Our Explosive Laboratories.

The destructive Wall Street bomb was composed of at least 100 pounds and perhaps 200 pounds of picric acid and TNT and was fashined by an expert in explosives, who probably had experience in the making of war bombs, in the opinion of John C. Hebden of 51 Malden Lane, a chemical engineer and explosives expert.

Mr. Hebden supervised the manufacture of 350,000 pounds of high explosives for the Ordnance Department during the war and also made several scientific investigations in Paris and other cities during the war after devastating TNT bombs had been dropped from airplanes. Chemists at the Chemical Exposition in Grand Central Palace who were discussing the ingredients of the Wall Street bomb yesterday referred to Mr. Hebden as one of the country's foremost experts on explosives.

"I have heard that some experts have said that the bomb was composed of about thirty pounds of TNT and picric acid," said Mr. Hebden, "but I disagree with that opinion. Such a small amount of those explosives would not have caused such great destruction in the open air. Another point in my hypothesis is that plotters would not have used a wagon or conveyance for the placing of such a small bomb. They could have placed it better by carrying it in some small hand receptacle. The wagon was used because the bomb was too large and heavy for any man to carry.

Thinks Experts Fashioned Bomb.

"After seeing the devastation wrought in Paris and other cities bombed by the Germans with charges of from 300 to 500 pounds of TNT and picric acid, I have concluded that the Wall Street bomb had at least 100 pounds of TNT and picric acid, and it is more likely that the charge was close to 200 pounds and perhaps more. There is every indication that experts fashioned the bomb, and I think they packed the explosives so tightly that the amount was unusually large for the volume and size of the container.

"I think these heavy charges were packed into a pipe, perhaps a gas pipe, which had been placed in the bottom of this wagon in conformance with shrewd and diabolical cunning. This pipe, with both ends open, or perhaps sealed with flimsy metal covers, was so placed in the wagon that the explosion would hurl its charge both north and south, no matter which way the horse and wagon was headed. It was apparently the intent of the plotters to hurl destruction both upon the Morgan building and the Sub-Treasury or Assay Office.

"Apparently the seam of the pipe was so placed, too, that the charge would sweep at a high angle in one direction and a low angle, near the ground, in the opposite direction. I am informed that the missiles, which were packed tightly around the pipe, swept east in Wall Street at low altitude, probably indicating an intention of the plotters to cause death and destruction in that direction, in which are many banks and financial offices.

Missiles Aimed at Stock Exchange.

"The fact that the statue of Washington was untouched shows that the missiles were hurled at high angle to the west, indicating to me that these diabolical and experienced plotters calculated wrecking the Stock Exchange and the Equitable Trust Company building, which were nearer at hand than the banks and other buildings in east Wall Street, which they had made targets from their firing base in the dead centre of the world's financial district.

CRAZED BY DISASTER CLERK DIES IN LEAP

Employe of National City Bank Jumps Ten Stories to Death Before Thousands.

BODY NEARLY HITS CROWD

Victim Had Been Maddened by Horror at Agony of Explosion Victims.

The horror that gripped him when he saw the bomb's work in Wall Street minutes after the explosion, a monomania that was hourly intensified and made more vivid by shattered nerves, yesterday sent a Wall Street bank clerk plunging ten stories to death before thousands.

Frederick Marvin Carpenter, a credit clerk, had been employed by the National City Bank, Exchange Place and Hanover Street, eight years last July, when his nerves failed him. Although broken in health, Carpenter, who had a young wife and a five-year-old son dependent upon him at his home, 87 Crooke Avenue, Brooklyn, refused to quit work for a rest.

Finally the bank officials prevailed upon him to go to Otisville, N. Y., to recuperate. Last Wednesday Carpenter came back to work, apparently normal again. The next day, the day of the explosion, he was crossing the bank threshold on his way to luncheon when the crash came. Although he was knocked down by the blast and his nerves shattered, Carpenter picked himself up and ran down to the fringe of the smoke and dust cloud hanging over the spot where the infernal machine had exploded. Through the dust and the smoke Carpenter saw the dead, the blood—and then he received a second shock from horror. He collapsed in the street.

The police found cards in his pocket indicating his place of employment and he was carried back to the bank, treated and sent home in a taxicab. Last night his wife and his father-in-law, Joseph A. Bokee, with whom he lived, said Carpenter raved from Thursday until Sunday of the things he had seen. Seemingly he lived again and again that moment of horror when he had looked through the smoke and saw violent death.

Sunday night, however, his mind calmed and he appeared completely recovered. His physician offered no opposition to his returning to work yesterday, and so he appeared at his desk. The strain of the day, a strain because of his recent ordeal, began to show, however, and at 3 o'clock associates prevailed upon him to go home.

Instead, Carpenter went to the roof of the bank. Hurrying through Exchange Place were the usual thousands; the close of trading for the day on the Stock Exchange and the day's end for brokers and bankers had jammed the narrow thoroughfare with persons.

Suddenly someone raised a cry—someone had seen a man's form hurtling to the pavement—but before the crowd knew the meaning, Carpenter's body had struck the sidewalk. By the narrowest margin his body missed a group clustered at the corner to allow an automobile to pass.

Horror drew a great crowd and great excitement reigned. Finally it was necessary to call out the police reserves from Old Slip Station to disperse the curious.

WAS A BOMB, SAYS PALMER.

Attorney General Upholds View of His Assistants.

Special to The New York Times.

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Sept. 20.—"I am convinced that a bomb placed by criminals was the cause of the fatalities in Wall Street, New York, last week." Thus Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer today placed the stamp of the Department of Justice once more upon the theory that the explosion was not an accident.

"My assistants are capable and Mr. Flynn is, I believe, well able to handle the situation," added Mr. Palmer. "My observations while in New York have firmly convinced me that a bomb was placed by criminals."

2 MORE DEATHS REPORTED

Warning That Custom House Is Threatened Is Received by William H. Edwards.

A description of three men whom he said he saw fleeing the scene of the Wall Street explosion just before it occurred was furnished yesterday by Samuel B. Wellington of 66 West Eighty-fourth Street, President of the West Indies Trading Company, 39 Cortlandt Street.

Mr. Wellington, who is 75 years old, was knocked unconscious and slightly injured by the force of the detonation.

He told his story yesterday to newspaper men and will be asked today to repeat it to the police, while A. J. Talley, Assistant District Attorney, will take the first opportunity to examine him before the Grand Jury. His story did not become public before, he explained, because his injury, while slight, had kept him at home.

Mr. Wellington said he came from the building at 37 Wall Street, where he had been to consult a lawyer, and glanced at the clock on Trinity Church at the head of the street, observing that it was 11:58 A. M. At the same time he was startled by a voice calling:

"Hurry up! Beat it! Get out of this!"

Across the street he noticed two men, about middle aged and suggestive in appearance of east side peddlers, who were beckoning and calling warnings to a third man who stood on the north side of the street directly in front of the new Assay Office.

Stares at Ramshackle Wagon.

The man stood staring. Mr. Wellington said, at a ramshackle wagon which had a top but open sides and which stood directly in front of the new Assay Office door. Attached to the wagon was a broken down roan horse.

As he looked, according to Mr. Wellington's story, this man, a "greasy fellow" about 60 years old, started at a slow run toward William Street, while the other two hurried in the same direction on the opposite side of the street. Wellington himself, he said, continued at a slow gait toward Nassau Street, pausing now and again to look back over his shoulder, for he had the idea the three men might have robbed a messenger boy of bonds and expected to see some policeman or watchman halt their flight. What became of them he never knew, for just as he reached Nassau Street the explosion knocked him unconscious.

William J. Flynn, head of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation said last night he knew nothing of Mr. Wellington's story except what he had read in late afternoon newspapers, but that he intended to learn more about it today. Mr. Talley said he only knew in a general way of the importer's account of things and had issued the Grand Jury subpoena in order to get definite information.

Attempts to Buy Sash Weights.

The District Attorney's office at the same time disclosed evidence that may prove of collateral interest when it was intimated that testimony had been had from several persons regarding recent attempts to purchase sash weights such as those which supplied the slugs for the bomb.

One witness who, it was reported, had testified before the Grand Jury in that respect, John Hart of 66 Wall Street, had a consultation with Mr. Talley yesterday, the import of which was not learned. It was intimated, however, that his information was of some importance and was supposed to bear on the sale of the weights.

In this connection it was said that four persons have given information to the police and have repeated their statements to the District Attorney. These witnesses are a Miss Friedberg, whose address could not be learned; Jesse Kessler, 240 Seventh Avenue; B. Dulchin, 158 Seventh Avenue, and J. Ziegler, Seventh Avenue and Seventeenth Street, hardware dealers.

Each of these witnesses told of a customer who entered the store on Sept. 10 and asked to see "nine-pound sash weights." None of the dealers had these weights, and the customer departed before any one of them took particular note of him. The best description they could give of the searcher for sash weights was that "he was not a foreigner."

Two more of those injured in the explosion have died, bringing the total deaths up to thirty-five. William Peterson, 29 years old, died at 10:30 o'clock last night in Broad Street Hospital. He lived at 32 Chestnut Avenue, Bogota, N. J. According to a death notice received by THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, Edward J. Robinson, who was injured, died on Saturday. The notice stated the funeral services would be held at the Church of the Ascension, 107th Street, near Broadway. At the church it was said no such funeral was scheduled. No address was given in the death notice.

Day's Developments Interesting.

Unless Mr. Wellington's story or the sash weight testimony should prove of value, it appeared that despite a whole series of interesting developments during the day, the police, the Federal authorities and the District Attorney were no nearer finding the perpetrators of the disaster last night than they were on Thursday afternoon, immediately after its occurrence.

From no official source came an announcement of a definitely constructive achievement, the general tendency apparently, being to regard the things accomplished as disposing of necessary tasks of elimination, rather than bringing the man hunt any nearer to success.

While no actual expression of discouragement was heard, the failure of one line of investigation after another to lead to other than negative results gave rise to impression that officials generally were losing hope of a quick solution of the mystery and settling down to a long, tedious systematic search for the guilty.

From the first day they had based their highest hopes on the horse and wagon which drew the infernal contrivance to the scene, and, so far as could be learned, their persistent canvass of all possible possessors of information as to its origin, ownership and driver had dimmed their first bright prospects in that direction. Moreover, despite the international publicity given to the tragedy and the deluge of communications and suggestions—which included sifting and resifting of the stories of all witnesses and near-witnesses—no definite clue has emerged.

Last Body in Morgue Identified.

More than ever the authorities were inclined to believe the explosion was either the work of a single anarchist or other radical, planned and executed with the pathologic cleverness that sometimes inheres in diseased brains, or that it was a plot by conspirators who had wrought such devious cunning that every inch of their trails had been covered with baffling success.

Chief among the developments which served rather to theories and tentative hypotheses than to bring the guilty nearer to justice were the identification of the body of the one victim which lay unclaimed in the morgue as that of a youth who, in the belief of the investigators, could have had no connection with the crime and the arrival here of Edwin P. Fischer who sent from Canada warnings of the disaster, only to have the police decide he was a harmless unfortunate of all likelihood innocent of either participation or actual foreknowledge of the crime.

The last body in the morgue was identified as that of Elmer Wallace Kehrer, 21 years old, of 422 South Fourth Street, Brooklyn, son of Mrs. Olive Kehrer of that address at which the young man lived with his bride of last February, Irene Kehrer. Kehrer was a chauffeur, employed until three weeks ago by Mrs. Bernard H. Wander of 370 Brooklyn Avenue, Brooklyn, whose husband is President of the Wander Press at 114 East Thirteenth Street, Manhattan.

Mr. Wander said the young man left his wife's employ voluntarily because he believed he could get better wages elsewhere. He added that Kehrer had been honest and attentive while working for the family.

Kehrer had been out of work since he left the Wanders and on the morning of the explosion left his mother's home with his wife. She was going to her place of employment, the Moehle Linotype Company, Thirty-seventh Street and Clarendon Road, Brooklyn, and Kehrer was on his way to apply to a Pennsylvania Railroad employment office in Manhattan for work as a brakeman, he having decided on that step because a brother-in-law had similar employment.

According to stories told by the family to the police and to newspaper men, Kehrer thought the office was on South Street, though he probably had an office maintained by the company in West Street in mind. Kehrer and his wife, who according to all accounts were on excellent terms, parted at Beverly Road and Nostrand Avenue, the young man warning his wife that if he got a job he probably would be away several days and promising to write to her at once if he was sent out of town.

Otto Kehrer, a brother of the dead boy, who acted as spokesman for the family, said both the wife and mother became alarmed when Kehrer did not return and no word was received from him. He asserted the mother went to the morgue on Saturday, fearing her son had met with an accident, but was not allowed to see the bodies there. The police insisted she had not been there and the night keeper, while not on duty at the hour the woman alleged, expressed doubt that any person actuated by any motive other than morbid curiosity had been refused a view of the explosion victims.

In any event, Kehrer's mother went to the morgue again yesterday, satisfied that her son's body, if she said, had never remained away from home a day in his life would have communicated with his family if he were able to do so.

Defends Son's Reputation.

After she had made the identification, the mother came stoutly to the defense of her son's reputation, insisting that he was a good lad and never had had any questionable associates, adding that he was a regular communicant of the Church of St. Thomas Aquinas, Brooklyn. Other members of the family spoke equally well of Kehrer and while the authorities as a matter of routine will investigate his associations they are well satisfied that the identification of this last body made it certain that the driver of the wagon was not a victim of the explosion—a point of which they had been eager from the first to dispose.

Bomb Squad detectives were hopeful for a time yesterday when they received a tip that there was a cache of explosives on Plumb Beach off Sheepshead Bay, where Detective Egan, head of the squad three months ago, found and seized considerable quantity of TNT. This explosive was discovered in an old, abandoned houseboat, partly under water, which was said originally to have belonged to an enemy alien who had not been seen for a year or more. Egan at the time attached no importance to the find.

Acting on the information received yesterday he returned to Plum Beach with Harry Campbell in charge of the local office of the United States Bureau of Mines. The houseboat, meantime, had become emptied of the water and in the bottom was found 350 pounds of smokeless powder. Egan and Campbell turned their find over to Fort Lafayette. The explosives are believed to have drifted onto the beach at the time of the Black Tom explosion and the discovery of the powder was not regarded by the authorities as having any bearing on the Wall Street disaster.

Edwards Receives Warning.

There was a mild sensation at the Custom House yesterday when William H. Edwards, Collector of Internal Revenue, received an ordinary post card, postmarked at Grand Central Station, Sept. 18 (last Saturday), at 5 P. M., on which was written in blue ink in an apparently disguised hand:

Warning. There is a plot to destroy the Custom House on Tuesday, Sept. 21, 2 o'clock.

Have buildings well guarded and watch all persons carrying parcels. Do not admit any one into the building with a parcel unless examined.

A CITIZEN.

Receipt of the warning caused some excitement, particularly among women employes who learned of it, but officially it was regarded as probably either a hoax or a crank document. None the less, the police were notified, and it was said made preparations to take the obvious precautions.

This incident diverted the police but a moment from their activities more directly connected with the crime. They devoted some time to investigating the story of Joseph Mead, an agent of the Humane Society in New York, who said that last Thursday at 10:30 o'clock, while going through Wall Street to serve a subpoena on a man in Hamilton Street, he saw a horse and wagon unattended before the Assay Office. He paused to examine the horse because he noticed it had sore shoulders and waited forty minutes to summons the driver to court for driving the animal in that condition. Then he went on his quest without making any record whereby he might find the driver or identify the wagon later. Persons who examined the horse after the explosion said its shoulders were in perfect condition.

Ash Removers Give Testimony.

Another series of witnesses, including George Bruno, an ash remover of 57 Thompson Street, seemed to dispose of the story of any horse and wagon standing there very long before the explosion. Bruno, whose story was corroborated by others, said one of his trucks removed the steam ashes first from the J. P. Morgan banking house and then from the Assay Office, leaving there at 11:45, and Bruno's brother-in-law, whose name was not learned, said he came through Wall Street in another truck, looking for the one which had just gone away, and pulled up directly in front of the Assay Office at 11:50, only to learn the ash removers had gone on their way. He said he could not have stopped where he did if a wagon had stood where the explosion afterward marred the pavement.

Despite the declaration of John Haggerty, a horse shoer employed by Finnegan and Kyle of 85 New Chambers Street, that he had shod the front hoofs of the horse, but knew nothing about its owner or driver, the police yesterday doubted that Haggerty did the work. They were positive the worn front shoes had been in place for longer than two weeks though Haggerty said he did the work two weeks ago. Photographs of the head, hoofs and shoes have been supplied to a number of detectives and all uniformed commanders were instructed to make a census of all shoeing places and stables in their precincts so the detectives might exhibit the photographs in them.

It was learned that the head and hoofs of the horse, with the rest of his body, were sent from the offal dock on Saturday to Barren Island to be destroyed. At the dock it was said the police had made no request that they be kept.

Brailovsky Is Released.

The police with some difficulty shed themselves of Alexander J. Brailovsky, the Russian, said to be a Trotzky-Lenin agent, whom they seized Saturday in response to an anonymous letter saying he was seen near the explosion immediately after its occurrence talking with three men who seemed elated at something. Brailovsky was not even arraigned on the charge of being an undesirable alien. He was turned loose after the police had tried vainly to get the Federal authorities to take him or to press the charge. Chief Flynn and his men will have nothing to do with the arrest, insisting if they had wanted Brailovsky they would have got him themselves

Fire Commissioner Drennan announced yesterday he would forbid the transport of explosives south of Fourteenth Street for the present because of the tension of public feeling. He was quoted as denying his men had made an important discovery bearing upon the explosion.

Many cables of sympathy have been received in the financial district and elsewhere since the explosion. M. Maurice Casenave of the French High Commission alone has received eleven such communications.

J. Floyd Johnston of 3 South William Street asked that the fact be published that he was not the Floyd Johnson of 81 Post Street, the Bronx, who was injured in the explosion.

Twenty nurses sent from the Post Graduate Hospital for special duty in Volunteer and Broad Street Hospitals were able to return to their regular duties yesterday.

BROKERS TO AID HOSPITAL.

Stock Exchange Committee to Solicit Funds for Broad Street Institution.

William H. Remick, President of the New York Stock Exchange, has appointed a committee of members to assist him in soliciting funds for the Broad Street Hospital, which did such able work in caring for the injured following the Wall Street explosion. This committee is made up of William H. Remick, Chairman; William J. Berg, Vice Chairman; Clarence E. Chapman, William W. Cohen, William A. Greer, Charles E. Knoblauch, Edward Roesler, George M. Sidenberg and Chalmers Wood, Jr.

The Broad Street Hospital is forced to carry a heavy load since the New York Hospital closed the Hudson Street Hospital a year ago. The closing was made necessary because of an annual loss of about $50,000.

AMERICAN HELD AS BOMBER

Montreal Police Seek Motive for Attempted Hotel Dynamiting.

MONTREAL, Sept. 20.—With one suspect under arrest, police today sought to establish the motive for an apparent attempt Saturday night to dynamite a local hotel owned by Wilfred Cormier.

The side walls of the hotel and those of the Royal Broom Company's building adjoining were badly damaged, while a large wooden gate to an areaway separating the structures was demolished by the blast.

Walter E. West, 20 years old, who said he came here from the United States, had in his possession when arrested, the police say, a stick and a half of dynamite and three lengths of fuse with detonating caps attached.

BECK ATTACKS COX AS FAVORING REDS

Declares Candidate's Seizure of Coal in Ohio Last Winter 'Smells of Sovietism.'

REFERS TO BOMB OUTRAGE

Senator Moses Tells Audience He Is with Harding in Wiping Out Wilson League.

James M. Beck and Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire were the star speakers at a political rally held last night at Carnegie Hall under the auspices of the New York Salesmen's Harding and Coolidge League. There were about 800 men and women in the audience and they vigorously cheered the attacks made by the speakers upon President Wilson and the League of Nations. Colonel William Hayward, former Public Service Commissioner, was Chairman, and speeches were also made by Louis K. Liggett and Mrs. Alexander Carlisle Pfeiffer of Boston.

Mr. Beck began his speech by referring to the recent Wall Street explosion. "In the shadow of one of the most tragic acts in the history of the country, an act which had shaken the security of America to its very foundations," Mr. Beck said, Governor Cox in a speech forty-eight hours later at Oakland, Cal., had spoken in favor of radicalism, declaring that many radicals were well-intentioned men. Within forty-eight hours after the sinking of the Lusitania, Mr. Beck said, President Wilson had also declared that there was such a thing as a nation being "too proud to fight."

"It is incredible," said Mr. Beck, "that these words had no application to the event."

The speaker also severely criticised Governor Cox for seizing coal in his State last Winter and turning it over to the people.

"This was an act," he said, "that smells of sovietism at its worst. That kind of lawless seizure indicates the spirit of one-man power that has been an example to the lawless."

Mr. Beck declared that the Democrats, and not the Republicans, had appealed to class hatred.

"But I don't want you to mistake my meaning," Mr. Beck went on. "Neither of the great parties were responsible for the dastardly crime that shocked Wall Street. I would be ashamed to refer to it here were it not for the fact that Governor Cox had declared that radical excesses were due to some defect in the Government and that George White, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, had declared that the Republicans had caused all the trouble by sowing seeds of discontent."

Ridicules Wilson Gift.

Mr. Beck got a laugh when he declared that President Wilson had sent only $500 to the Democratic campaign fund, although he had had his rent free for the last eight years and had received something like $800,000 in salary.

Turning to the League of Nations issue, Mr. Beck said he had just returned from a two months' stay in Europe and found it amazing to see the attention given in this country to the League as compared with the lack of interest it excites in Europe. He said:

"European publicists not only have little faith in the possibilities of the League for the maintenance of peace, but, on that account, they have little or no feeling against this country for rejecting a scheme of world government which, after nearly two years, has proved to be impracticable, for the determination of the larger issues of war and peace.

"Americans generally believe that there is a deep sense of resentment in Europe against America. I found no evidence of it. They are grateful for that which we did in a supreme emergency, and if they had any grievance, it is because our President, without any mandate from his people and against the wishes of his constitutional partner in the treaty-making power, muddied the waters of the Paris Conference with his theoretical vagaries and turned the current into a false channel by his academic charter of world government. Europe has learned—although too late—to discriminate between the Wilson Administration and the American people.

"Its statesmen now realize how badly they were fooled by the Great Pretender, and how unwisely they rejected the counsel of patriotic Americans like Harding, Lodge and Knox, who warned them in the early months of 1918, when the speedy reconstruction of Europe was still possible, to impose a peace upon the Central Powers with the least delay and defer discussion of the possibility of a superstate until Europe had returned to comparatively normal conditions.

"The one fear with respect to America the European statemen and rulers have is that in the swing of the pendulum America will withdraw within the shell of isolation.

"There is another reason why the League has ceased to be a practical factor in Europe. It is now generally recognized that it was constructed upon a false and rotten foundation. It destroys the basic principle of civilization, namely, the political equality of sovereign nations. It divides the nations into four classes—first, the Big Five, who form the majority of the Executive Council and have a perpetual tenure of power. Secondly, the four minority nations of the Executive Council, namely, Belgium, Spain, Greece and Brazil, who have a limited tenure of power. The third class comprises the members of the Assembly, representing some thirty nations, and their powers are, as Mr. Wilson said in one of his Western speeches, little above a 'debating society.'

"They do little more than elect the minority members of the Executive Council. The fourth class are the nations which, voluntarily or involuntarily, are not members of the League. Such are the United States, Russia, Germany, Holland and until recently Switzerland, the latter accepted with reservations as to its neutral rights, although America was told that it could not make any reservations in the act of ratification.

Senator Moses said he was looking forward to deliverance from one-man rule when the votes are counted in November. He was applauded when he mentioned Maine and said:

"That State, with its unprecedented Republican majority, shows in this year of grace that Republicanism and American ideals mean one and the same thing."

The Senator said he had seen four Leagues of Nations in existence in the Balkans during the last few years and had seen all of them fall when the test came.

"I am willing," he said, "to have an association of nations as favored by Senator Harding. Am I willing that the United States should enter the next war? I say yes, although I do not know when or where it will be, but am willing that the United States should enter as she has entered all wars, from the promptings of her generous heart and not at the command of nine foreigners whose personnel we do not know, sitting behind closed doors at Geneva, Switzerland. I am a bitter-ender and proud of it. I stand with Senator Harding in wiping out every vestige of the instrument brought back by President Wilson."

GRAND JURY SEEKS LIGHT ON EXPLOSION

Examines Witnesses Regarding Explosives Wagon—Main Inquiry Is Delayed.

The September Grand Jury began its inquiry yesterday of the Wall Street disaster by questioning several of twenty or more witnesses present in the Criminal Court Building concerning the report that a wagon marked "Explosives" had been seen near the scene of the explosion a few minutes before it occurred. The first move of the jury is to determine if the explosion was in any manner due to criminal negligence or was the result of a bomb ploot.

The actual work of the jury in the search for the criminals would go over for several days, it was said, because the great mass of information gathered from a great number of sources was not yet in shape for presentation without confusion and duplication of a large part of the different investigations.

The Assistant District Attorney said it had been learned that dynamite had been unloaded at Pier 11, foot of Wall Street, frequently in recent months, to be used for dredging in the East River. This clue is being investigated, to determine if any of the explosives was stolen or removed.

Every traffic policeman who was on duty on the day of the explosion from Wall Street to the City Hall has been questioned by representatives of the District Attorney, and all agree in the statement that they did not see a du Pont vehicle carrying explosives on that day. A similar statement was obtained from Daniel J. Grace, starter for the Third Avenue Railroad Company at the junction of Broadway, Park Row and Ann Street.

Among the witnesses was Wilbur B. Fuller, Superintendent of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Company, who was not called into the Grand Jury room. It was understood that he was prepared to testify that the only vehicle of the company in the financial district on that date was carrying a load of paint pigment. This may or may not account for the positive statement to the District Attorney by I. Gluckman, an employe of McKee Brothers at 37 Wall Street, who says he saw a du Pont wagon at Nassau and Ann Streets.

CALLS BOMB PROBLEM ONE FOR CHEMISTS

Dr. Herty Regrets That Specialists Were Not Invited to Help Solve Mystery.

DEFENDS GAS WARFARE

Grand Central Palace Exposition Declared to be Largest of Its Kind Ever Held.

Declaring that chemists might have been of invaluable aid to the police and the Department of Justice agents if they had been summoned to Wall Street immediately after the explosion, Dr. Charles H. Herty, President of the American Chemical Society, discussed some phases of the catastrophe at the opening exercises of the Chemical Industries Show in the Grand Central Palace last night.

"The evidence which would determine the cause of such a disaster and trace its perpetrators is largely chemical," said Dr. Herty. "The time to utilize a chemist in such a situation is immediately after the disaster takes place. In the New York section of the American Chemical Society are more than 2,000 chemists, among them men who are specialists in explosives, in metallurgy and cement. No one of these men, no matter how prominent or how immersed in his laboratory, could as a patriotic citizen decline an invitation to serve on a committee advisory to the city authorities in such cases of great disaster."

Discussing the plans of a committee of American chemists to co-operate with the Chemical Warfare Service of the army, Dr. Herty said:

Gas Warfare Here to Stay.

"Chemical warfare has come to stay. The effectiveness of gas in warfare has been proved by the fact that one-third of the total hospital cases in our army were due to gas; its inhumanity has not proved itself in the light of history, for of this third our medical records show that the very great majority completely recovered, a far greater proportion than of those who were wounded by shot and shell. The fear of tuberculosis development among our gassed wounded has been proved baseless.

"America proposes to see to it that, should her armies ever be called upon to take the field again, which God grant may never come to pass, those armies will be furnished immediately with the best means of defense which American ingenuity can in the meanwhile devise, and with an abundance of gases, which will be immediately forthcoming, limited only by the resources of our land. These steps will constitute no call upon the people in time of peace, but preparedness along this line of warfare will be thorough."

Discussing an editorial in THE NEW YORK TIMES of yesterday, Dr. Herty declared that there had never been any difficulty in convincing Congress of the need of having a Chemical Warfare Service. He said that the objections were made by the Secretary of War and the Chief of Staff, and he quoted General March as telling the Senate Committee on Military Affairs that observance of the provisions of the League of Nations would forbid use of poison gas in war. Dr. Herty ridiculed the idea that Germany would be forbidden to import ingredients of poison gas under the League and asserted that she could produce the ingredients within her own borders.

Chemical Trade Trebles.

The speaker said that another great mission of chemistry was the study of chemical reactions in the human body so that the science of medicine might be improved. He discussed in detail plans for this work here, mentioning the fact that only about 3 to 5 per cent. of the synthetic medicines imported from Germany before the war "proved of real value."

He spoke of the rapid growth of the chemical and dye industries in this country, and pointed out that the authorized capital of such companies had virtually trebled since 1915. South America was looking to this country to take the place of Germany in many fields, he said, but Congress had failed to enact legislation needed for the aid of industry.

Dr. Herty declared also that we had neglected to encourage our potash industry, and that the country might regret not having developed that field. Nitrogen and potassium must be produced here in large quantities, he said.

The exhibits of national members of the chemical industries is the largest ever held in this country, and the Directors declare that no other exposition of its diversity and magnitude has been held in Germany or any other country. All of the exhibition floors of the Grand Central Palace are filled with the 484 exhibits, many of them elaborate displays of American dyes and medicines.

One of the most impressive of the exhibits of this class is that of the National Aniline and Chemical Company, on the first floor of the Palace, in which every color used in the dresses and decorations was made in this country. The du Pont company also has an exhibit showing how easy it is to turn a dye factory from use in the making of dyes to the manufacture of explosives and powders for defense of the country.

The exhibition will continue every day this week, with programs of speakers on chemical subjects at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and moving pictures in the evening.

ARREST ALLEGED REDS.

Chicago Police Raid Printing Plant —Seize Soviet Pamphlets.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Two men were arrested today by members of the police Anarchist Squad and Department of Justice agents in a raid on a newly established printing plant at Thirty-first and Halsted Streets. A linotype machine, printing press, type, books, pamphlets and other publications, including copies of documents by Lenin, Trotzky and Bucharin, were seized.

The prisoners are Peter Zelleskis, 24 years old, of 3,010 South Union Avenue, and Joseph Diehentis, 25 years old, 1,257 South Stanford Avenue. Diehentis is alleged to be manager of the concern.

The equipment was traced from Philadelphia to Chicago and is believed by the police to have been intended for use in an extensive propaganda among the extreme radical elements in Chicago.

Federal agents notified the police that the plant had been shipped from the Eastern city a short time ago and the Anarchist Squad located it yesterday.

Copies of "Soviet Russia" were among the pamphlets seized.

REV. D. D. IRVINE'S THEORY.

Says "Vatican Created Atmosphere" That Caused Bomb to be Thrown.

"The Vatican by its intrigue to gain domination over the various governments has created a frame of mind which has led to unrestrained masses to plot against governments," declared the Rev. Dr. David D. Irvine in a speech at St. Cornelius's Episcopal Church in West Forty-sixth Street last night.

"If a church plots against government then we cannot condemn irreligious radicals for plotting against government," the speaker added. Dr. Irvine is general secretary of the National Patriotic Alliance, whose offices are at 516 Madison Avenue. It was this organization which brought to this country a year ago a delegation of Protestant clergymen from Ireland who declared that the majority of Irishmen did not want an "Irish Republic." Dr. Irvine is pastor of a Methodist church in Richmond Hill.

"Whoever organized the bomb plot had in one way a legitimate right to do it because of certain examples that have been set. I condemn the forces that create the state of mind I refer to, and I charge the Vatican with creating the atmosphere which caused the bomb to be thrown last Thursday."

The occasion for the minister's utterances was a reception to the Rev. Dr. Isaac Sturges, pastor of St. Cornelius's, who retires after forty-four years in the ministry and twenty-three years as rector of the church he founded. The congregation presented a check for $1,025 to Dr. Sturges.

EXPLOSION VICTIM TO SUE.

Will Contend That the City Had Ample Warning.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, Sept. 20.—On the ground that the municipal authorities and the police in New York City had received ample warning of the Wall Street explosion, J. Milton Smith said that he would sue the city government for injuries suffered by his client, James O'Brien of Mount Vernon, who was cut by flying glass and severely bruised as he was walking up Broad Street.

Mr. Smith said that summons was ready for service on Corporation Counsel O'Brien and other city officials of New York, and that the complaint would be filed within a few days. He said his client had suffered severe injuries as well as financial loss in being away from his business for several days.

ELKS OFFER BOMB REWARD.

Jersey Lodge Will Give $100 for Information as to Perpetrators.

Special to The New York Times.

KEARNY, N. J., Sept. 20.—A reward of $100 was offered tonight by Kearny Lodge 1050, B. P. O. Elks, for information that will lead to the identity of the perpetrators of last Thursday's bomb explosion in Wall Street. The resolution called on all lodges of Elks throughout the country to take action to stamp out Bolshevism. The resolution will be mailed to all lodges in the country.

HARDING QUESTIONED ABOUT LETTER ON RUSSIA

Demands Verification of Letter Which Favored Recognition of De Facto Government.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Sept. 20.—Senator Harding was asked tonight to verify a letter dated Washington, April 10, 1920, addressed to Stanley Washburn of Lakewood, N. J., which stated that the time was approaching when there could be no other course to pursue than to recognize the de facto Government in Russia.

"Ask Mr. Washburn to verify that letter," was all the Senator would say on this point. "You may say, however," he added, "that I am opposed to recognition of any Government in Russia until it shows capacity for observing honor among nations."

Following is the text of the letters which was shown to Senator Harding:

UNITED STATES SENATE.
Washington, D. C., April 10, 1920.
Mr. Stanley Washburn,
Lakewood, New Jersey.
My dear Mr. Washburn:

I am making a belated acknowledgment of your letter of March 30 because I have been absent from the city during most of the time recently, and only this morning has your note come to my attention.

I have never at any time changed my views concerning Bolshevism, but I think we are coming to a point when there is no other course to pursue than recognize the de facto of the government of Russia.

I do not know what the political future has in store, but I assume that both of us will be campaigning some time in the near future for whatever candidate is made the choice of the national convention.

Very sincerely yours,
(Signed) W. G. HARDING.

COX HITS OLD GUARD AND COAST PAPERS

ANSWERS LEAGUE CRITICS

Presents the Hitchcock Reservations to Covenant, Which Wilson Approved.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 20.—Governor James M. Cox made his first speeches in Southern California today and talked to the people in the frankest terms about the necessity for justice in Government as a preventive for radicalism, also about prohibition and the League of Nations. He continued his attack upon old guard Republicans who, he asserted, were responsible for the nomination of Senator Harding, and he won applause by asserting that if Theodore Roosevelt were alive the Senate group would not have dared to seize control of the party.

One point that Governor Cox sought to impress today in his speeches in this region, where the sentiment is decidedly pro-League but strongly Republican, is that the Republican leaders' opposition to the League is selfishly partisan.

Presenting the Hitchcock reservations and the letter of President Wilson wherein he declared these acceptable, Governor Cox attempted to meet all the arguments advanced by the League's opponents. He took up these arguments in order, and after discussing each urged his hearers to ask questions, that the points might be better understood.

Takes Up Objections to League.

In part the Governor said:

"I am going to take up the only objections that I have heard to the League of Nations.

"The first one is that the covenant obligates us to send our sons to fight in every war in Europe or Asia. Men and women, your boys and girls in the high school know better than that. They have studied civil government and they have studied the Constitution of the United States since you have studied it. The Constitution says in words so plain that any one can understand it that there is no power under our Government to declare war except that which is given to the Congress of the United States.

"Now I will take up objection No. 2. It says that the commitments of the League are opposed to the Constitution of the United States. The reactionary candidate said that the other day, but the committee formed by the American Bar Association more than a year and a half ago, and imposed upon it the task of investigating the constitutionality of the League of Nations from the American viewpoint, reported that it was not in any way in conflict with the Constitution of the United States.

"Objection No. 3 states that the covenant of the League is contrary to our traditional Monroe Doctrine. The Hitchcock reservation carries these plain words: 'The national policy of the United States, known as the Monroe Doctrine, as announced and interpreted by the United States, is not in any way impaired or affected by the covenant of the League of Nations, and is not subject to any decision, report, or inquiry by the council or assembly.' I will let that stand without further explanation.

"Objection No. 4 is to the basic purpose of this League, which is to protect small peoples. The League of Nations provides that there can be no secret treaties and that everything shall be put face up on the table. Now, then, when any country, under its right of self-determination, achieves its independence, it is an established Governmental unit, and, if there is any external aggression (and we attempt to upset its independence would be external aggression), then under Article X. it becomes an act, unfriendly to the League.

"I suppose you have heard it said here that the League is all right, but 'I don't quite like the idea of England having three votes than America.' Have you heard any speaker refer to it? Well, I am going to respond to it.

"The Hitchcock reservation on this point provided that 'in case of a dispute between members of the League, if any one of them have self-governing colonies, dominions or parts, which has representation in the Assembly, each and all are to be considered parties to the dispute, and the same shall be the rule if one of the parties to the dispute is a self-governing colony, dominion, or part, in which case each other self-governing colonies, dominions or parts, as well as the nation as a whole, shall be considered parties to the dispute, and each and all shall be disqualified from having their vote counted in any case of any inquiry on said dispute made by the Assembly.'

"What is the meaning of that? If Canada has a dispute, she cannot sit in the Assembly and no vote will she accorded to England or the rest of the colonies of Great Britain, since parties to a dispute do not vote. So that equalizes the whole thing.

"You say, 'Yes, but that is only a reservation. Why didn't they write it into the League?' Because if those reservations had been written into the League and accepted by the Senate, the case would have been closed and then the question could not have been made a football in politics. The Senatorial crowd declined to accept those reservations.

"After I leave some one may say, 'How do we know what Wilson would have done? Maybe he prevented the adoption of those reservations.'

"I have here a statement from President Wilson on the subject of reservations. I read what he says in order that you can understand that he was willing to accept, and if the Senate had accepted the reservations which met every objection that they have urged, this thing would have been closed a long time ago. Here is what President Wilson said (and I am willing to hazard the guess that it has not been published in more than 10 per cent. of the newspapers in California):

"'I am happy to be able to add, therefore, that I have once more gone over the reservations proposed by yourself, a copy of which I return herewith, and I am glad to say that I can accept them as they stand.'

"And so do I accept them. These objections are met, every one of them. And, while they make objections, have you noticed that they have not come forward with a substitute or an alternative?"

Governor Cox was well received and apparently roused much favorable comment by his addresses in San Diego today and in this city tonight. Here he was welcomed by large crowds on his arrival from the south at 7 o'clock.

Some of the Republican newspapers in this section have not given full publicity to the charges by Governor Cox that Harding is controlled by a reactionary group, but there has been a lot of talk about it, nevertheless.

Governor Cox talked in a theatre at San Diego at noon. There were probably 3,000 persons packed into the building and four or five times as many were unable to get in. The Governor soon won his audience and his address was frequently interrupted by applause for his statements in regard to progressivism.

There was a large crowd out at San Diego station when he arrived in the early morning. The Governor went first to a hotel and then took an automobile ride to the Municipal Stadium, where President Wilson addressed an audience of 50,000 persons last September; to the Exposition Grounds, where Hughes spoke in 1916, and other points of interest.

It had been planned to have the Governor speak at the Exposition Grounds, but a change was made to the theatre because of the trouble which Governor Cox has had with his voice. Governor Cox expressed regret at the change when he arrived, but it was then too late to renew the old arrangement.

Justice and Radicalism.

Talking on justice as a cure for radicalism, Governor Cox spoke of North Dakota.

"I have just passed through North Dakota," he said. "The Farmers' Nonpartisan League there is regarded by many people as extremely radical. I am ready to admit that some of the leaders are radicals, but the mass of the members of that party are honest farmers.

"I have said that radical movements came as the result of abuse in the Government and I renew that statement. In North Dakota they wanted to establish the same business principles as commercial enterprise has established. But they could not get the Legislature to adopt the necessary laws. For instance, there was cold storage legislation. The people voted by an overwhelming majority in favor of the movement. But when the Legislature assembled it was found to be in control of the reactionary forces. And they refused to make the appropriations necessary to carry out the will of the people. When the farmers made their appeal they were told to 'go back and shoo your hogs.' And they went back, resentful and determined to take charge of the Government if they could do so. Then began the radical movement which probably went too far."

Governor Cox brought up the question of prohibition, of his own volution, saying:

"The Eighteenth Amendment has been written. It's going to be enforced. When they come to me and say that Cox is all right on the League of Nations but a little bit 'damp,' I ask you to remind them that it was not until I became Governor of Ohio that the backdoors and the front doors of the saloons in Ohio were closed on Sunday."

In Southern California, as in San Francisco and points to the north, Governor Cox found a lack of organization among the Democrats, but he put new enthusiasm into the fight by his visit.

Charges Press Does Not Print News.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 20 (Associated Press).—Charges of a biased press were made by Governor Cox in addressing a large audience at San Diego today.

"A great many reactionary papers are not printing the news of the campaign," he asserted. "They decline to have this case tried before the jury. Nine-tenths of the newspapers in California do not print the news.

"One of the deliberate plans of the 'Senatorial oligarchy,'" he added, "was to control as many newspapers as possible."

The general charge was supplemented by the Governor with criticism of newspapers of the Pacific Northwest States which he visited recently. Some of the former, he said, did not carry his speech of acceptance.

The Governor also declared for a tariff on lemons to cover the difference in labor and transportation costs between New York and Italy and between and California. He said that he had advocated such a tariff in Congress in 1909 and would adhere to that position. He criticised reactionary newspapers which say that "Cox might be right on the League, but stands for a tariff that would put the California lemon growers out of business."

The Governor reiterated that he would accept reservations to the League of Nations' Covenant that would "help clarify and reassure, but not those which emasculate or nullify," and he cited reports of the submission by England and Lithuania of their dispute to the League and the submission by Sweden and Finland of the Aland Island controversy as evidence of the League's success.

Today saw the beginning of the last fortnight of Governor Cox's Western trip. After speeches tomorrow at Los Angeles, Long Beach and San Bernardino, he will turn eastward to visit nine more States, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming, Nebraska, South Dakota, Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri.

THREE SOCIALISTS SEIZED.

Girl Charged with Advocating Overthrow of Government.

Three arrests were made late last night, amid great disorder, at a Socialist meeting in Harlem. A crowd of sympathizers followed the prisoners to the Night Court, where Magistrate Jesse Silberman had to order the courtroom cleared before he could conduct a hearing. The prisoners said they were Jennie Katz, 18 years old, 80 East 116th Street; Paul Portman, 1,348 Fifth Avenue, and Philip Molina, 26 Delancey Street. Miss Katz and Molina, charged with disorderly conduct, were held for a further hearing in the Harlem Court this morning. Perman, charged with interfering with an officer, received a suspended sentence.

Julius Goldsmith, 354 East Eighty-third Street, testified that at a Socialist meeting at 110th Street and Fifth Avenue he heard Miss Katz and Molina advocate the overthrow of the United States Government by force and violence. Goldsmith arrested Miss Katz and turned her over to Patrolman Feely of the East 104th Street Station. Goldsmith said he was attacked by Molina, who was then arrested for interfering.

A detail of patrolmen was needed to control the excited crowd, largely composed of foreigners, which gathered outside the courtroom.

"I don't smoke, but I'll keep them." The cigars were taken from him and cut open to guard against the possibility that they might contain a message, drug or implement, but nothing of the sort was found.

Fischer was taken first to Police Headquarters and questioned by Police Commissioner Enright, Chief Inspector Lahey, Acting Inspector Coughlin and Captain Carey, head of the Homicide Bureau. To all questions as to the source of the information which led him to send warnings of the explosion, he replied that it was a "premonition," or that he "got it out of the air." Invariably he added:

"More will happen in the near future. Unseen powers have communicated that to me."

Fischer told the police in a frank manner that the Wall Street catastrophe, with its attendant loss of life, made no particular appeal to his sympathy. He said he had once been a victim of Wall Street and could not feel sorry for anybody who suffered from the disaster. He did not make clear just what he meant by this, but it was assumed by the police that he at some time had suffered a financial loss through stock investments.

Unimpressed by Death Slugs.

While in the office of Captain Carey, Fischer was shown a quantity of slugs, window weights and other wreckage from the explosion, but seemingly was not impressed. He admitted to Captain Carey that he had visited Mr. and Mrs. Jokichi Takamine, Jr., at their home in Clifton, N. J., two weeks ago and had then warned the chemist and one of his friends that "something dreadful was going to happen in Wall Street at 2 P. M. on Sept. 15," and that he had advised them to keep out of Wall Street on that day.

While at Police Headquarters Fischer asked and received permission to wash his face and hands. He waved away a towel when one was offered, saying he preferred to have the water dry on him rather than to wipe it off.

After the police officials had failed to get anything definite out of Fischer, he was taken to the District Attorney's office. In reply to a question by District Attorney Swann he said:

"I got it out of the air from God."

"If you can get information that way why can't you find out who committed this crime?" asked Mr. Swann.

"Oh, I can't do that," replied Fischer quickly. "You can't force a hunch. That will take time. It will have to come to me."

In reply to questions by Mr. Talley, Fischer said he couldn't tell just how he fixed the date of the explosion as Sept. 15. He said he had great difficulty in fixing the time of the explosion, and that his impressions on this were never quite clear.

"I saw a ten of hearts on the sidewalk," he told Mr. Talley. "Being a light card, it indicated to me that the explosion was going to be at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. Later I saw a ten of spades. That indicated 10 o'clock at night. By comparing them and calculating from Greenwich standard time I fixed the time of the explosion at noon. [In his known cards of warning Fischer never fixed the hour of the explosion at noon. In his letter to Captain Arnaud of the French High Commission, of which he was formerly an employe, he indicted that the explosion would be between 2 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon. His postcard to George F. Ketchledge warned the latter to keep out of Wall Street after the gong sounded on Sept. 15.]

Immediately upon entering the District Attorney's office Fischer greeted Mr. Talley as an old acquaintance, and when the latter failed to recall the circumstances of their meeting said that he had once sat next to him at a dinner. Mr. Talley then remembered the incident and said later that it was the only time he had ever met Fischer and that it was at a dinner given by a number of men interested in tennis to one of their number who joined the French Ambulance Corps more than two years ago.

After Fischer had been questioned by Mr. Talley for some time he turned suddenly and said:

"I don't know how long I am going to be here, and I am very hungry. Let's get something to eat."

Mr. Talley gave his assent and the detectives took him out for lunch.

HARDING DECLARES LEAGUE A FRAUD

Tells Grand Army Men and Southern Visitors Covenant Has "a Dozen Ambiguities."

AGAIN ASSAILS ARTICLE X.

Senator Says He Would Rather Break the World's Heart Than Destroy America's Soul.

POINTS TO PANAMA CANAL

Cites Tolls Incident to Show "Moral Obligation May Plague Us Into Foreign War."

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Sept. 20.—"A stupendous fraud" Senator Harding termed the League of Nations today, in an address to Ohio Grand Army men and delegations from Kentucky and Tennessee.

The Senator reminded the veterans and his Southern visitors that an ambiguity in the Constitution concerning the right of States to secede from the Union brought about the civil war.

"I want to ask you," he said to the white-haired men in blue, "knowing the cost of wiping out the ambiguity in the Constitution of our Republic, can we ever consent to enter into a world compact with a dozen ambiguities in it?"

Cries of "No, never!" came from the veterans.

Article X., Senator Harding said, he considered one ambiguity and added:

"No American can be simultaneously for Article X. and for the Constitution of our Republic any more than an American in Lincoln's time could be simultaneously for emancipation and for slavery. Article X., the 'heart of the League,' to revise which is 'to break the heart of the world—'"

Laughter interrupted the Senator, and a man shouted: "Why break our hearts by setting aside the Constitution?"

"Let me say right here in passing that I am a fairly sympathetic being," Senator Harding replied, "and I wouldn't break the heart of anybody knowingly, but I would rather break the heart of the world than destroy the soul of the United States of America."

Southerners One Day Ahead.

Senator Harding was scheduled to deliver a front porch speech today to 400 Grand Army veterans stopping over in Marion on their way to the annual G. A. R. convention in Indianapolis, and tomorrow a pilgrimage from Kentucky and Tennessee was to come to Marion, but something went wrong at Republican national headquarters in Chicago, for early this morning the Southerners arrived a day earlier than expected.

The Senator had prepared a speech for Grand Army veterans instead of Kentucky and Tennessee voters, but he soon had the Kentuckians cheering his reference to the State which gave Lincoln to the country. The Grand Army men responded to his statement that had it not been for them "there would be no nationality today to preserve," and he had the whole crowd with him when he pointed to the McKinley flagpole in his front yard and spoke of President McKinley's efforts to reunite the North and the South.

The 400 veterans marched at the head of the procession to the Harding home to the notes of a fife and drum corps. They were followed by the younger Southerners, who passed through a lane of Marion Grand Army men to the front yard. Dr. George T. Harding, the Senator's father, marched at the head of the parade in his veteran's blue uniform. Colonel George Christian, father of the Senator's secretary, introduced the preliminary speakers, in introducing Mayor George W. Smith of Louisville Colonel Christian told the Mayor that "no one ever ran faster out of Kentucky during the civil war than I did."

Senator Harding said, in part:

"This is a very unusual occasion, and you have made my heart very glad this morning. I count it a very fine thing that we should have present this morning the sons of the State which gave America the immortal Lincoln, under whose inspiration you fought, along with these representatives of the Grand Army of the Republic and kindred organizations which gave to America the indissoluble union and preserved our nationality.

Tells of Debt to Veterans.

"Somehow or other I find myself with a new deference, a little higher regard, for the Grand Army today, if that be possible, than I ever had before. We are talking nowadays very much about the preservation of American nationality, and I never speak of it without the full consciousness that had it not been for you there would be no nationality today to preserve.

"And I like to think of the blend of Kentucky and Tennessee with the sons of the North who saved the Union. I like to think that in this year 1920 there are few wounds of the civil war remaining, there are few evidences of sectionalism in our national life, and there is no one who regrets the winning of the war by the North and the preservation of this wonderful land of ours.

"I like to recall that, after all, there were no very great differences between us. Kentucky sent her sons to the war for the Union as well as to fight on the side of the Confederacy. They had the same passion for country in the border States and the Southern States that we had in the North. I think it was only a misdirected passion for country.

"Today we all are Americans, and if I speak with especial earnestness, I speak for the preservation of this American nationality to which we have been committed at so extreme cost.

"Have you ever stopped to think that we, one people, with naturally one interest, were led into the civil war by a mere ambiguity in the Federal Constitution? In the beginning we were so divided in our ideas that there was, of necessity, uncertainty left in the compact that was made, and it required the civil war to wipe it out. And that was a very great price to pay. But remembering that, my countrymen, I want to ask you, knowing the cost of wiping out the ambiguity in the Constitution of our own Republic, how can we ever consent to enter into a new world compact with a dozen ambiguities in it?

"Article X. is a reciprocal pledge on our part to help preserve the independence and the territorial integrity of forty-four nations (if all who are invited to join the League do so) commanding 35 000,000 square miles of the earth's surface. Article X. and its corollaries clearly contemplate war, if need be, to make this preservation possible. In case of such war it is official testimony, in the words of the President himself, that America is 'under an absolutely compelling moral obligation' to go in.

Says Covenant and Constitution Clash.

"Mark well those ominous words. There is nothing elastic about absolute compulsion. Yet the Constitution makes Congress absolutely sovereign over America's decision as to war. Therefore, what is the result? The Covenant and the Constitution immediately clash. Confronted with this unescapable fact, American citizens are told by League apologists and by the Democratic nominee for President that legally no treaty can subvert the Constitution, and, therefore, that by resort to legal excuse we may escape the absolute compulsion of a solemnly pledged moral obligation—a choice, in other words, between the American Constitution and dishonor.

"I wonder, men and women, if your sons and grandsons helped to win the World War for such purpose as this? Is any pacifist in America so deluded as to believe that a new era of international friendliness is ushered in upon the heels of so stupendous a fraud?

"Once upon a time, when Congress sought to allow American ships to pass through the American Panama Canal, built by American genius with American money to further American commerce and add to American defense, and when we built that canal with the understanding that American ships were to pass through free of tolls, pursuant to Democratic contract with the people as well as Republican covenant, the same President who brought us the League begged Congress and his own partisans to ignore their pledge because England objected that such action would violate the purport of an obsolete Clayton-Bulwer treaty. He pleaded that the treaty's moral obligation flung absolute compulsion upon us to ignore our constitutional rights to rule our own destiny and do as we choose with our own ships in our own canal. And the moral obligation won. Who cares to say that this same sort of logic will not some day be used to pledge an unwilling America into foreign war if we unreservedly subscribe to Article X., the Constitution to the contrary notwithstanding?

"So I say to you, men from Kentucky and Tennessee and members of that great organization which saved to us union and nationality, make your choice—Constitution or the proposed League, which? I haven't any doubt what your decision will be. You believe in the U. S. A., you believe in the fundamental law, you believe in the capacity of America to determine for herself what she is going to do.

"Oh, my countrymen, that does not mean that we do not intend to play our part in the activities of the world. That does not mean that we propose to hold aloof and live a selfish existence. Why, bless you, if selfishness had impelled, there never would have been a civil war, because we of the North could have lived alone and prospered and had everything worth while without engaging in conflict with the South over the Union and the Constitution.

To Preserve American Liberty.

"You know we went to war, or you did, to preserve the ark of the covenant of American liberty, and I tell you, my countrymen, the great issue in America today is to preserve that ark, which is the great American inheritance. And if the party for which I speak today may have its own way we mean to preserve it. And still, in a practical way, we propose making America's full contribution to the progress and the uplift of mankind and the maintenance of the peace of the world.

"But I like to say to you who know so much of sacrifice and hardship, we do not need any council of foreign powers to tell us how to do our part.

"Somehow, I like to think that a son of Ohio was probably the most distinguished of all in helping to that understanding. The flagpole standing there in the yard was sent here as a matter of sentiment because it stood in the dooryard of one of the humblest, most sympathetic and beloved Americans of all time, during the campaign for the Presidency—William McKinley of our own State, and I like to think of McKinley not only as a great American, who always spoke for America first, but I like to think of McKinley who, with his tact and gentleness and sympathy and understanding, came to know the South and made the South know him; and he started the great work of healing the wounds of the war. When he got into the Spanish-American conflict in 1898 we became again one people in this land of ours, and I have said it many a time, and I like to say it to you, my countrymen, today, that if in the crowing wreaths of immortality there is a separate bloom for every noble achievement then, sirs, an angel of the South will put on William McKinley's brow the sweetest garland that can blossom there. He brought us to an understanding, to a common understanding, between the sections that leaves no lines to mark a difference in a new appreciation of the American inheritance. And I want, my countrymen, to go on preserving the nationality that these veterans of the civil war handed down to us, not only unimpaired but revealed anew. And I want to hold it secure for American for all time to come. That is our proposal in this campaign.

"I thank you, men and women of Kentucky and Tennessee, for the honor of your visit, and I thank you, veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic, from the bottom of my heart for this tribute in your call of today, and I make you the pledge of the word of a veteran that everything in my power shall be done to hold intact the inheritance you gave to us."

Among the Kentuckians were Lieut. Gov. S. Thurston Ballard, Chesley H. Searcy, Chairman of the State Central Committee; Representative John W. Langley, former Governor M. H. Thatcher and William Heyburn.

Pilgrimages Due This Week.

A delegation of the Loyal Order of the Golden Heart of the World will come from Columbus tomorrow and be received by Senator Harding.

On Thursday the Ohio Dental Association, numbering 200 or 300 members, will call on Senator Harding, and a delegation of 1,000 or more from Crawford County, Ohio, will motor to Marion and be addressed by the Senator.

A delegation from West Virginia is expected on Friday, but this engagement may be regarded as in some measure tentative, because it is possible that in view of Senator Harding's impending trip to West Virginia the visit may be cancelled.

On Saturday from 2,000 to 3,000 members of the Harding and Coolidge Traveling Men's League will attend the last front porch meeting prior to Senator Harding's Baltimore trip. The Senator then will start on his speaking tour in Maryland, Kentucky and West Virginia, returning to Marion Thursday, Sept. 30.

Harding Writes to Labor Unions.

MARION, Ohio, Sept. 20 (Associated Press).—Harding headquarters made public today a letter the candidate has addressed to Michael J. Hallinan of Brockton, Mass., in answer to a letter received from Mr. Hallinan and signed by several Brockton labor men. The Hallinan letter had declared the signers to be "Americans first and members of organized labor second," opponents of the League of Nations, and asserted that the Massachusetts State branch of the American Federation of Labor had gone on record three to one against the League.

Senator Harding's reply said in part:

"This has the ring of real Americanism, and I am delighted with the testimony that organized labor has correctly estimated the significance of this issue. On this issue organized and all other labor and all citizens are going to get together to end the submergence of our nation in internationalism. This issue, in my judgment, is doing more than anything else to draw together the real American and patriotic sentiment of the country, and to wipe out all class and group distinctions. In the face of the menace of internationalism we are all Americans first. Our country will do its full share in the world in its own way and time, but not under the orders of any supergovernment dominated by alien interests."

PREDICTS HARDING SWEEP.

Senator Kenyon Says His Observations Indicate Big Drift.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Senator William S. Kenyon of Iowa, who arrived in Washington this afternoon, said that from his observations in various parts of the country he was convinced that the election in November would prove to be one of the greatest Republican landslides in the history of the country.

The Senator said that after a visit of some length in Missouri he believed that the Harding electors would have a plurality of at least 50,000 in that State. Oklahoma is a doubtful State, in the opinion of Senator Kenyon. The mid-Western States, however, were no longer doubtful, he said, and he predicted record-breaking pluralities in practically all of them.

Adams Won't Be Democratic Elector

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—Charles Francis Adams, Skipper of the Resolute in her recent successful defense of the America's Cup announced today that he would not accept a place as candidate for Presidential elector on the Democratic ticket, to which he was elected by the State Convention of the party at Springfield Saturday. Mr. Adams said he was not consulted regarding the use of his name, and that he would ask that it be removed from the list.

100,000 FACE OUSTER IN RENTING CRISIS

Head of Mayor's Committee Would Bar Holdover Proceedings for Two Years.

MANY BILLS ARE DRAWN

Fall Rush of Cases Reaches Municipal Court—Rent Restriction Is Urged.

City officials, realty organizations and the tenants' association announced yesterday bills and suggestions for legislation transmitted to the special session of the Legislature this week. The beginning of the Fall rush of rent litigation was noted in the Municipal courts, and there was a large increase in the number of cases before the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering.

More than 100,000 tenants in New York have received dispossess notices, said Arthur J. W. Hilly, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee. He declared that unless the holdover proceedings were eliminated for two years and tenants in most cases permitted to remain where they were, provided they paid rent determined by the court as reasonable, many tenants soon would find themselves without homes.

Among those who submitted bills and suggestions to Governor Smith or the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing were Mr. Hilly, Frank Mann, Tenement House Commissioner; F. H. La Guardia, President of the Board of Aldermen; District Attorney Francis Martin of the Bronx; the Apartment House Association and Association of Investing Builders and the Tenants' Union of Greater New York, Inc.

Mr. Hilly said he would go to Albany on Thursday and make the following suggestions: All increase of rent to be subject to court review; the burden of proof on all increases to be borne by the landlord; the assignment of one Judge to handle all cases involving apartments where tenants are prevented from moving because tenants in their prospective apartments are unable to find homes.

At the suggestion of Mr. Mann, in collaboration with Alanson T. Briggs, Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien has drawn up five bills to be presented to the Legislature. One authorizes the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund to sell 6 per cent. fifteen-year building loan trust bonds to enable the city to provide means to encourage construction of new apartments. Another authorizes the appointment by the Mayor of a Housing Commissioner and a staff of paid employes. Builders would be spurred by a bill exempting the property from local taxes for a period of years. A tentative provision permits city officials, on approval of the Board of Standards and Appeals, to suspend the operation of any building law or ordinance.

As a stimulus to private construction the following suggestions were made to Governor Smith and the Legislature by the Apartment House Association and the Association of Investment Builders:

"First—That tenements hereafter erected shall not be assessed for taxation for a period of ten years.

"Second—That income from mortgages on real estate be exempted from the State income tax and that effort be made to exempt such income from the Federal income tax.

"Third—That savings banks be urged to invest the full legal percentage of their deposits in real estate mortgages and that life insurance companies be urged to invest in such mortgages.

"Fourth—That local housing boards be established in all communities having a population of over 10,000, with a general housing board for the State.

"Fifth—That a system of impartial advisory boards be established in all cities affected by the rent legislation of last Spring.

"Sixth—That a commission be appointed by the Legislature to investigate trade and material associations."

President La Guardia telegraphed yesterday to the leaders of the Senate and Assembly, saying that in the event the proposed bill empowering the city to make loans to builders were enacted, it should include a provision that such loans be conditioned on the agreement that the builder will rent the apartments at 8 per cent. of the amount invested.

A bill which District Attorney Martin is arranging to have presented makes it a misdemeanor to shut off or permit to be shut off hot or cold water, heat, light, power, elevator service, telephone service or any of the usual services to which tenants are accustomed.

Justices William E. Morris and Harry Robitzek in the Bronx Municipal Court disposed of 400 cases. Justice Robitzek said that conditions were fraught with great danger. Among his suggestions for relief were the following:

To give the courts power to stay evictions for three or four years.

To compel the landlord to show that the tenant is unsatisfactory or that he wants the apartment for his own use.

To place on the landlord the burden of proof of the reasonableness of the rent.

The Tenants' Union of Greater New York, in a statement, said that if Congress would monetize Liberty and Victory bonds hoarded money would be freed, interest rates would drop and money would become available for housing as well as for other needs. It proposes that the Legislature by resolution urge such action.

Elkins Sure of West Virginia.

United States Senator Davis Elkins of West Virginia, who was a caller at Republican National Headquarters yesterday reported that conditions in West Virginia were such that it was certain that Harding and Coolidge will get the electoral vote of the State by a substantial majority.

bought in at tax sales for use for housing.

Withdrawal or modification of the summary proceedings law.

Exempting new dwellings from taxation for a stated period.

Creation of a Board of Appeals, similar to that of the New York City Buildings Department, which could make possible new methods of construction.

The creation in each community of over 10,000 population of a local housing board, which should report to a State agency formed for a similar purpose, and in turn report at stated intervals to the Legislature methods for the development of a system of State credits for housing purposes.

The series of five bills submitted for legislative consideration by Mayor Hylan of New York City will be either a part of the housing program or will be introduced as party measures by minority leader of the Senate James J. Walker.

Another proposal of Mayor Hylan that New York City be empowered to own and operate motor bus lines will be suggested to the Legislature as meriting approval. Governor Smith believes this to be closely associated with the solution of the housing problem, as outlying districts, he points out, cannot be made attractive unless adequate transportation facilities are available.

Bus Line to be Opposed.

There is every indication that the bus line proposal will meet with stubborn opposition in both houses, particularly from up-State members who do not look with favor on any proposition which might seem to lessen the value of home rule.

The special session will also be asked to appropriate $3,000,000 for the erection by the State of a hospital for the insane World War veterans in the State, numbering close to 900. The Federal Government, under the proposal to be submitted, would aid in maintaining the hospital, which would insure uniform treatment to the men who are now scattered among various State institutions.

Other subjects to come before the session are the enactment of legislation to permit New York City to increase the number of revenue producing bonds at present chargeable against the budget, as means of meeting a deficit of $1,000,000 in the Street Cleaning Department; permission to issue corporate bonds for the erection of new schools in New York City to take care of 187,000 children now on part time; a change in the law to permit sale of personal property at the quarantine station to the Federal Government, and a minor appropriation for the Bedford Reformatory.

TEXT OF GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE

Urges Legislature to Save Tenants from Profiteering Landlords.

ALBANY, Sept. 20.—Governor Smith in his special message, read tonight to the extraordinary session of the Legislature, said:

"I have exercised the power vested in my by the Constitution to call the Legislature into extraordinary session because I am convinced that an emergency confronts the State, and because I feel that we cannot wait until the regular session to find remedies for its relief.

"In the period of reconstruction many problems have been pressing for solution which are not ordinary in their nature but are the direct result of war conditions. None of them has so taxed the agencies of government as the question of proper housing facilities.

"In January of 1919 I charged the Reconstruction Commission with the duty of making an exhaustive inquiry into this subject to the end that the legislative and executive branches of the Government might be in a position to cope with this problem which, even at that time, promised to be acute. Your honorable bodies, believing that facts should be produced upon which to predicate remedial legislation, appointed a committee to investigate the subject. This committee reported at the last session of the Legislature and several legislative proposals arising from their report were enacted into law.

"It was admitted at the time that they were expedients, intended to alleviate the situation temporarily, as we were in the legislation. They were entirely regulatory. Two vital objects were overlooked; one, the encouragement of building construction, and, second, the adoption of a State policy looking to the future study and development by the State of this all-important question of adequate housing facilities.

"The experience of several months has revealed to us the weaknesses of the temporary expedients and has made more acute the necessity for encouragement of building operations, so far as it can be done by law, and the creation of State agencies for use.

"We, therefore, at this session, as I see it, have three distinct branches of the subject with which to deal: first, the strengthening of the temporary statutes enacted at the recent session.

Last Year's Laws Ineffective.

"Our temporary laws of last Spring have fallen far short of what was expected of them and selfishness and greed on the part of not a few landlords have brought about an indescribable condition in the municipal courts in New York City. I am informed by the President of the Board of Justices of the Municipal Court that there are pending for Oct. 1 more notices of dispossess proceedings than were filed during the whole year of 1919—approximately 100,000. The court rooms have been crowded beyond their capacity by tenants seeking relief.

"These figures of themselves cannot communicate the harassing uncertainty and the misery caused by the constant repetition of these proceedings. It has been publicly stated by the Health Commissioner of the City of New York that this condition of uncertainty is alone a direct menace to the health and welfare of the community. The housing shortage leaves the citizen nowhere to turn. Families have been broken up and dispersed generally through the city or crowded and huddled into the homes of relatives until the health, welfare and morality of the community is seriously threatened.

"It seems a very great pity that the decent, honest landlord should be obliged to come under a regulation clearly not intended for him, but made necessary by the willful and deliberate profiteer who would turn this great crisis in our State's history to his personal advantage. The people, to some degree at least, have managed to protect themselves from other forms of profiteering, but they are helpless to deal with this one, because a home every one must have. I have in mind that no regulatory legislation, properly drafted, will have any disastrous effect upon an honest man. It has been my experience that only those who seek to live outside of the moral law have any great fear of State regulation. The State has a conscience and it will regulate fairly.

Would Modify Summary Proceedings.

"Inasmuch as regulation must be exercised through the agency of our courts, it is to existing statutes or the enactment of new ones supplementing them that we must turn our attention. Landlords have been given the special privilege of summary proceedings in order to regain immediate possession of their premises. This privilege does not belong to any landlord as a matter of inherent right. Inasmuch as the evidence laid before us indicates that summary proceedings are being grievously abused in a crisis of this kind the State does only its duty when it withdraws or modifies them.

"There is an abundance of evidence that undesirability or failure to pay rent is not in the majority of instances the basis of the application for the writ of summary removal but, on the other hand, it is the operation of the profiteer who would remove the desirable and paying tenant in order to create a vacancy which may thereafter be offered to the highest bidder. As a result of this, families have been shifted from place to place without rhyme or reason, and the unscrupulous and selfish have profited immensely by it. October 1st was to be the height of the harvest. The State should step in and use its power to disappoint them.

"I believe the emergency to be such that the strong arm of the State must reach through its courts and protect the people for at least one year, until the crisis shall have passed or the situation is relieved. The courts should be empowered, where it is evident that the dispossess is requested for the purpose of unreasonable rent-raising, to suspend the dispossess remedy for an adequate period. You might well hold that the courts shall have the power to suspend rent increases and place the burden of proof upon the landlord to show the necessity for the increase or any part of it. No honest man can suffer from such legislation. The court will undoubtedly give its approval to increases that can be justified.

"Inasmuch as the personnel of your committee remains the same, I have no doubt that they will be in a position to suggest to you other specific amendments to the existing so-called rent laws, and that they will strengthen them where experience has proven them to be weak.

"The second phase of the question before us is how to stimulate building construction. Figures gathered from the most authentic sources indicate that the State is years behind its normal housing accommodations. Between June 1, 1919, and July 1, 1920, in the City of New York, 3,632 individual apartments designed for the same number of families were constructed but as an offset to that new construction there were demolished or converted for non-residential uses 3,853 apartments, leaving 271 less homes at the end of that period.

New York Needs 50,000 Homes.

"Although the question has been constantly before the public for a year and a half, the housing shortage is felt not alone in the City of New York, but all cities in the State are passing through the same difficulty. In New York City at lease 50,000 homes are immediately necessary. It should, therefore, be your chief objective during the extraordinary session to encourage, so far as that can be done by law, the building of houses.

"The commercial and economic supremacy of the State is threatened by this shortage. No community can expect to achieve an industrial growth if it is unable to house its working population properly. Labor shortage can be frequently attributed to improper housing accommodations. It is only human for a man to want to live where he can rear his family in decency and comfort. If some other State offers him that opportunity, it comes into sharp competition with our own State and good housing is therefore a necessity for the promotion of commerce and industry.

"The question of stimulating building growth becomes a very practical one because of the fact that the cost of building operations has trebled since 1915. Building, at this time, is considered an unprofitable field and money will not enter it, nor can it be forced into it by law. But we may be able to offer an inducement to capital to come back into the field and building may be resumed in a natural way, if the State can find some way to offset the increased costs.

"The emergency is such at the present time that it might be well to consider the enactment of a law exempting from taxation for a period of years, with proper restrictions, buildings used for dwelling purposes, whose construction is undertaken within such a period as will assure an immediate increase in housing accommodations. I believe this will aid in putting new construction on a fair competitive basis with buildings erected before the war and will assist in creating a market for new buildings.

"Much has been said about the exemption of mortgages from the provisions of the State income tax. The State's tax is very small and we can give no guarantee of Federal legislation along the same line. I, therefore, do not place much faith in this suggestion as offering any great remedy. However, your Legislative Committee is in possession of more facts on this subject than I can lay before you.

"Loaning institutions apparently have not kept in step with the times and have spent their energy in securing investments bringing a larger return than real estate mortgages. For instance, our savings banks and mutual insurance companies are organized, not for profit, but as depositaries for the people's money and it would be entirely in keeping with their purpose if their funds were made available to a greater extent to meet the people's needs by investing a larger portion of them in bond and mortgage.

Would Utilize Land Banks.

"In 1914 there was created by statute a State land bank, having for its purpose assistance to building and loan associations. Inasmuch as the proceeds from the sale of the bonds of the land bank are used for the building of homes the State should do everything that it possibly can to make the bonds a more desirable purchase. We have already exempted them from the provisions of the State income tax, but the abnormal yield at this time from other securities is such as to make them an undesirable investment. It might be well that the State use its own moneys or a portion thereof now in the various sinking funds of the State to purchase these bonds. It might also be advisable to enable municipalities of the State to invest in such bonds.

"These recommendations are made in the hope that the legislation which they suggest will bring voluntary capital into the building market. That, of course, remains to be seen. If the present condition be not thus relieved and the health of the community continues to be menaced, then we have a grave public emergency to meet, such as would confront us in a time of epidemic or of catastrophe. Clothed with the proper safeguards, the police power of the State should be extended to municipalities in order that they may be enabled either to build or lend their credit to the building of houses.

"Undoubtedly, the State as well as the municipalities, should be in a position to extend its credit either through the medium of the State Land Bank or a specially created agency.

"There is one avenue of possible direct State aid in an emergency which might be applied at once. The State apparently owns considerable property that was either acquired by escheat or was bought in at tax sales. It might be well to direct the Controller either to arrange favorable short term leases or dispose of the property, if it is to be used for housing, at such prices as will encourage its development.

"It has been called to my attention by the report of the Reconstruction Commission and by hearings held before the Joint Legislative Committee and by private citizens, that the high cost of building materials is artificially stimulated. No doubt, one very vital aid to construction would be the elimination of any combinations to increase the prices of building materials. Investigation of this situation by an agency of your own creation is, to my mind, highly desirable.

"We come now to the third consideration—provision for a permanent housing policy.

"The existing accommodations are far from the standards of adequacy that a normal family has the right to expect. It was conscious that the State was facing a problem of housing, both from the fundamental point of view and from that of the shortage in the supply, when I asked the Reconstruction Commission to study and to suggest a permanent policy for the State in this regard.

New Tenement Appeals Board.

"The evils of bad housing are only too apparent in New York City, but my study and experience here have shown me that an inadequate standard of housing exists in nearly every city and town in the State. The tenement house law has some measure of beneficent effect, but in the smaller communities investigation shows that housing is without even elementary supervision as to safety and sanitation.

"Nor is the situation of such recent growth as is popularly supposed. Since we passed the tenement house law of twenty years ago nothing constructive has been done. We rested with that achievement and every attempt to aid in developing a solution for other communities has met with failure.

"Any attempts to amend the present tenement house law are likely to be viewed with alarm and suspicion if they are aimed at detailed and specific sections of the law. It is, however, probable that the law can be made to fit present conditions if it is applied with greater elasticity. I would, therefore, recommend as an aid to the construction of multi-family houses that there be created for the Tenement House Department a Board of Appeals similar to or identical with the one at present functioning for the Building Department in the City of New York. If such a board is constituted, deviations from the letter of the law which make possible new methods of construction can be carefully considered by such a board and the law be less hampering in its effect.

"Building houses for some groups in the population has become an unprofitable business. Hence, these groups have for a generation lived in the left-over housing or in the cheapest and most poorly planned type of home that a grudging and unrealizing community would provide. As a result of the present emergency a still larger portion of our population is being forced back into houses of a standard below that which we have accepted as decent American homes.

"Except for the report of the Reconstruction Commission and the findings of your own committee, we have been aided by no State agency in the consideration of this very important problem. In the enactment of labor laws we are guided by the Industrial Commission; in the enactment of health measures by the State Health Department; in matters affecting the conservation of our natural resources by the Conservation Commission. The Banking Department, the Insurance Department and other State agencies all deal with special subjects that need executive or legislative action. But in housing, dealing with the elementary need of shelter and establishing homes, there is no State or local agency to aid the legislative and executive branches of the government either in meeting an emergency or, what is more pressing, in helping to establish a permanent housing policy for the State. Such a policy does not necessarily mean building of houses by the State, but it does mean the establishment of housing standards and of local development that should underlie any future growth of the cities of this State.

Urges Local Housing Boards.

"Granted that your honorable bodies will enact measures to meet the emergency, it is important that you recognize the challenge which these insufferable conditions raise to establish agencies for providing an enlightened and constantly developing housing policy for the future.

"To this end I recommend a law which will create in each community having a population of over ten thousand a local housing board, which shall be charged with the duty of finding a solution for the local housing situation. These local boards should be required to prepare, within a period to be determined by the local authorities, a plan for the future development of the city and should consider local housing ordinances. A State agency should be created and the local boards should be required to report to it at stated intervals so that there may be available at all times a body of information applicable to this subject.

"The State agency, on the other hand, should first of all be directed to report to the next Legislature on a method for the development of a system of State credits for housing purposes. Though the State agency information should be made available to local communities that will aid them in their housing program.

"These agencies, both State and local, should be unpaid, but so far as the State agency is concerned, adequate appropriation for its expenses should be made.

"This is the time for action. We are confronted with a real problem of reconstruction. Shall we remain in the dark ages of inadequate and un-American housing, endangering the health and morals of future generations of our citizenship, or shall we go forward with the times, and enter the new era of our democracy with an enlightened interest in the fundamental needs of our cities and our citizenship for well-planned communities that serve the industrial, commercial and social needs of the people, and homes that make for a stabilized, self-respecting, wholesome family life?

"If this is accomplished, the sufferings caused by the housing crisis will not be without their compensation. The permanent fruits of this emergency should be written on the record which this State has made for progressive laws affecting human needs. It takes a serious emergency to bring a realization of deficiencies. The opportunity is yours to remedy them.

SIDETRACK MOVE TO EXPEL SOCIALISTS

Twenty-third District, Borough of Brooklyn, is declared vacant.

The moment the resolution had been read, Simon L. Adler of Monroe, Republican floor leader, moved that it be referred to the Judiciary Committee. Cuvillier demanded a detailed vote on that motion. Waldman arose, and, too feebly perhaps to make himself heard, raised a point of order.

Speaker Sustains Waldman.

Cuvillier objected on the ground that Waldman was not a member of the Assembly.

"Has he been sworn in?" asked Speaker Sweet, addressing his inquiry to the Socialist.

"I have," said Waldman.

"Under the circumstances," said the Speaker, "the chair holds that he is a member until such time as the Assembly shall otherwise dispose."

At this point there was a ripple of applause from among the spectators, who crowded every available inch of space in the Assembly chamber not occupied by members.

Majority Leader Adler renewed his motion that the resolution be referred. Waldman insisted upon his point of order.

"I raise the point," he said, "that nothing is in order at this stage of the proceedings except the first reading of bills."

Speaker Sweet held that the resolution introduced by Colonel Gillett was a privileged one and as such he was in order in introducing it. The Socialist member proved pugnacious to the point of appealing from the ruling of the chair.

"The chair wants to be eminently fair," said Speaker Sweet. "The resolution is clearly privileged."

The appeal was snowed under. Cuvillier's motion for a detailed vote was lost also. No one was willing, it appeared, to stand up and be counted. The reference of the Gillett resolution was ordered by a rising vote.

Speaker Sweet then said he had something he wanted to talk to the Assembly about. He called attention to the arraignment of the five Socialists at the opening of the regular session. Their fitness to make laws for this Commonwealth was challenged, he said, because it was charged that they were avowed members and supporters of an organization whose purposes, as declared in its existing constitution and written statement of principles, were hostile to the Government, even to the extent of its overthrow by force, violence and unlawful means.

"The Assembly," he continued, "to the everlasting credit of its members, declared that if the purpose of any group or organization of individuals is to overthrow organized government by force, violence or unlawful means, those individuals thus banded together cannot gain immunity by calling themselves a political party.

"After a thorough examination of the constitution, platform and written declarations of principles of the Socialist Party of America you found those purposes to be essentially disloyal and aimed at the overthrow of the government by force and unlawful means, and not by lawful, parliamentary action, and that the five men, because of membership in that organization, were unfitted in fact and truth to participate in the functions of a government to destroy which they were banded together.

Sweet Skeptical of Reform.

"Of necessity, by that decision and for the purposes of the extraordinary session now opening, the findings thus made should control, unless in the meantime the constitution, platforms and declarations of that organization which furnished the essential proof of the unfitness of its members to sit in the Legislature, have been so radically changed as to meet the objections and satisfy the conditions found to be essential as formulated in the report of the Judiciary Committee and approved by the Assembly."

"Willingly or otherwise, voluntarily or through the compulsion your findings put in operation, the national convention of the party held in May, 1920, voted to strike out some of the sections, and the Socialist State Convention in July acted on other objectionable clauses to which reference had been made," continued the Speaker.

The moot question of whether the Socialist Party of America has or has not repudiated the Third Internationale with its program of violent revolution and proletarian rule, the Speaker answered from his rostrum in the affirmative. He read party declarations to show that while the Socialists adhered to the Third Internationale, they had instructed delegates to that body to insist that proletarian dictatorship and Soviet rule be not imposed as conditions for affiliation.

"Thus has the Socialist Party of America yielded in its outward form and semblance to the demands of patriotic men not only in this Assembly, but throughout the land. A more complete vindication of the action of this body at its session could hardly be conceived.

Speaker Sweet, as he ended his speech, urged that the Assembly adjourn until tomorrow.

Martin G. McCue, Tammany member, who was zealous in prosecution of the Socialists at the regular session, demanded wrathfully to be heard, insisting that he had a resolution to introduce.

Speaker Sweet ruled that with a motion to adjourn pending, nothing was in order and the motion itself not debatable. When McCue rebelled against that ruling the Speaker gavelled him into silence. McCue did not subside until he had fired this parting shot:

"I do not want to lay down; if anybody else wants to lay down, all right, but I shall leave opening for no one to charge me with being a quitter."

To soothe McCue, the Speaker then said he was willing to have debate on the Socialists made a special order for tomorrow's session and it is understood the Judiciary Committee will report the Gillett resolution "for consideration" then.

DEMOCRATS PREDICT GAINS IN CONGRESS

AFFECTED BY LOCAL FIGHTS

Labor Vote Is Expected to Bring a Change in Representation from Cities.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Democratic managers of the Congressional campaign, working independently of the party's National Committee, report that conditions are favorable for greatly increased Democratic representation in the next Congress. At present the Democrats hold 190 seats in the House and the Republicans 234, while there are seven vacancies and four members classed as independents.

Representatives Henry D. Flood, Chairman of the Congressional Committee, returned today from a trip in the South and the Middle West. He said that the Democrats would increase their representation in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, New Jersey and Illinois, and would not lose more than half a dozen seats now occupied by Democrats.

Reports which have come to the headquarters here, Mr. Flood said, indicated that large industrial centres, which in times past have returned Republicans, were strongly swinging to the Democratic Party. The Democrats, it is believed, will benefit by voting among labor union members and liberals in the communities. While the Democratic leaders expect gains in the large centres, they do not expect so strong a drift in the distinctly agricultural sections.

In the opinion of Mr. Flood the Democratic chances of increasing their vote in the House are not being affected by the general situation. He declined to explain just what these conditions were aside from saying that they were local and represented disaffection with the attitude of Republican Congressmen on recent legislation.

As to reports coming to Republican headquarters that the Democratic prospects in certain Southern States, such as Maryland and Kentucky, were being threatened by a registration of negro women greater than that of white women, Mr. Flood said that investigation made by his committee showed that this was not true. Negro women, he said, were being registered and thereby qualified to vote in the same proportion as negro men.

Advices received from Richmond and other cities in Virginia, he said, were that the Democratic leaders had become alarmed unnecessarily over the applications of negro women for registration. While these women applied for registration in great numbers, only a very small proportion had been able to meet the tests.

In the next few weeks Secretaries Colby, Baker, Wilson and Attorney General Palmer will join the Democratic campaign speakers. Mr. Palmer will speak in New Jersey, Maryland and perhaps Kentucky.

AN ARGUMENT FOR LEAGUE.

Democrats Cite Fact That Strife Was Averted In Aland Case.

The decision of Sweden and Finland to leave to the League of Nations the settlement of the ownership of the Aland Islands, which threatened trouble between the two countries, is to be used by the Democratic National Committee in its campaign as an argument in support of America joining the League. Commenting on the affair yesterday National Chairman George White said:

"Americans should mark well the statement appearing today from Premier Branting of Sweden, one of Europe's great statesmen, to the effect that the League of Nations will be able to avert between Sweden and Finland a tense situation over the Aland Islands, a situation which might have led to war. The League will arbitrate the dispute between the two countries as to domination of these islands and its agencies of publicity and delay are thus proved to be the great peacemaking devices which the world longs for in international disputes. Thus the League is already functioning and, as Mr. Branting says, when the United States joins it the threat of war will become ever less menacing.

"If Sweden and Finland had gone to war instead of to the League, Europe might again have become embroiled, and since a certain dispute between Serbia and Austria in 1914 finally engulfed the United States, who can say what the consequences of a Baltic war would be? Common sense and a desire for peace call for our adherence to the League of Nations."

DEMOCRATS TO OPEN FIRE.

Best Orators to Enter Campaign This Week or Next.

The Democrats this week and next will turn loose their biggest oratorical guns in the campaign for Cox and Roosevelt, it was announced yesterday by Senator Pat Harrison, head of the Speakers' Bureau of the Democratic National Committee.

Senator Joseph Robinson of Arkansas, who was Permanent Chairman of the Democratic National Convention; Senator A. O. Stanley of Kentucky and Governor John M. Parker of Louisiana, who was the Vice Presidential candidate of the Progressive Party in 1912, will make a campaign speaking tour of Ohio this week. Vice President Thomas R. Marshall will also begin this week an active speaking campaign in Iowa. His itinerary is being arranged by Representative McClintic of Oklahoma, in charge of the Speakers' Bureau of the National Committee at Chicago. Next week Bourke Cockran will begin an intensive speaking campaign which will take him through a number of States. His first speech will be in New Hampshire. Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State, will enter the campaign on Oct. 1, delivering speeches in several large cities. Senator Oscar Underwood of Alabama will make several speeches in New England next week. Franklin D. Roosevelt will speak on Sept. 27 at East Orange, Jersey City and Newark.

ITALIAN-AMERICANS UNITE FOR HARDING

F. H. LaGuardia Elected National Chairman of Republican League Formed Here.

DELEGATES FROM 23 STATES

President Wilson Accused of Stopping a Satisfactory Solution of the Fiume Problem.

Permanent organization of a number of associations of American citizens of Italian origin was effected yesterday at meetings in Aeolian Hall and 170 Worth Street, under the name of the Italian-American Republican League. Fiorello H. LaGuardia, President of the Board of Aldermen, was elected National Chairman, and Assistant District Attorney Nicholas Selvaggi, of Kings County, National Secretary. Delegates from twenty-three States were present and it is proposed to make the organization nation wide in an attempt to bring practically all the Italian vote of the entire country to the support of Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee of President.

The League seeks frankly to capitalize Italian resentment on President Wilson's course in the Fiume question to bring support to the Republican national ticket. "On four separate occasions the President stopped a satisfactory solution of the Fiume problem," said Mr. LaGuardia in a speech at the Aeolian Hall meeting. "The very honor of the United States is at stake in this matter, and we have the right to defend the honor of this country."

Congressman Isaac Siegel, another speaker, said that no department of the United States Government had functioned properly under the Democratic Administration, and that the election of a Republican Administration would reduce the cost of living and taxation and bring back the soldiers still in Europe.

The following message from Senator Harding was read and received with cheers:

"I send you my greetings. We are engaged in a victorious effort to restore constitutional government to our country and end one-man domination, which the Democratic nominees, 'in perfect accord,' seek to perpetuate. We mean to put an end to bungling, slipshod government and injurious meddling with American business. American business is the people's business and we do not want the 'no-hour day' in America. We have had enough of uninvited interferences with affairs abroad. Americans stand for fulfilling their obligations to the world by deeds and by example and not by preaching and meddling. We mean to reconstruct the idea of voluntary associations of nations, which have been prevented by mismanagement of negotiations at Paris. Above all, we stand for a citizenship stronger than class, creed or race—a citizenship based on obligations as well as upon rights—a citizenship which always answers to the call of America first."

More cheers were evoked by a telegram from United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, who said that he had always favored giving Fiume to Italy as necessary for the protection of her interests on the Adriatic. Governor Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts sent a message regretting his inability to attend.

At the meeting in the afternoon F. M. Andreani of California and Frank Lewis Pinola of Pennsylvania were chosen Vice Chairmen. Resolutions were adopted condemning the Wilson administration and pledging support to all Republican candidates, national, State, Congressional, city and county.

The convention will be in session today and tomorrow and plans will be made for the organization of Italian citizens in every State.

RESUME FUND INQUIRY IN CAPITAL TOMORROW

Party Finance Leaders, Liquor Men and German-Americans Among Those Summoned.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The Senate sub-committee, under the Chairmanship of Senator Kenyon, which has been investigating campaign funds, will resume its hearings in this city Wednesday morning.

The first witness will probably be Colonel William Boyce Thompson, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the Republican National Committee, and William Barnes of Albany.

Other witnesses who have been summoned are James W. Gerard, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Democratic National Committee; George T. Carroll of Elizabeth, President of the National Retail Liquor Dealers' Association of America; Charles McDonald and Edward C. Stokes, Chairmen of the New Jersey State Democratic and Republican Committees, and Herbert H. Houston of New York, Treasurer of the League to Enforce Peace.

The committee is expected to summon also several officials of the German-American Citizens' League, which, it was alleged, has taken up much of the work of the old German-American Alliance and to be actively at work in the campaign. The witnesses from this league will be asked to disclose the nature of this work and the source of revenue.

George Sylvester Viereck, former editor of The Fatherland and long identified with German press propaganda in the United States, will be one witness. He is a prominent member of the German-American Citizens' League, and is supporting the candidacy of Harding. Ferdinand Walther, President of the new organization, may be another witness.

CHICAGO TO SETTLE RESULT

Canvass of City Vote Will Decide Republican Nominee for Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Lieutenant Gov. John C. Oglesby, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, carried eighty-five of the 101 down-State counties and comes to the Cook County line with a net plurality over Len Small of 87,264, according to recapitulation of returns of Wednesday's primaries officially reported to Springfield today by county clerks of the State.

Oglesby's managers think that he will have more than 4,000 lead in the country towns of Cook County, so the official canvass of the Chicago vote which began today will decide who is the nominee.

The unofficial count with several precincts still missing shows that Small leads Oglesby by a narrow margin. For Senator William B. McKinley has apparently beaten Frank L. Smith by 10,000 votes in the State.

ROOSEVELT OFFERS LIVING COST PLAN

Wants Better Transportation, Middle Men Limited and Profiteer Laws Changed.

OPENS STATE CAMPAIGN

Nominee Promises "Immediate Action" if Democrats Win — Decries National "Barnesism."

ALBANY, Sept. 20.—Several thousand persons filled Union Hall here tonight to hear Franklin D. Roosevelt make the principal address of the first day of his New York State campaign.

Speaking to an audience which included many who were here to attend the special session of the Legislature, Mr. Roosevelt devoted most of his time to discussing subjects relating to the cost of living. He blamed the present Republican Congress largely for having taken no action to ameliorate conditions and said that if the Democratic Party was successful in November Governor Cox and himself proposed "to take immediate action."

"While it is not to be expected that such action will reduce the cost of living to the point where it was in 1914," he said, "it will be of material benefit to every individual and to every family."

He then made six concrete proposals of measures to improve living conditions throughout the country. They are:

"Increase food production by opening up at once and on a large scale millions of acres of land now unproductive.

"Make farm life more attractive, and direct an intensive campaign to provide better living conditions in the country districts.

"Improve transportation facilities, in order that the products of the farms may be more quickly and more cheaply brought to the consumer.

"Eliminate many of the unnecessary hands through which articles at the present time pass between the man who produces and the man who consumes the articles.

"Change the present ineffective laws regarding profiteering so that the public may be assured that selfish individuals will not line their pockets out of the undue profits made from the necessities of life.

"Provide such regulations of commodities like coal that the average citizen may be assured that the supply will be adequate and the price reasonable."

He declared that the Republican candidate offered "no such definite program for relieving conditions as this one." The Republican Party, he said, offered solutions only "in terms of glittering generalities."

On arriving here this afternoon from Troy, where he had also spoken, Mr. Roosevelt called at the xecutive Mansion and was received by Governor Smith.

Says "Barnesism" Threatens Nation.

TROY, N. Y., Sept. 20.—At a luncheon meeting of Democrats here today Franklin D. Roosevelt declared that the election of Harding and his ticket would mean setting up "what people in this State know as 'Barnesism' throughout the country."

Mr. Roosevelt arrived here by motor from Schenectady, where he delivered two campaign addresses. He announced that after today's speeches he would go to Boston to enter his son in a preparatory school, resuming his campaign on Wednesday.

In his luncheon speech Mr. Roosevelt declared that the Republican candidates failed to "stand on their own feet." He charged that if elected they would be merely the "figure-heads through which the 'powers' of the party would work in the actual government of the country."

In his evening speech here Mr. Roosevelt scored the Republican candidates, declaring that they appealed to "all the un-American and alien prejudices and passions in our land."

"For instance," he said, "in centres where Americans of German descent predominate, such as Milwaukee, attempts are made to inflame the people by an appeal to vote against Governor Cox because it is alleged that President Wilson has been unfriendly to Germany and that Senator Harding would help the interests of Germany and the German people.

"At the same time that this campaign is going on, another campaign is under way in New England, in centres where there are no people of German descent. Here they are trying to get votes for Harding on the allegation that Governor Cox was pro-German during the war.

"The Harding slogan, 'America First!' in the disclosures daily made should really be 'Hyphenated America First!'"

SCHENECTADY, Sept. 20.—Franklin D. Roosevelt opened his campaign in New York State here today with two addresses to factory employes at the noon hour. Mayor George P. Lunn introduced him at each meeting.

In his first speech, which was to employes of the American Locomotive Works, Mr. Roosevelt attacked what he called Senator Harding's attempt to "camouflage issues of the campaign by waving the flag."

JOHNSON PREDICTS BIG PARTY VICTORY

Senator Says Harding Has "Scrapped the League" and Election Will Finish It.

HIS 3 REASONS FOR SUCCESS

Dissatisfaction with Administration, Hostility to Wilson and Opposition to League.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 20.—Senator Hiram Johnson believes that the Republicans will capture the country by an overwhelming majority six weeks from tomorrow. In a personal interview today, the first he has granted in several weeks, Mr. Johnson said that the Democrats did not have a chance in the world of even showing above the horizon on the critical day.

"There are three big reasons why the Republican Party will be victorious," said Mr. Johnson. "First, because of the widespread dissatisfaction of the country with the Democratic Administration; second, because of acute hostility to President Wilson, and greater than either of the two, America's opposition to the League of Nations."

Asked what he thought of Senator Harding's plan for an international court, Mr. Johnson refused a direct reply, but remarked:

"Sufficient unto the day is evil thereof. Besides, it's a question of the League of Nations, pure and simple. Harding has already scrapped that and the rest of us will beat it at the election beyond redemption. After that everybody will be glad to do anything, short of involving us in European controversies and difficulties which do not concern us, in order to promote peace and prevent war."

Mr. Johnson said that he would speak in Sacramento tomorrow before the State convention. He will go to Los Angeles Saturday for a speech there and will speak here later. He will then go East, spending October in campaigning the country on a fixed itinerary, talking every night and several times a day for the party. He is sure the election will show the Democrats that it will be futile to do anything that smacks of Wilsonism for many years.

COFFEE HOUSE OWNER SLAIN

L'a Bruzio Stabbed Many Times, Probably in Italian Feud.

Antonio L'a Bruzio, 55, proprietor of a basement coffee house at 42 Henry Street, was found dead in his establishment last night with several stab wounds in his body. The police said the murder bore the earmarks of an Italian feud.

Patrolman Cohen, who was half a block away from the coffee house, heard a police whistle at 10 o'clo k. His search led him to the coffee house, where he found every piece of movabl furniture overturned. Beneath two chairs lay L'a Bruzio's body. The man's home was at 73 Market Street.

Cornell President for Wadsworth.

President Jacob Gould Schurman of Cornell told the Republican Senatorial Committee yesterday that it was highly important to re-elect Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., as the Senate is so closely divided between Republicans and Democrats that his defeat might give the Democrats control. President Schurman thought that Senator Wadsworth would not lose votes because he was anti-suffragist.

BASEBALL CHIEFS CALLED IN INQUIRY

Grand Jury Investigation of Alleged Gambling to Start in Chicago Tomorrow.

BENTON ALSO SUMMONED

Prosecutor Declares New York Pitcher Received Offer of $750 to Lose a Game.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Grand Jury investigation of alleged gambling by baseball players in last year's world's series and in the game between the Chicago and Philadelphia National League clubs Aug. 31 will start Wednesday. A score of baseball officials, players and writers have been subpoenaed to testify.

Subpoenas were issued tonight for the following to appear before the Grand Jury: Byron Bancroft Johnson, President of the American League; John A. Heydler, President of the National League; William (Kid) Gleason, manager of the Chicago American League Club; Charles A. Comiskey, President of the Chicago American League Club; William L. Veeck, President of the Chicago National League Club; Jacob (Grabe) Benton, pitcher for the New York National League Club; B. E. Collyer and Frank O. Kilfoil, both of Chicago, sporting writers; Harvey Woodruff, sporting editor of The Chicago Tribune; Sam Hall, sporting editor of The Chicago Herald-Examiner; I. E. Sanborn and Oscar Reichow, baseball writers for The Chicago Tribune and The Chicago Daily News, respectively.

Subpoenas for additional players will probably be issued before the investigation begins, said R. A. Replogle, who is working as prosecutor under direct orders from Chief Justice Charles A. McDonald of the Criminal Court. He declared that Hal Chase, Lee Magee and Hebbie Zimmerman, all former Major League players, would probably be called.

When asked why Benton was the only player called thus far, Mr. Replogle said that he "believed Benton had information the Grand Jury needed and that Benton would be asked to tell what a certain player asked him to do."

"We don't say that we have enough evidence to indict as yet," Mr. Replogle also said, "but we will have it if these people come in and tell what they know and have told others. Benton knows a whole lot. We especially wish him to tell what a certain player on the Cubs team asked him to do. It is known that Benton was offered $700 to lose a ball game that he pitched. The man who made the offer was an associate of the gamblers and is no longer a member of the Cubs."

The Grand Jury would not receive much evidence concerning baseball pools, he said, but every attempt would be made "to get into the real gambling—the throwing of games by star players."

It became known tonight that the Committee of Baseball Writers appointed to investigate charges that the Chicago-Philadelphia National League game referred to had been "fixed" for Philadelphia to win had done little thus far. Sam Hall of The Herald-Examiner, refused to serve as Chairman, saying that he could not spare the time.

Telegrams were sent tonight to President Heydler and to Benton ordering them to appear before the Jury Wednesday.

Shortly before news of the Grand Jury investigation became public, President Johnson made a statement in which he said that the American League would ask Congress to enact a law at its next session making betting on a baseball game a penitentiary offense. He said that the league would ask that this law be made as severe as possible and worded so as to eliminate all baseball pools. Only in this way, he held, could gambling be definitely eliminated from baseball.

"The Federal Government should interest itself in this matter," said President Johnson. "The public believes in the integrity of baseball and it should be protected by Federal laws."

Charges Centre on Chicago Clubs.

Talk of players being "fixed" by gamblers to throw baseball games has been centred particularly on the two Chicago clubs, and this is the reason why the Grand Jury is to begin action in that city. Rumors developed last October, when the Chicago White Sox and the Cincinnati Reds were engaged in the world's series. The Chicago team had been a big favorite before the series but lost four of the first five games, and immediately the charge was made that gamblers had paid certain White Sox players large sums to throw the games.

For a time Chicago was excited over the rumors. Investigations were conducted by prominent baseball officials, but the men who made the charges were unable to offer anything except hearsay evidence. President Comiskey of the White Sox came out with an offer of $10,000 to any person who could bring proof that any of his players was involved in any gambling scheme and he guaranteed that the offending player or players would be barred for all time from professional baseball. The proof was not furnished.

During the Winter certain members of the White Sox were mentioned in stories about throwing games, and another investigation got under way. It ended like the first one, with nothing proved. Comiskey again came out with his offer and nobody put in a claim for the money.

The matter apparently had died out when Chicago found itself the centre of more rumors on baseball less than a month ago. The Chicago and Philadelphia National League clubs were scheduled to play on the afternoon of Aug. 31. Meadows, a star, was due to pitch for the visiting team, and Hendrix was in line to pitch for the Cubs.

Between 2 o'clock and 2:45 o'clock that afternoon President William Veeck of the Cubs received six telegrams and two long distance telephone calls telling him that the game had been fixed for Philadelphia to win. Both telephone calls and four of the telegrams came from Detroit, one came from Cleveland and the other from Chicago. Veeck consulted Manager Mitchell. The two decided to pitch Alexander out of turn and thereby make it clear that Chicago would win if possible. A bonus of $500 was promised to Alexander if he won the game, but the Cubs could not hit Meadows, and were shut out 3 to 0.

Rumors that the game had been fixed became current the next day and President Veeck gave out all the details. Efforts to find the senders of the numerous messages proved a failure, and it appeared to be the work of gamblers who had laid bets on the Cubs and made the move to get Alexander into the box out of his turn in order to improve their chances of winning. It developed that the names and addresses used in the telegrams were fictitious.

Officials of the Cubs then called upon a committee made up of all the sporting writers of Chicago to probe the charges to the bottom. All the money needed for an investigation was guaranteed by the club, and it was promised that any and all offenders would be dealt with to the limit of punishment. Meanwhile President Heydler of the National League began an investigation of his own.

The Chicago newspaper men were slow in acting, the rumors of crooked baseball continued and the Grand Jury action is the result. Officials of both major leagues are in hearty accord with the effort to settle the question and either prove or disprove the rumors.

LEHIGH VALLEY FINED $2,000

Pleads Nolo Contendere and Blames Clerk for Violation of Tariffs.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, through its counsel, Henry A. Wise, yesterday entered a plea of nolo contendere before Federal Judge Shephard to an indictment of three years' standing charging wilful failure to observe interstate tariffs, an alleged violation of the Elkins act of 1906.

The entry was opposed by Assistant United States District Attorney Julian Hartridge, but Mr. Wise explained that the offense had been committed by a minor clerk in the railroad's employ. This explanation was satisfactory to the court and the unusual plea was accepted. At first Judge Shephard was inclined to impose a fine of $2,500, but on learning that the failure was not due to the company's fault made the fine $2,000, which was paid.

The indictment charged that between May 1, 1916, and July 1, 1917, there had been overcharges made on carload shipments of hay destined for this city. The tariff rate for reconsignment of the car from Tenafly, N. J., was $2 per car, but it was alleged that in several instances the derelict clerk charged the consignee $5 a car.

Before imposing the fine Judge Shephard quashed two other indictments long standing against the railroad.

BRITISH COAL MINERS DECIDE ACTION TODAY

Conference with Government Fails to Bring Agreement and May Call Strike.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—No approach to a settlement of the coal situation was made at the meeting between Sir Robert Horne and the miners' executive totday, and tomorrow's conference of mining delegates will be asked to decide whether a strike shall take place or the Government's proposals shall be accepted.

For two and a half hours after the conference with Horne the miners' leaders remained in private consultation, but made no further request to see Horne and finally left the Board of Trade looking very grave.

There is a possibility that tomorrow's conference will not take it upon itself to reach a definite decision and there may be another ballot of miners. That the miners' leaders are having trouble with the men is evidenced by the action of the latter in South Wales and Lancashire, where resolutions were passed condemning the action of the leaders in abandoning the demand for a reduction in the price of coal. They point out that this is one of the demands they balloted for and that the leaders have no authority to set it aside.

77TH DIVISION DISPORTS.

"New York's Own" Holds Outing at Bear Mountain Park.

The first reunion of the Seventy-seventh Division since the units of "New York's Own" returned from France was held on Sunday afternoon at Bear Mountain Park. The Steamer Pocohontas, carrying about 1,000 former members of the division and their families, sailed from the Battery early in the morning, returning late at night after a day of track and other field sports.

Amateur entertainers enlivened the trip and a band made up of former members and organized by Bandmaster John Fisher of the 305th Field Artillery furnished music. The trophy cup for the 100-yard dash was won by Durner, 305th Machine Gun Battalion; Durner also won the challenge cup for the 220-yard dash. The cup for the tug-of-war went to the 306th Infantry. The 308th also got the point trophy cup, having won twenty-two points. "Bill" Colgan, former Sergeant of the 306th Infantry and now a member of the Police Department, acted as starter for the races.

BRINGS $10,000,000 IN GOLD.

Lafayette Arrives with French Shipment for Payment of Loan.

The French liner Lafayette arrived last night from Havre with $10,000,000 in gold in her specie room, consigned to J. P. Morgan & Co., as part of the payment by France toward the Anglo-French loan due on Oct. 15. The $5,000,000 brought over on the Lorraine last week makes a total of $15,000,000 sent over from the Bank of France.

This is the largest shipment of gold sent over on any one steamship since the famous trip of the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie in August, 1914, when she had the same amount in gold bullion and $8,000,000 in silver. She turned back to America within 200 miles of the English Channel because Captain Charles Polak received a wireless message reading "Willy has appendicitis" and knew that the war had started.

The gold on the Lafayette was in ingots and packed in 245 heavily iron clamped wooden cases, which were guarded last night by members of the crew and the company's detectives because it could not be landed until today.

MARTENS CASE ADJOURNED.

Deportation Proceedings May Be Ended Oct. 5 at Washington.

Another hearing in the case of L. C. A. K. Martens, self-styled "Soviet Ambassador," was conducted yesterday on Ellis Island, and adjournment was taken until Oct. 5 at Washington.

The hearing was secret. One of the witnesses was Frank R. Stone, special agent of the Department of Justice in New Jersey. It was said that so far as the Attorney General's case was concerned the Government rested. The case will be considered closed unless Martens and his lawyers bring in further testimony which may require evidence in rebuttal.

Deputy Attorney General John B. Hoover summed up the case for the Government. He said afterward that he believed the case against Mr. Martens clearly showed that he was subject to deportation.

Charles Recht of counsel for Martens, said that most of the twenty-eight documents put into evidence by the Government yesterday were newspaper clippings. If any were found to contain new charges against Martens, he said, further testimony would be presented. He believed the case would be brought to an end on Oct. 5.

WOMEN AIDS HEAR MILLER.

Candidate Predicts Entire Elimination of Sex in Political Affairs.

The entrance of women into politics was welcomed by Nathan L. Miller, Republican nominee for Governor, yesterday in a speech to members of the Republican Women's State Executive Committee at their headquarters in the Hotel Vanderbilt. He said it was a matter of congratulation for both the Republican Party and the people of the State that the recently enfranchised women voters were showing an interest and said that suffrage for women is not merely a privilege but a duty.

"I look forward to the time when the question of sex will be entirely eliminated in political affairs," Mr. Miller said, "and persons will be elected to public office not because they are men or women, but because of their particular fitness."

Mr. Miller denied the contention of Democrats that they had been responsible for most of the social welfare and labor bills and said that, on the contrary, most of these had been passed by Republicans.

Among the several hundred women in the audience were seventy-five women from Rockland County, who were introduced to Mr. Miller by Miss Natalie Couch of Nyack, who predicted that that county would give him an unprecedented majority. Preceding the meeting a luncheon was held, at which Mrs. Miller was the guest of honor.

REPORTS ON WORK FOR WAR WOUNDED

War Department Announces Nearly All Are Now Under War Risk Bureau.

THOUSANDS WERE TREATED

Declares Treatment for Disabilities and Re-education for Jobs Were the Best.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Announcement was authorized at the War Department today that the work of the War Department in caring for the American soldier victims of the World War is practically finished.

The vast army of 4,000,000 has been demobilized, but many discharged soldiers still require hospital treatment, and many others will at some future time need treatment for conditions resulting from their military service. "The care of these discharged soldiers, however," the department declared in an official statement, "does not devolve upon the War Department, but by law is placed in the hands of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, which is a branch of the Treasury Department. This Bureau maintains numerous Government hospitals throughout the country for the care of former service men, some of these institutions having been taken over by the United States Public Health Service from the army when they were no longer needed for military purposes."

The Bureau of War Risk Insurance, it was explained, also cares for many veterans in civil hospitals throughout the country.

"The fact that the War Department is not responsible for the care of discharged soldiers" the department declares, "is not generally appreciated by the public and much correspondence regarding the hospital treatment of individual discharged soldiers is received by the Surgeon General of the army. All communications with respect to the treatment or medical care of men who have been discharged from the army should be directed to the Director of War Risk Insurance in Washington."

Reports on Work Done.

In connection with its announcement that the War Department has practically finished its part of the task of caring for these victims of the World War, the department today, for the first time, in an officially prepared statement, presented to the country a detailed statement as to what has been done.

"A year and a half ago," this official statement read, "this country was deeply moved by the spectacle of streams of wounded soldiers returning from overseas to the military hospitals in the United States. To the mass of humanity crippled as a result of shell and bullets were added many others disabled by disease or ordinary accidents in this country and abroad. The primary duty of caring for these men [and women, for some nurses were similarly situated] developed upon the War Department, and was carried out by its medical department, in a great chain of vast general and base hospitals scattered over the country and so located that each individual could be treated comparatively near to his home.

"After the soldier had been restored as far as practicable to normal condition he was discharged from the military service and provision was made by Congress that compensation for existing disability and any further treatment that he might need should be furnished by the Bureau of War Risk Insurance.

"The military hospitals constructed by the army for the care of its sick and wounded were vast institutions ranging from 1,000 to 4,000 beds each, many of them being far larger than any existing civil hospitals in this country. They carried out the usual types of hospital treatment, were equipped with the most up-to-date appliances and were provided with a high-grade personnel, including many of the best specialists in the United States. About the time of the armistice the medical department instituted what was called a "reconstruction service." Physical reconstruction, as applied to military hospitals, may be defined as the 'continued treatment,' carried to the fullest degree of maximum physical and functional restoration consistent with the nature of the disability of the sick or injured soldier, by the employment of all known measures of modern medical and surgical management, including physiotherapy (thermo-, electro-hydro- and mechano-therapy, massage, calisthenics, gymnastics, military drill and the like), curative metal and manual work (in wards, shops, schools, gardens and fields) and sports and games in and out of doors.

"While conceived with a view to rehabilitating the wounded, reconstruction activities were promptly broadened so that all military personnel became entitled to such benefits, whether suffering from the effects of injury or disease. In addition vocational education courses were provided in the hospitals with a view to occupying the minds of the inmates and giving them a start in the lines of work they might take up under the Federal Board of Vocational Education after discharge from the army.

Specialized in Particular Lines.

"Certain military hospitals specialized in particular lines of reconstruction work, some for medical cases, some for bone surgery, some for amputations, some for the blind, some for speech defects, some for facial injuries.

"In the carrying out of the hospitalization plans of the War Department the reconstruction service especially has come in for a large share of praise. Physicians and surgeons who were specialists in these lines were in charge. Male and female technicians, skilled in the numerous arts and crafts, were secured as assistants for this highly specialized work.

"This work was divided into two sections, occupational therapy and physiotherapy. The occupational work included the following features, and at its height employed the number of aids indicated after each feature:

"Work with textiles (knitting, weaving, &c.)—1,090.

"Reed, cane and fibre work—683.

"Woodworking (carving, &c.)—254.

"Leather work, cardboard and binding—500.

"Applied and fine arts—94.

"Metal work—29.

"Work in plastic materials—41.

"Jewelry—345.

"Mechanical drawing—26.

"Unclassified—362.

"Total handicrafts—3,724.

"The War Department, realizing that the cessation of the war activities of the Red Cross would be fraught with some hardships for the patients who on account of their infirmities were unable to leave the hospital, arranged to take over all Red Cross work. At present moving picture shows, amateur and professional theatrical performances, boxing bouts and other amusements are provided, just as they were in days when war interest was at its highest pitch.

"In order that patients in army hospitals may continue to have professional care of the highest possible standard, the War Department has undertaken to develop specialists in all lines of medical work. A large number of army physicians who have shown interest and ability along special lines have been and are still being sent to post graduate schools to pursue courses in the subjects in which they give greatest promise of development. Even the tuition of those pursuing those courses is paid by the Government, and in this way the War Department is assured of having at all times an abundant supply of specialists for all conditions.

"During the month of April, 1919, there were 80,640 soldier patients undergoing treatment in the large army general hospitals, and of this number 28,560, or 43 per cent., were receiving the benefits of reconstruction treatment. By December this number had fallen to 17,950, of whom 11,875, or 66 per cent., were undergoing reconstruction. In July, 1920, 6,751 remained, and of these 4,808, or 71 per cent., were undergoing reconstruction. In September, 1920, the latest figures, only 3,029 enlisted men and 457 officers remained under treatment in the army general hospitals. Of the enlisted men, only 1,116, and of the officers 180, were overseas patients."

What is the Country's Condition?

Industrial? Agricultural? Financial? Political?

HERE are the answers to 32 fundamental questions every business man is asking to-day. The Hon. Franklin K. Lane, former Secretary of the Interior, who examined this data, has written: "I have never before seen so interesting a picture of the condition of the entire country as that presented in the analysis of the telegraphic replies to the comprehensive questionnaire issued by the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland. It is valuable particularly because of the character of the men who have made the investigation and its wide extent into all parts of the country."

Why this data was gathered

The Board of Directors of the Fidelity and Deposit Company desired for consideration at its meeting September 20, 1920, the latest and most authentic information as to fundamental conditions and attitudes of mind affecting the welfare of the country in four respects—industrial, agricultural, financial and political. Realizing the value of this knowledge to all thinking men and women, the Company, in line with its desire to SERVE, prints a digest of this information here.

How it was procured

To procure this information reliably, the Fidelity and Deposit Company submitted these 32 questions to 900 representatives, especially selected with regard to geographical distribution from its Field Service of 7000 Representatives. These 900 business men were instructed to interview at once bankers, merchants and professional men, farmers, industrial leaders, and also the Chambers of Commerce in their territories, and to telegraph the Company a consensus of all the views gathered. These telegrams were then analyzed and the results tabulated on September 15, 1920. The final answers therefore reflect many thousands of the best minds of the nation and geographically represent every part of the Union.

A word of explanation

As majority opinions and majority conditions do not always run the same in different parts of the country, the Fidelity and Deposit Company has divided this information under nine geographical heads. It is felt that this adds both value and interest to the replies.

Hon. Franklin K. Lane's interpretation

The full text of Mr. Lane's interpretation of these conditions, together with the analysis here presented, may be had on application to the Fidelity and Deposit Company at Baltimore.

MILLERAND ASCENDS.

Mr. MILLERAND has now definitely agreed to become a candidate for the Presidency of the French Republic, and by so doing has made it pretty certain that he will be the only candidate—at least, the only one to be seriously considered. A correspondent of The Evening Post, writing from Paris on Sunday, had observed that the "Presidential campaign" in France had so far consisted only of MILLERAND'S campaign to escape the honor which everybody else insisted on forcing upon him—the most fervent being those who would have had the best chance for the Presidency if he should refuse. Now his reluctance has been overcome, and once more there is talk of the stupidity of wasting a strong man who had been a successful Premier in the Presidency. Along with this there are, of course, predictions that MILLERAND will not be an inactive President, and that the office, when he holds it, will acquire a new character.

These same predictions were made and these same lamentations expressed when POINCARE was raised from Premier to President nearly eight years ago. Whether POINCARE was "wasted" in the Presidency is a matter of opinion. Certainly he took no such great part in the conduct of the Government as had been predicted, although he was pretty active in foreign affairs during the latter part of the war. In at least one case, the dickerings with Austria through Prince SIXTUS, POINCARE seems to have come dangerously near getting France deeply involved before he told the Cabinet anything about what was going on; and his influential position gave a powerful support to such impracticable and unfortunate policies as the demand for the frontier of 1814.

Whether Mr. MILLERAND will be so active we do not know. He has lately had some pieces of luck, and some rewards of persistence, which have given him a favorable position in the eyes of Parliament. His Polish policy was justified by the event; as a correspondent of The London Times lately observed, WEYGAND in Warsaw did the best electioneering for MILLERAND. The Geneva conference with the Germans, to which Frenchmen had looked forward with some uneasiness, was called off, and by reason of Italy's difficulties MILLERAND was able to get at least the formal support of GIOLITTI at a cheap price. Franco-Italian accord, like Anglo-French accord, is probably more solid in show than in fact. Perhaps MILLERAND will be glad to withdraw to a situation of dignified disinterestedness and leave somebody else to discover the distinction between appearance and reality.

MORE "LITTLE ENTENTES."

The Latvian Foreign Minister takes advantage of the presence in Riga of a considerable number of newspaper men from all parts of the world, sent there for the Polish-Russian peace conference, to suggest that the Baltic States are soon to come together in some sort of alliance to guard against the common danger from Russia and from Germany. This is a hope long cherished and often disappointed. As long ago as February, 1918, it was being put forward, but unfortunately for the most part by refugees in Stockholm. After Finland, Esthonia, Latvia and Lithuania won their independence local jealousies were too strong to permit much co-operation.

But there are signs that the unreasoning sort of nationalism, which has made so much trouble in Europe since the more formidable, though not less unreasoning, nationalism of Germany was thwarted, is dying down. Men are finding throughout Eastern Europe that war is a pastime of which one may tire, and that it is perhaps more profitable to eat than to fight, even if it means that you are willing to let your neighbor eat also. The "Little Entente" of the Czechoslovaks, Rumanians and Jugoslavs was a good sign, and most notably because it showed that the smaller nations were not only breaking away from domination by the politics of the great Powers, but are willing to sink some of their own differences for mutual profit. If French statesmen had been as competent as French Generals, France would have supported that policy instead of hampering it. One may hope that British and French interests will see the wisdom of letting the Baltic States follow those of the Danube into a road that leads to peace and co-operation.

NO ASIATIC PEANUTS!

Senator POINDEXTER issued yesterday a weighty and timely protest against the neglect of the tariff issue in the present campaign. He is evidently not content with Mr. HARDING'S cautious declaration in favor of protective duties on lemons. Senator POINDEXTER takes a broader view. He sees the need of throwing the mantle of protection around peanuts also. He rightly states that the South both needs and wants this. Even while he was writing his statement, a wail of anxiety and distress came from The Atlanta Constitution. It recorded the horrible fact that there had been an "abnormal importation of peanuts" during the last fiscal year. And what was the fatal consequence? Why, that there had been a "heavy decline" in the prices of Georgia peanuts. And but one inference can be drawn: "There should be a protective duty on these products, produced at low standards of living."

It is too much to ask a 100 per cent. American to be patient when he sees the noble Georgia peanut forced to compete with the pauper-grown peanut of Manchuria. And then there is the soya bean, which the Chinese are planting with fiendish industry, and the oil from which is displacing in our markets the pure and native streams of peanut oil. Here is a mighty campaign issue which the Republicans have unaccountably overlooked. Senator POINDEXTER recalls them to their senses. He sees "the importance of electing Republicans to the United States Senate." The way to do it is to come out strong for a high tariff. Republican Senators would not have a mind above peanuts. They would ask, with powerful logic, "Of what use is it to shut out the Chinaman if you let in his peanuts?" And think of the taking campaign cries which the Republicans are losing by keeping so still about the tariff. No Sicilian lemons! No Asiatic peanuts! If such appeals would not sweep the party of intelligence into power, what could?

THE PLAGUE MENACE.

Surgeon General CUMMINGS again warns the country that it must protect itself by stringent sanitary measures against the post-war plagues of the Near East and Europe. He thinks that the United States is in grave danger, because "seven million people" (he is quoted as saying) "are trying to get here" from Asia Minor, the Black Sea district of Russia and other parts of Eastern Europe where the bubonic plague, typhus and smallpox are raging. Perhaps as many people hope to reach America to escape from famine, pestilence and misgovernment, but they will have to reckon with the proper enforcement of our immigration laws. It was estimated in July that 300,000 aliens would arrive at the Port of New York in the first eight months of the year. Before the war half that number sometimes came in a single month. With amended immigration laws and vigilance in dealing with plague conditions there is no danger that "millions" of refugees and undesirables will be admitted. At the same time it must be considered that the shiploads of a single week might bring in the germs of deadly infection. It becomes necessary for Boards of Health and port officers to be constantly on their guard with all the resources at their command.

Bubonic plague was reported at Pensacola, New Orleans and Galveston early in the Summer. At Vera Cruz, with which the United States does considerable business in the course of a year, the plague was checked by the use of serum furnished by the American hospital authorities, but several scores of persons died. It is to be noted, however, that the percentage of fatalities was not high; indeed, the bubonic that appeared in the Mexican seaport was described as of a mild type. During the Summer patients have died in the South and Southwest, but there seems to have been no approach to an epidemic. Conditions were not nearly so bad as at Vera Cruz. Our authorities were forewarned and were better prepared to stamp out the infection. Galveston made ruthless war upon the rat, which often carries about with it the infecting flea. From the rat, when dead, the parasite goes to any one who happens to be on shipboard. Hence the need of rigid fumigation and other preventive measures when an immigrant ship arrives in port; also, no rats must be allowed to find their way ashore. If the health authorities of New York are alert and take systematic precautions there will be comparatively little danger of the vermin making a landing. Every hawser hole is supposed to be protected by a covering that makes the passage of a rat impossible. However, there is no such thing as absolute thoroughness in enforcing regulations, and it therefore behooves everybody to lend the guardians of the public a hand.

Bubonic plague seems to be more insidious than typhus and smallpox; at least, that is the general impression. As a matter of fact, it is probably more difficult to check typhus. Surgeon General CUMMINGS says that "it is high time that the people and the Government awoke to a realization of the fact that Europe's plagues will obtain a foothold here before many months go by unless we keep close watch upon all immigrants newly arrived in this country." He urges that every citizen hold himself responsible for reporting suspicious cases of illness. The citizen can do more than that; he should make it his concern to help to exterminate the rats wherever found. Every community should begin a war upon this pestilence-bearing animal, which in all ages has been one of the most terrible enemies of the human race. No rats, no bubonic plague; or, at the worst, sporadic cases that may not be dangerous.

FABIAN STRATEGY IN ITALY.

Indications multiply that Syndicalism in Italy is shifting from the Russian to the Guild precept, abandoning the dictatorship of the proletariat for the "Fabian" idea. A week ago Signor BALDESI said: "The middle class which works and produces has nothing to fear from us," and presaged an application of the same principles that have begun to be accepted in England." Now the Stampa, a stanch supporter of GIOLITTI, gives highly significant details as to the committee which the Premier is to appoint for the purpose of submitting to Parliament a proposal as to the "democratization" of Italian industry. Of the twelve members, six are to be appointed by the masters and six by the men; but each sextet is to contain two members representing the technical and managerial element in industry. In brief, the middle class of brain workers, which the labor movement has in the main ignored and which the Bolsheviki have enslaved, is to receive the balance of power—four votes in a committee of twelve.

The fact marks an important step in trying to rationalize Syndicalism—and, incidentally, in showing up its essential unreason and impossibility. But it has an even more striking political importance. Not only the Guildsmen are Fabian. The "concrete proposals" of GIOLITTI'S committee of workmen, owners and brain workers are to determine "the participation of workmen in the technical, financial and disciplinary management of factories." That will unquestionably prove a hard nut to crack, and of all the members of the committee none are more likely to realize the difficulty than the men of technical training and managerial experience. Democracy implies voting; successful democracy implies voting intelligently. But how are the workmen to cope effectively with technical and financial problems? The old question as to irresistible forces and immovable objects fades in comparison as a fountain head of debate. Meantime the committee, first of all, is to arrange terms upon which the factories from which the owners and managerial forces are at present locked out may resume work on the normal basis. While the committee cogitates and the Chamber of Deputies disputes, the wheels of industry will be turning. As Fabians the English are mere amateurs. QUINTUS FABIUS MAXIMUS, VERUCCOSUS, the original Cunctator or Delayer, was an Italian. Only he and his countrymen are able to deal triumphantly with such problems as D'ANNUNZIO and Bolshevism.

In the program as outlined there remains the head of "discipline." Broadly interpreted, it covers many matters of moment in which workmen may well have a say. In all countries, excepting only Russia, there is a marked tendency to refer the more personal and human problems to the judgment of the men, who know them best and are most intimately affected by them. More than this, there is a tendency to admit the men, through delegates whom they elect, into a definite relationship with the higher councils of the establishment. Signor BALDESI referred hopefully to experiments along these lines which have taken place in the United States, and which in many cases have raised the morale of the workmen. It is possible, and much to be desired, that out of the turmoil in Italy will come new light and leading as to the humanizing of labor—a very different thing from its so-called "democratization."

A BISHOP ON MURDER.

The Bishop of Cork recently sent a long letter to The London Times urging the release of the Lord Mayor of his city. Some of his incidental views are instructive—instructive, that is, regarding the Irish state of mind. Bishop COHALAN is distressed over lawlessness in Ireland. But he places the blame almost wholly on the Government. There was the case of Colonel SMITH. He was reported to have made a speech favoring stringent repression of Sinn Fein. For this he was shot and killed in a cowardly manner. But, argues the Bishop, "undoubtedly the Irish Government is responsible for his murder, by retaining him in his office after that "deplorable speech." This sounds like queer reasoning, whether from a lay or an episcopal source, but it is in this way that the whole South of Ireland reasons today.

Bishop COHALIN admits that there have been "many murders of policemen in Ireland." He points out that they have been "condemned by the Catholic hierarchy." He adds: "On a recent occasion when a policeman was murdered in the porch of a church I myself inflicted the canonical punishment of 'interdict' from the Church' on the criminals." From this it would appear that the Bishop knew who the criminals were. But did he do anything to hand them over to civil justice? Apparently not. Yet he deplores the breakdown of the criminal courts in Ireland.

IDEAS AND BANKRUPTCY.

Speaking in the guise of a friend, HENRY ARTHUR JONES girds at the English "repertory" theatres for their devotion to plays "that have survived the test of artistic integrity" and declares that "freakishness, perversity, eccentricity, the diffusion of 'ideas' are poor stock in trade for a theatre, and soon lead to bankruptcy." He congratulates SHAKESPEARE on having "avoided being a social reformer," and quotes GOETHE to the effect that "SHAKESPEARE and MOLIERE wished above all things to make money by their theatres."

SHAKESPEARE avoided social reform for precisely the same reason that he avoided lighting his theatre with electricity. Countless passages, notably from the lips of Hamlet and King Lear, show that he was keenly alive to social injustice. MOLIERE was the originator and is still the great exponent of the comedy of social reform, from whom EUGENE BRIEUX is lineally descended. And who is the author of the second part of "Faust" that he should be cited against the play of ideas? All three were practical managers and knew that in the long run no theatre can succeed that does not keep in touch with the public; but if they had "avoided" the growing conscience of mankind and banned "ideas" they would not have been SHAKESPEARE, MOLIERE and GOETHE. Mr. JONES scouts the phrase "artistic integrity" and commends it to Mr. AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN for inclusion in the list of words which the Chancellor of the Exchequer lately proposed to tax out of existence. It might be enough to amend the phrase. Those only are great dramas the artistic integrity of which survives the test of the popular theatre.

As for our so-called repertory theatres, their sufficient defense is that in the rival field of popular drama no one has been discovered who is able to supply drama which is at once artistic and prevailingly acceptable to the public. In the West End, as in Broadway, there is no Shakespeare, no Molière, no Goethe. So "the Pentonville omnibus school of drama" does its best. Much of its product is freakish, perverse, eccentric; yet time and again it has produced plays, otherwise hopeless, which the commercial managers themselves have ultimately welcomed. BERNARD SHAW is the most distinguished alumnus of the Pentonville omnibus school. The Abbey Theatre and the Manchester players have a distinguished roll. Our own Washington Square Players and Theatre Guild have added to the gayety of the nation—and to its ideas.

Mr. JONES especially addresses himself to the Birmingham Theatre, which gave us "Abraham Lincoln." "This success," he alleges, "was due to the lucky discovery by the British public that ABRAHAM LINCOLN was very much like President WILSON and equally deserved a boom. In the same way TENNYSON, with equal keenness of insight, discovered that the Prince Consort was very much like King ARTHUR." But what the American public chiefly discovered, and presumably the British public likewise, was that for once the repertory theatre had produced a big, upstanding drama.

ORIGIN OF THE PORCH CAMPAIGN.

Just as Mr. HARDING is getting ready to leave his portico, a visiting California clergyman at Marion finds a scriptural source for the front porch campaign. "Diligent search of the New Testament will show," he says, "that the front porch campaign originated with the Apostle PAUL, who spent two years in Rome in a sort of front porch campaign, receiving pilgrimages and writing letters to those who were unable to go to Rome." Earlier origins might have been found in the classic philosophical schools. The Stoics, for example, were porchmen. Still, the Californian suggestion is interesting and may have arisen from the fact that Mr. HARDING'S middle name is the name of ST. PAUL'S law professor.

PAUL'S earlier name of SAUL, in Greek SAULOS, a "straddler," was an "unfortunate" name, some of the biographers say, but how apposite in Marion! SAUL, too, was a reactionary, a hunker. But let us come to PAUL and Rome. "And when we came to Rome," the last chapter of The Acts tell us, "the Centurion delivered the prisoners to the Captain of the guard; but PAUL was suffered to dwell by himself with a soldier that kept him." He lived in a hired house, but otherwise the analogy between his position and Mr. HARDING'S is curiously perfect. He dwells in his own house under guard of the Old Romans of the Senate. There he makes speeches to various delegations, just as PAUL wrote letters to the Philippians, the Colossians, the Ephesians and to PHILEMON. Many passages in PAUL'S Roman letters must be comforting to Mr. HARDING.

As each day he tries to calculate what his position on the League of Nations is as compared with what it was yesterday or a week or a month ago, how strengthening it must be to read in Ephesians:

That we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive.

As he sighs over the differences between Mr. TAFT and Mr. WICKERSHAM on the one side and Mr. JOHNSON and Mr. BORAH on the other, how pleasant to find these texts in Philippians:

Fulfill ye my joy, that ye be like minded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind.

Do all things without murmurings and disputings.

Let us walk by the same rule, let us mind the same thing.

"Ye have put off the old man with his deeds," says Colossians. Does that stir in Mr. HARDING'S brain a picture of Mr. LODGE or Mr. PENROSE? "And your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace." Does that verse from Ephesians incite Mr. HARDING to new arguments against the League of Nations? No matter what the ancestry of porch campaigns, was not this man PAUL a friend of "supergovernment"? Moreover, under the teachings of ST. PAUL, Christianity broadened from a reformed Judaism to a universal religion. To a friend of national isolation and severely local "Americanism," may there not be a certain distressing "internationalism" in ST. PAUL'S life and doctrines? At any rate, whether for parallel or contrast, the comparison is curious.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Woman's Wise Adviser.

Usually suave, always tactful and not infrequently wise, none of the suffrage leaders was better qualified than Mrs. CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT to give the women voters of the country good advice in regard to the way they should exercise their new powers—whether as members of the old parties, that is, or by continuing as a permanent political organization a combination under which they fought for enfranchisement. Being wise as well as suave, of course Mrs. CATT sees only one course as proper—she tells all those who value her judgment—and others, if there are any—that the thing for the women to do is to enter at once the party which meets, or comes nearest to meeting, their approval.

For segregation, for flocking alone, she sees neither reason nor excuse, and presumably she sees, though she does not say so, that separation would have many ill effects, some of them harmful for women as well as men. Knowing as she does that there is not the slightest danger of any considerable number of women making this mistake, with its inevitable creation of sex antagonisms, Mrs. CATT prefers to attack a real problem—to answer the question raised by the claims now coming from both the Democratic and the Republican Parties, of having brought about the triumph of the suffrage cause and therefore of having earned the favor and votes of the women in grateful payment of a heavy debt.

Relation of Gratitude to Politics.

In considering whether or not women are under an obligation to one or the other of the two old parties, Mrs. CATT, for once, makes, at least by implication, an unnecessary admission. What she thus admits is that if one or the other of these parties had been an unwavering and efficient friend of woman suffrage through all the years while the suffragists were fighting for their political lives, and if the other party had been constantly and unanimously hostile, then the question would have answered itself—gratitude would have driven the women into the camp of their friends.

But even if the conditions had been as described, this conclusion would not have been unavoidable—it would have been the reverse of either right or logical. Mrs. CATT evades the issue by saying—quite truly—that neither party has a record entirely white or entirely black from the suffrage point of view. In both there were men who, as she puts it, worked heroically for the full enfranchisement of women, and in both there were other men who fought against it implacably from the beginning to the end of the struggle. The women, therefore, are free, Mrs. CATT declares, to choose as they please—to divide their votes exactly as the men do, in accordance with their individual preferences and principles.

The conclusion is correct, but the basis of it is unsound. In theory, and in practice as it can be avowed, a political party's acts have for motive the promotion of the general welfare. If successful in doing this it earns recognition, admiration and support, but not gratitude in the sense of imposing on any group of voters a debt to be paid. This is true, just as it is true that a man elected to office is not in the position of a debtor to those who worked to put him there, for, again in theory and in avowable practice, they did not elect him for his own benefit, but for theirs, as a part of the electorate, and therefore he owes them nothing.

This is why political ingratitude has been defined as a virtue by those who do not see that gratitude is not involved.

Justice Is Proved Impartial.

Among the arrivals at Sing Sing Prison on Saturday was a man whose presence there through all the days of his sentence will be a refutation of the familiar charge that there is one law for the rich and another for the poor—that with money and influence punishment for crime can be escaped.

Dr. JULIUS HAMMER, the new prisoner referred to, had both money and influence—something like a million, according to plausible report, and the support, countenance and actively offered aid of enough professional colleagues to make a strong impression on the minds of all to whom the facts in the case were not known.

All that the money and the influence accomplished for him was to lengthen somewhat a trial that otherwise probably would have been a short one. The verdict was guilty, the verdict stood and the criminal is behind the bars, certainly for three and a half years and perhaps for the better part of fifteen.

The evidence against Dr. HAMMER was clear, his condemnation fully deserved, and his punishment errs, if at all, on the side of lenience, not of severity.

More disquieting than the revelation of the existence of a black sheep in the medical flock is the fact that in the effort to save their unworthy associate other members of that flock in amazing numbers publicly declared that if Dr. HAMMER went to prison for what he did, other doctors, for fear of following him, would have to let certain patients die. In that plea there was not a word of truth, and if every one of the protesting doctors did not know it they were strangely ignorant of the Medical Practice act. There is nothing in the statutes of the State that penalizes any operation the object of which is to save life. The only requirement is that the motive be demonstrable—usually to one or more colleagues called in consultation—and that the conditions are those demanded in reputable practice.

MR. HUGHES'S POSITION.

Would Encourage Wars of Aggression by Repudiating Article X.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your discussion of Mr. Hughes's attack on the League in this morning's issue is a capital summary of the ten preventives of war provided by the covenant, outside of Article X.

It would be unfortunate, however, if any of your readers should receive the impression that, given these features of the covenant, it becomes a matter of relatively small importance whether the still more efficacious preventive provided by Article X. itself should be retained.

Mr. Hughes's argument, carried through, comes down to this: That in his judgment the political map of the world as at present constituted embodies injustices so flagrant that they need be remedied by wars of aggression—wars that we should permit to get started, and even sympathize with, should all means of conciliation or postponement fail—wars into which, as experience shows, we are ourselves liable to be eventually drawn, and on a much larger scale than would be needed merely to prevent them. Article X. contemplates the authorization by Congress of whatever means are necessary to keep these wars from starting—doubtless even the actual use of force, to the limited extent that would be required should the mere threat of using our military power be insufficient.

Mr. Hughes prefers that the good work of waging aggressive war, for the purpose of altering political boundaries, should go on, even though it should lead to the sacrifice of 60,000 American lives and the dislocation of our entire economic system.

Do we agree with him?

Q.

New York, Sept. 19, 1920.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As you intimate, it is not to be doubted that Justice Hughes is thoroughly familiar with the doctrine that contracts must be considered as a whole, and not piecemeal. It is also beyond question that he is not less familiar with the formula that any contract is as vicious in its entirety as in its most vicious essential clause—provided there is such a clause. Strangely enough, THE TIMES in its editorial article this morning fails to defend, directly or indirectly, that vicious clause of the covenant of the Wilson League of Nations for attacking which it takes Justice Hughes severely to task.

Quite true, all the various methods of avoiding the outbreak of war mentioned by THE TIMES will be availed of to a greater or less degree before resort to the sword is made; but where is the assurance—where even the probability—that these preliminary steps will not all fail? Events moved with startling rapidity in 1914—shall we blindly and foolishly assume that events may not ever move as swiftly again? Has human nature been so refined by the experiences of the war that national greed and disregard of the rights of others will never again dictate the policy of a nation? The Russian situation—not to mention other important evidence—would seem to answer that query most emphatically in the negative.

Admittedly, President Wilson has been actuated by high ideals in his quest of the world-old dream of the "Brotherhood of Man—the Federation of the World." It is not in the least necessary to question his motives or the intelligence of his application to the problem he has attempted to solve, in order to question seriously the wisdom of the solution he has so urgently advocated. It is, however, highly necessary to analyze his treatment of the problem and to visualize the possible effects of his proposal upon the future of our nation, as has been and is being done, if we would avoid what might prove to be the making of an irretrievable error in national policy. In the writer's opinion, in his proposals the President has singularly overlooked one most important element in all human engagements—the frailty of human nature, collectively and individually. "Trading support" for the furthering of selfish interests has become one of the most mischievous of all the elements of our national politics, and the proposed covenant of the League of Nations makes not only possible, but inevitable, if full force is given to its pernicious tendencies, trading of this nature not limited by the boundaries of any nation or any continent. It seems to the writer that we saw enough of that sort of thing during the Peace Conference, without deliberately entering into a pact which promises to both extend and perpetuate it.

In the mind of the writer the question put by THE TIMES in its editorial above referred to finds its answer in the foregoing comments—the clauses of the covenant cited by the editor are insignificant in comparison with the fatal defect of the clause so ably attacked by Justice Hughes, which, according to the President himself, is the crux of the whole covenant.

WHEN FALL BEGINS.

All Summer long
My world was wrapped away
In leafy folds of living green.
Which way you looked no house was seen,
No glimpse of curving gray
Where winds the road.

The valley seemed a well
Of seething green and depth untold,
Where sunbeams sunk their shafts of gold;
And not a bird would tell
What day below!

Now thinning boughs
Reveal a hidden wall—
A peering chimney-top—a roof;
No longer can I live aloof;
My neighbor's nearness calls,
And I must heed.

Through bronzing boughs
The chill white mists arise,
And soon from every chimney-throat
The smoke from evening hearths will float—
And I will turn my eyes
To watch the road.

MRS. BASS PRESENTS DEMOCRACY'S CLAIMS

Declares Her Party Deserves Most Support Because of Its Deeds and Pledges.

PLEA BY MISS MARBURY

Says Women Are Taking Their Duties Seriously—Holds Republicans Reactionary.

By WILLIAM H. CRAWFORD.

Women are in politics, and the question arises what are they going to do about it? How will they influence the old political parties? Will they become the political masters, and, if so, will it be to the country's advantage? Moreover, all are anxious to know with which party most of them will affiliate. These questions were put to four women in political life—two Democrats and two Republicans. Herewith are presented the opinions of Mrs. George Bass, Chairman of the Women's Bureau of the Democratic National Committee, and Miss Elisabeth Marbury, New York State Chairman. The views of the two Republican women will be given later.

Mrs. Bass said:

"At the Republican National Convention in Chicago last June twenty-seven women sat as delegates and a slightly larger number as alternates. They were a small sprinkling in the dense mass of men. Their presence was almost undistinguishable, their influence proved almost negligible.

"At the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco, a fortnight later, nearly 400 women were officially connected with the conduct and the deliberations of the party. There were 96 women delegates and 202 alternates; many of the fifty National Committeewomen were present; State Chairmen were there in considerable numbers; there were officers and committee chairmen of the Women's Bureau of the Democratic National Committee and the women members of the Executive Committee. On that, the most important body in the party organization, women had equal representation with men, seventeen serving.

Women Noticeable on the Floor.

"Thus on the floor of the Democratic National Convention women were noticeably present; they were prominent upon the officers' dais. For the first time in the history of the country a woman presided over a session of a great national party's convention when the Chairman of the Women's Bureau received the gavel from Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the permanent Chairman, and for one hour took his place.

"This steadily developing spirit of hospitality toward women is not talk—it is backed by performance when it comes to a matter of issues. Instead of a 'No Thoroughfare' sign posted conspicuously along the very road women want to travel through their training in civics and suffrage, the Democratic Party platform contains the progressive movements which women 'long have sought, and mourned because they found them not.'

"Liberal-minded women banded into the League of Women Voters presented planks to the Resolutions Committees of the political parties. The Republican Party's committee, headed by Senator Watson of Indiana, received the delegation led by Maude Wood Park, Chairman, who opened the hearing. Many Republican women spoke in behalf of the questions pertaining to the welfare of women and children, such as Mary Garrett Hay, Mrs. Richard E. Edwards, Indiana, Mrs. F. Louis Slade, New York, and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, but the Republicans turned down exactly one-half the proposals. The identical resolutions were presented to the Democrats in San Francisco and the makers of the platform included in their declaration of Democratic principles every measure for which the women strove, with the single exception of that one calling for the Federal Department of Education, a fact stressed at that time by Mrs. Park in the public prints.

"There is no shadow of doubt as to where Governor Cox stands and has stood on the suffrage question. In 1916, at the St. Louis convention, he announced himself in favor of a Federal Suffrage amendment and there has never been any evasion or withdrawal from this declaration.

"Which party has given a greater honor to women by giving them the greater opportunity for party responsibility and party service? Which one has most liberally written into its declaration of principles the desires of the liberal women of America? To which party, then, must the self-respecting women of the nation pledge their allegiance?

Democratic Pledges to Women.

"This is what the Democratic Party pledges to women:

"Equal pay for equal work; the abolition of the worse forms of child labor; the establishment of a school age limit which would insure a fair amount of education to all the young people of the country; the maintenance of 'carry on' schools for the use of children who were obliged to leave school before the age of eighteen; a minimum wage for working women; the continuation and the development of the Women In Industry Bureau established during the war; a system of co-operation between the Federal Government and the States in maternity and infancy care according to the best standards yet developed; the creation of a Federal Department of Education, its head to be a member of the Cabinet, and the application to women of the Federal Civil Service laws.

"The Administration has lived up to the promises of the Democratic Party. During the war, when women were employed in larger numbers than ever before, special care was exercised for their moral and physical protection. To provide the utmost assistance to the women employed in railroad work, their ability being more or less problematical, William Gibbs McAdoo, then Secretary of the Treasury and Director General of Railroads, created a Women's Service Section of the Division of Labor, with Miss Pauline Goldmark as manager.

"'The rule for equal pay for equal work was scrupulously followed,' said Miss Goldmark in her report, 'women sharing in all wage increases allowed to the various classes of railroad employes. Since the war the eight-hour day has been increasingly put into effect in all railroad occupations in which women are employed. The improvement of working conditions has been marked. Rest rooms have been helpful and many provisions have been made for the comfort of employes.'

"During this Administration the Department of Labor established the Women in Industry Service, July 1, 1918, which has developed into a permanent Woman's Bureau. It has formulated standards for the employment of women in industry, studied and charted labor laws affecting women in all States, made surveys of occupations in which women are employed, prepared for circulation and use throughout the country for educational purposes sets of exhibits contrasting desirable and undesirable conditions, and conducted an educational campaign for equal opportunity in industry, freedom of choice of occupation and equal pay for work of the same or corresponding skill with work done by men.

"During the last seven years the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor has reached out to the most remote villages and hamlets to aid the citizens of tomorrow.

"The greatest honor in the Department of Justice that has fallen to a woman is that of appointment as one of the eight Assistant Attorneys General of the United States, with a salary of $7,500, of Mrs. Annette Abbott Adams, a native daughter of California.

"Early in his Administration, President Wilson appointed Mrs. J. Borden Harriman a member of the Industrial Commission established in the last days of the Taft Administration; on his latest Commission on Industrial Relations, which met in Washington in the Autumn of 1919, three women were appointed by the President.

"And so one might go on with the magnificent story of the part in public affairs which the Democrats offer women.

"Now, which party do you think they will choose?"

Views of Miss Marbury.

Miss Marbury gave her views as follows:

"Women are taking politics very seriously. They are bringing a personal sense of responsibility into the equation which, in its intensiveness, has hitherto been unknown. The battle for suffrage was a great training camp. The knowledge of how a victory was won inspires any fighting force to fearless confidence. While men have been patting themselves on the back for their masculine magnanimity, women have been reviewing the situation with a profound certainty of their feminine potentiality. And while for the moment the prophecy of their power in the next fifty years has only taken the form of a humorous vaudeville sketch—of a flippant literary skit—nevertheless, in their innermost hearts the women recognize the verity of the prophecy and sit with their tongues in their cheeks as the men babble on in a kindly spirit of condescension.

"But there are still some few things lacking in our political equipment. We must cultivate within us a broader sense of humor. We must realize that the old order always changes if we give it sufficient time. We must admit—although in this the new woman dies very hard—that feminine wiles and ways are not always to be despised.

"Men are inordinately vain. This is merely the repetition of a historical fact. The length, breadth and shallowness of their vanity can never be overestimated. If a woman specializes with persistency upon any man, and brings to her job an ordinary amount of intelligence, it is merely a question of time before he becomes pulp in her little white hands.

"The system is as old as the hills, and its efficiency dates from the flood. I have always pictured Noah's wife sitting calmly and coolly by the waters, voicing her praise of Noah's skill, while he hectically sawed and hammered in preparing the ark which was to protect her from the flood. And the best of it all is that the men would not protect themselves from the inevitable, even if they knew what was in store for them. They enjoy the process—they revel in the pink lamp shade—they sink, even the most stalwart of them, into soft cushions with an ease that is beyond incasure. The longer they have been cave dwellers, the quicker they respond to the gentle influences. So I have come to the conclusion that even when the women do rule the earth the men will still think that they are the Lords of Creation.

"You ask what party the women will use to gain this coveted position? Both parties, of course. They will continue, as they have in the past, to play one party against the other. Seriously, however, I believe that the present attitude of the Democratic Party is more favorable to the women than that of the Republicans. That is why I am a Democrat. The Democrats have shown more appreciation of woman's rights and more willingness to concede them. The Republican Party leans toward reaction. It faces the past, it objects to changes and advancement.

"The Democrats are forward looking and progressive. They more readily adopt modern ideas, the principle one of which is the recognition of woman's new position in society. The records of the Republican voters in Congress and the recognition given by the Democratic Party in the National Convention and the position given to her in the campaign demonstrate this fact; therefore, I, together with the majority of the women who believe that they are entitled to an equal voice in the affairs of State, will vote the Democratic ticket."

BELGIAN RULERS WELCOMED

Rio Janeiro Gives Ovation to King Albert and Queen Elizabeth.

RIO JANEIRO, Brazil, Sept. 20.—Crowds of merrymakers marched through the streets last night in honor of King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, who landed here in the afternoon. All the thoroughfares were brilliantly illuminated, and conspicuous among the decorations were the colors of the Allies. An elaborate program of entertainment for the royal visitors, who are the first King and Queen ever to visit South America, began soon after their arrival.

The Uruguayan cruiser Uruguay met the battleship Sao Paulo with the King and Queen aboard off Cape Frio and fired a salute. She also sent a wireless dispatch welcoming King Albert, in the name of Uruguay, to South American waters. The King sent a fitting reply.

Unaccompanied by a guard of honor or other evidence of their royalty, King Albert and Queen Elizabeth, with President Pessoa and Senhora Pessoa, deviated from the official program at night by riding through the handsomely decorated and illuminated Avenida Rio Branco, which was crowded with people. The throng quickly recognized the visitors and they received an ovation.

This morning King Albert motored to the suburbs and entered the ocean for a half hour's swim.

Returning to Guanabara Palace, he received the Cabinet members, Congressmen and other Brazilian officials. This afternoon, accompanied by President Pessoa and the Ministers of Justice and the Interior, he attended a joint session of Congress in Monroe Palace, after which he visited the Supreme Court.

TRY MRS. BERGDOLL AS DRAFT BLOCKER

She and Son and Three Others Are Charged with Aiding Convicted Slackers.

SONS FLOUTED CAPTURE

Grover and Irwin Were in Philadelphia Two Years After Chase Began, Witness Testifies.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 20.—Testimony that Erwin and Grover Bergdoll, convicted draft dodgers, were together in this city in April, 1919, nearly two years after they were first sought by the military authorities, was given in the trial of their mother, Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll; their brother, Charles A. Braun; James E. Romig, Albert S. Mitchell and Henry Schuh on charges of consenting to aid them in the evasion of military service, which opened here today in the United States District Court.

Fitzhugh Lee Creedon, a twenty-two-year-old witness, told of being summoned to Erwin Bergdoll's home, at Broomall, near here, and invited to accompany him on a trip to the South. The next morning, April 24 or 25, 1919, he said, he went to Mrs. Bergdoll's home in this city, and, together with Romig, the former Magistrate, who acted as adviser to the family, he went in an automobile to Hagerstown, Md., with both Grover and Erwin.

Braun, the brother who changed his name because of the notoriety brought on the family by the escapades of his younger brother, was with Erwin and him the night before they left, according to the witness. They suggested that he go South with Erwin and that the latter start a chicken farm, Creedon said.

Creedon testified that he had known the Bergdolls for several years and had gone on several trips with them before they were called for military service.

Other witnesses were called by the Government to show that Erwin and Grover had been properly inducted into the service, had failed to report for duty, and subsequently were listed as deserters from the United States Army.

Erwin is now serving a sentence in Fort Leavenworth, while Grover, who escaped while on a trip to this city under guard from Governors Island, is still a fugitive.

STAGE MAYFLOWER FALLS.

Precipitates Actors Into Stalls in London Theatre.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—A disaster more startling than any rehearsed mechanical effect could well have accomplished occurred to the stage ship used for the Mayflower in a play of that name produced for the first time, so far as London is concerned, by Ben Greet at the Surrey Theatre tonight.

The ship, which was about ten or twelve feet high, was supposed to be starting from Plymouth. Barbican sails were set and the Pilgrim Fathers and families were gathered on deck and singing "The Old Hundredth." Suddenly the ship heeled over toward the audience and then collapsed, the whole company being thrown to the ground in the midst of their psalm and the ship piled on top of them in a heap of debris and smother of dust.

The first instinct of the large audience, which included the American Consul, Commander Jackson, the American Naval Attaché; the Countess of Drogheda, and many influential Anglo-Americans, was to laugh, but when the possible gravity of the accident became obvious the laughter gave way to very keen anxiety. Happily, nobody was seriously hurt.

He denied that he acted as Mrs. Cole's fiduciary agent in handling her money.

SAN CARLO OPERA OPENS.

Fortune Gallo's Singers Give "Carmen" at the Manhattan.

The San Carlo Opera Company opened last night its season at the Manhattan. Fortune Gallo is the first maestro of the season to make use of the old opera house, which is now in the hands of the widow of Oscar Hammerstein. His company, strengthened by the addition of several guest singers from the Metropolitan and the Chicago forces, includes in its repertoire not only the well-worn operas of the middle Italian period, but also "Thais," "Louise," "Tannhäuser," "Lohengrin," "Salome" and "Hansel and Gretel."

Mr. Gallo chose to begin his year with "Carmen." It is amusing to remember that in 1878 the critic of THE TIMES said of this opera, "the music may be spicy but is not very pure." Last night Miss Alice Gentle, who was to have sung the same rôle in the same opera house ten years ago, took the part of Merimee's gypsy. During those ten years, Miss Gentle has sung at La Scala, with the Metropolitan, and in concert. Her voice is familiar but agreeable. She sings with spirit; if the voice is not always loud enough it is at least always sweet, clear, and even from top to bottom.

Eugenio Cibelli, as Don Jose, made his first appearance in this country. Mr. Cibelli is the possessor of an undubitably fine tenor voice, which he somewhat misuses through the nose. When quiet, he does very well; unfortunately his gestures, unusual and amusing, took the audience by surprise. In the aria "La fleur que tu m'avais jetee," it is to be regretted that he quite funked his high B flat. Of the other members of the cast, Arnold Becker made a lively Zuniga, Sylvia Tell a graceful dancer, and Miss Keltie a coquettish Micaela. Mario Vale, as Escamillo, was obliged to repeat the "Toreador" song.

The audience was large, informal, and enthusiastic. Caruso, De Segurola and Mabel Garrison were among the Metropolitan stars who occupied boxes, and applauded Mr. Gallo who made a short speech at the end of the second act.

Tonight's opera will be "Rigoletto," with Lydia Lipkowska.

COLUMBUS KNIGHTS BACK FROM ROME

Delegation of 101, Headed by Supreme Knight Flaherty, Arrive on the Lafayette.

Tell of Enthusiastic Reception in France—Gray Hair Causes Detention of Oregon Resident.

When the French liner Lafayette arrived late yesterday at Pier 57, North River, bringing 101 Knights of Columbus from France, headed by James A. Flaherty, Supreme Knight, it seemed as if every male passenger on the ship was decorated with a gold medal attached to a scarlet ribbon. All the knights appeared to have had a good time abroad and told their friends so on the pier. There was a large delegation from Philadelphia to meet Supreme Knight Flaherty and fourteen other knights from the Quaker City.

The knights were well received in Rome and at the Vatican, where they decorated the Captain of the Pope's Guard with the medal of the order and also obtained a motion picture of Pope Benedict.

In an interview on the pier Mr. Flaherty said: "The strongest impression brought from France is that the people of America should desire their hero dead to remain in that country as a perpetual bond between the two nations. I shall constantly urge, after my visit, that the American dead remain in France.

"More than 100 of our pilgrims were fathers and brothers of American soldiers killed in action. They visited the cemeteries where these heroes lie buried and they saw the ceaseless care bestowed on these graves for which French men, women and children have a most tender regard.

"Our pilgrimage was a triumph," he continued, "from beginning to end. Pope Benedict has sent through the Knights of Columbus his blessing to the entire American nation. He spoke of the great work performed by America during the war and the reconstruction after the armistice. The Pope took great interest in matters concerning the United States and had the Stars and Stripes flying over the Vatican during our stay in Rome."

Among the other Knights who returned were Martin H. Carmody of Grand Rapids, Deputy Supreme Knight; Dr. E. W. Buckley of St. Paul, Supreme Physician; John H. Reddin of Denver, John F. O'Neill, Jersey City, and Judge Paul Fletcher of New Orleans, Supreme Director; John B. Kennedy, Publicity Director, and Judge Langdon of San Francisco.

August Benziger, an American portrait painter who returned with his wife from Lucerne, said that Switzerland was still suffering from a lack of foundstuffs. Many Swiss industries have been hit by the lack of raw materials, he said, and the flat of the dressmakers in Paris against the use of lace on gowns for the coming season has especially hurt an industry which Switzerland regards as next to the tourist business.

One of the cabin passengers, Charles Hecker, a car inspector of Portland, Ore., 65 years old, who has lived in the United States for thirty years, was detained and ordered to be sent to Ellis Island by an immigration inspector because he had gray hair. Mr. Hecker had $2,000 with him and was accompanied by his son Ernest, who fought with the 91st Division of the American army at St. Mihiel, in the Argonne and on other battle fronts. The father had taken his son to see his old home in St. Marie, in the Savoie. He said he had never taken out his final citizenship papers, because he had always worked at night and slept in the daytime. The son was permitted to land, but the father was told by the immigration inspector that gray hair indicated he was senile.

The Lafayette brought 280 first, 177 second and 673 third class passengers.

CATHOLIC PRELATES MEET.

Will Lay Cornerstone of $5,000,000 Soldiers' Shrine in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Cardinal Gibbons and other prelates have come to Washington for the laying of the cornerstone on Thursday of the Monumental National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, which is to be erected at a cost of $5,000,000 at the Catholic University of America as a memorial to American soldiers and sailors who died in the war and as a monument to Mary, mother of Jesus.

It will cost $1,000,000 to build the sanctuary alone, and a bell tower almost as high as the Washington Monument will cost more than that sum.

Several thousand Catholic leaders from all parts of the country will assemble on the site of the shrine for Thursday's services. Bishop Thomas J. Shahan, Rector of the Catholic University, will speak and the sermon will be delivered by the Right Rev. John T. McNicholas, O. P. C. D., Bishop of Duluth. Prelates already here for the ceremony, besides Cardinal Gibbons, are Cardinal William O'Connell of Boston, Archbishop John W. Shaw of New Orleans and Archbishop Dennis J. Dougherty of Philadelphia. The ceremonies will end on Friday with a solemn mass for American soldiers, living and dead.

It is planned to make the shrine one of the great churches of the world. The style employed will be Romanesque. The length of the building will be 420 feet. A dome 254 feet in exterior height will cover the central part of the structure. The main transept will be nearly 200 feet wide. The bell-tower will be 385 feet in height. A congregation of more than 3,000 will be accommodated in the finished edifice.

In the centre of the crypt, which will accommodate 1,500 persons, will be placed an exact copy of the column of the Immaculate Conception in the Piazza de Spagna in Rome, erected by Pope Pius IX. to commemorate the definition of the dogma of the Immaculate Conception.

Among those who have accepted invitations to attend the cornerstone laying are the Spanish, Argentine, Brazilian and Chilean Ambassadors, the Cuban, Honduran, Polish, Serbian and Venezuelan Ministers and the Chargés d'Affaires of Belgium, Bolivia, Colombia, Czechoslovakia, Finland, France, Greece, the Netherlands, Panama, Rumania, Switzerland and Italy.

PROVE FOX IS NOT LE ROY.

Finger Prints of Alleged Trunk Slayer Not Those of Man Held.

MONTEVIDEO, Sept. 19.—Morris Fox, the young man detained here on the supposition that he might be Eugene Le Roy, the alleged perpetrator of the Detroit "trunk murder," is not Le Roy, police officials of this city announced tonight. Finger print records showing characteristics of Le Roy's hands arrived from Buenos Aires during the day and established complete proof of Fox's innocence, there being no semblance of identity between them and Fox's finger prints.

Fox will be released tomorrow and probably will go to Buenos Aires to rejoin the British ship Dryden, from which he was taken when she touched here last Wednesday. He will return to New York on board that vessel, it is said.

Wife Sues James Caruso, Musician.

James Caruso, a composer, pianist and teacher of music, was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday by his wife, Mrs. Maria Caruso, also a pianist, for a separation on the ground that he left her penniless two months ago. Mrs. Caruso asks $75 a week alimony, and says that her husband earns more than $200 a week. The case was adjourned until Oct. 4, in the hope that a reconciliation may be effected.

GERMAN EX-DUKE TO WED OPERA SINGER

Ernst II. of Saxe-Altenburg Scandalizes Monarchists by His Engagement to Helena Thomas.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 20.—At a little church in the Grünewald suburbs of Berlin the announcement has been made of the approaching marriage of Ernst von Altenburg and Helena Thomas, and the intimate friends of the contracting parties are being notified that the most democratic of Germany's former Princes, the Duke of Saxe-Altenburg, Ernst II., is to become the husband of the handsome daughter of a master turner of Waltershausen, Thuringia.

Fräulein Helena Thomas has made a name for herself as an opera singer in Leipsic and other large provincial cities, she excelling especially in Verdi's operas. While she was filling a temporary engagement at the Ducal Theatre in Altenburg, in war time, Duke Ernst made Fräulein Thomas's acquaintance, he himself being home on sick leave.

When the war broke out the Duke refused all honorary appointments at the Kaiser's headquarters, where so many other Princes found bullet-proof berths, and, renouncing his titular rank as General, entered the service as a Colonel. He distinguished himself at the battle of Peronne. At the end of the war he was commander of a division.

Duke Ernst was one of the first Princes to realize that with the revolution a new age was beginning for Germany, and he was one of the very few who quickly arrived at an amicable settlement with their former subjects as to crown and private property. With a moderate fortune he retired to Berlin, where he has since lived at a hotel.

He has just obtained a divorce from his first wife, Princess Adelheid, of Schaumburg-Lippe, who bore him two sons and two daughters, and he is now free to marry Fräulein Thomas, who lives in a pretty cottage in Grünewald. The Duke is not quite 50, and Fräulein Thomas is about 29.

It is reported that the former German Princes recently held a meeting at which indignation was expressed that at this critical time the cause of monarchy should be compromised by the marriage of one of their rank to a master turner's daughter; but the Duke refuses to be influenced even by the ex-Kaiser himself, of whom, by the way, he has never stood much in awe and whom he has never permitted to meddle with Altenburg state affairs.

His former subjects, though stanch republicans, are seriously considering sending a delegation to congratulate him on his marriage to a daughter of the people.

FIRES CAUSE $400,000 LOSS.

Four-Story Factory in Brooklyn Destroyed—Blaze in Newark Meadows.

Fire did damage estimated at $400,000 in and about New York City yesterday.

A four-story brick factory building at 154 Wythe Avenue, Brooklyn, was totally destroyed yesterday morning. The damage was estimated at $100,000. Four alarms were sent in, and the Brooklyn apparatus fought the flames from 7:30 until after 10 o'clock. The fire apparently started in the Sargoy Tin Company's plant on the first floor. The second floor was occupied by the Middy Blouse Company, the third by the Russel-Fraser Wire Company and the top floor by Bob & Baskind, shirt manufacturers.

Fire which did damage estimated at $200,000 and which could be seen for eight miles started early yesterday in the plant of the Butterworth-Judson Company in Newark Meadows. Flames enveloped three dye houses and then spread to a warehouse. Two firemen were slightly burned when a live wire fell on them.

The planing mill of Thompson Brothers was destroyed at White Plains and two firemen were injured. The damage was estimated at $20,000. Three principal business buildings in the centre of Elmsford, N. Y., were burned to the ground. The damage was estimated at $50,000. The high-tension wires of the Westchester Lighting Company were damaged, tying up trolley service for an hour.

5,000 B. R. T. STRIKERS BACK

Sixty-nine Surface Lines Operated, with Almost Normal Elevated and Subway Service.

According to the officials of the company, about 5,000 B. R. T. strikers have returned to work and these, with 2,600 new men hired, yesterday gave the system nearly a full complement. The number of men who went out on a strike several weeks ago was about 10,000.

Reinforced by the steadily mounting personnel, the company has now sixty-nine surface lines in operation. Fifteen additional lines went into service last night.

The operation of the subway and elevated lines was virtually normal. The company had 200 trains on regular schedule, with 1,200 cars in service.

A defective motor on a Fourth Avenue train held up traffic for twenty-five minutes between 4 and 5 o'clock yesterday evening. Stalled trains reached from De Kalb Avenue to Canal Street.

At the meeting yesterday of the Andrew H. Green Memorial Committee in the City Hall to prepare a proper memorial service in honor of the "Father of Greater New York" it was decided to hold a service in the great hall of the Museum of Natural History on Wednesday evening, Oct. 6.

MICHAEL P. GRACE DIES IN LONDON

Chairman of Board of Wm. R. Grace & Co. Succumbs at 78 Years on Business Trip.

BROTHER OF LATE MAYOR

A Pioneer in Big Shipping Organization Which He Developed in Peru, Chile and England.

Michael P. Grace, Chairman of the Board of Directors of William R. Grace & Co., the large shipping organization, died at 11 o'clock yesterday morning in London. Mr. Grace was also the head of Grace Brothers & Co. of London and a brother of the late William R. Grace, a former Mayor of this city. His death, a cable message to his office stated, took place while he was asleep. He was 78 years old and was in London on his annual business visit.

Mr. Grace sailed from New York last May and was expected home early next month. He was accompanied in England by his nephew, Joseph P. Grace.

Michael P. Grace's commercial career began in the ship sailing era. He was born in Queenstown, County Cork, Ireland, and at an early age went to Peru, where his father, James Grace, had sought to establish an Irish agricultural colony, and where his brother, W. R. Grace, had become a partner in the trading firm of Bryce, Grace & Co.

W. R. Grace came to the United States and established the house of W. R. Grace & Co., Michael P. Grace remaining in Peru and building the business into the largest in the country. The company operated a vast fleet of ships and held the Peruvian Government's agency for the sale of nitrate of soda, managed by Baring Brothers in Europe and W. R. Grace & Co. in New York.

After the Chile-Peruvian war of 1877-1881 Michael P. Grace, who had become an American citizen and had assumed charge of the parent house in New York, went to Peru to further develop the business and to extend it to Chile.

In 1887 a committee of Peruvian bondholders asked the firm to attempt a settlement of the Peruvian foreign debt. Mr. Grace was active in the establishment of the Peruvian corporation, which undertook large projects for the development of Peruvian resources and industries, and the construction of Peruvian railroads.

Their negotiations made it necessary to establish a branch house in London under the name of M. P. Grace & Co., the name of which was later changed to Grace Brothers & Co., Ltd. Michael Grace resided for some years in England, making his home in the famous Battle Abbey at Hastings.

Mr. Grace is survived by his wife, who lives in London, and three daughters, Mrs. J. S. Phipps of this city, the Countess of Donoughmore and Mrs. Joseph Benskin of London.

That agreeable actor and extraordinary institution known as William Hodge returned to New York last evening in an old-fashioned, home-made, deep-dish comedy which was never meant for New York at all. His fairly annual reappearance was made at the Broadhurst Theatre in "The Guest of Honor," a close-fitting, unsophisticated play of his own composition. And if New York proves inclined to laugh at it in a manner not intended by its author, it can certainly afford to laugh at New York and also to snap its fingers. For it is in just such plays as this one that Mr. Hodge can tour, and has toured, all the other cities of the land, with nothing but the largest and most affectionate audiences to greet him everywhere.

It would be difficult to say just why, since this is so, Mr. Hodge should wish to bring this innocent little piece of his for exhibition to theatregoers who are pretty certain to scoff at it. Usually when plays of no artistic pretensions are put on in New York, it is in the hope that their engagement here will so advertise them far and wide that they can thereafter find awaiting them in the provinces an aroused curiosity to see them. But "The Guest of Honor" needs no bush. For William Hodge is in it and, once outside New York, that is quite enough. It has triumphed, and will triumph, in cities that are cold to better actors in better plays.

Indeed, Mr. Hodge, on his performance of this play in Altoona, Pa., a year ago, was greeted as "an exponent of art who embodies in himself all that art means or is," and also as "the greatest genius behind the footlights today." As an equally gratifying and more substantial tribute to the play itself, it was kept in Boston for ten prosperous weeks—the same Boston that thought "Experience" was so wonderful and flocked to see Theda Bara in "The Blue Flame" in such numbers that the police reserves had to be called out. William Hodge richly deserves to be called the Harold Bell Wright of the American stage, and why he should desire, or even consent, to visit this callous city passes all understanding.

There is always a certain pleasure to be derived in watching Mr. Hodge at work, so likable—is he, so quiet and effective his comedy, so unmistakable his talents as an actor. But the playgoers in these parts, those who enjoy "The Bad Man" and "Brter Madame" and "Little Old New York," are likely to regard "The Guest of Honor" as a pretty terrible piece of bosh. There are hundreds of thousands of people in New York who would be enchanted by it, but whether they are in the habit of theatregoing at all is a matter of some doubt.

The play deals with a struggling young poet and novelist and his efforts to keep a shrill-voiced youngster under his own fond protection and away from the clutches of a rich family that had cast its mother off in the days of her indiscretion. It may be described as the kind of play in which a child is referred to as a tot.

All its early scenes reveal the hero threadbare and starving in a garret and these scenes are so protracted that the irreverent out front can't help wondering whether he will not eventually be driven to laying a brick or carrying a trunk or in some way going to work. But of course he sells a novel or two in time for the final curtain to descend on a well-dressed scene of bliss and advance royalties.

There are interludes intended as comic relief provided by an English landlord and an Irish washwoman that are reminiscent of the Four Mortons in the old time three-a-day and there are scenes between the poet and the child that are sympathetically and simply written and most artfully played. For William Hodge is a good actor and it would be perfectly possible, though somewhat unusual, for him to grace a play so good that the applause of Broadway would but echo the plaudits of Altoona.

OFFERS HIS WIFE A JOB.

Druggist Tenders $22 Clerkship in Lieu of Alimony.

James M. Dolan, who conducts a drugstore at 150 Greenwich Street, opposed before Supreme Court Justice Guy yesterday an application by his wife, Mrs. Sarah H. Dolan, for $150 a week alimony, pending a suit for separation on the ground of cruel treatment. Dolan said his wife was a trained nurse and able to earn her own living, and that he would pay her $22 a week for working in his store.

Justice Guy decided that Mrs. Dolan should have $30 without working in the store.

WALTER DAMROSCH BACK.

Musicians' Club Presents New York Symphony Conductor with Wreath.

Walter Damrosch, conductor of the New York Symphony Orchestra, returned yesterday from France on the liner Lafayette, having remained behind with his family when the American musicians came back from their tour of the principal cities in Europe. Mr. Damrosch was met at the pier by a delegation from the Musicians' Club, of which he is the honorary president. The club presented him with a wreath in the waiting room and he made a speech thanking them for the gift. In Belgium the conductor was decorated with the Order of the Crown of Leopold and in Italy with the Cross of the Order of the Crown of Italy.

He said that the New York Symphony Orchestra had been received with great kindness by the Governments of the countries they visited, England, France, Italy, Holland and Belgium. The Ecole d'Musique in Paris, he added, had offered two scholarships to young Americans in advanced violin studies and the municipality of Fontainbleau had stated that next Summer the famous Royal Palace will be opened as a Summer school for American scholars in music at a nominal charge, and the teachers will be the best procurable in France, under the leadership of M. Lemaire.

This opportunity, said Mr. Damrosch, would be a splendid one for a student who wishes to get through a three months' course and imbibe some of the musical atmosphere in France.

Giovanni Martinelli, Italian tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, returned yesterday on the French liner Lafayette from a two months' visit to Italy, and said he would go on a concert tour for a month, commencing Oct. 9, before starting rehearsals for the opera.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Sam Bernard, Lew Fields and Joe Weber will again be seen together in the new Cohan revue now in course of preparation.

Three plays were seen on new stages last night. "The Greenwich Village Follies" moved uptown to the Shubert Theatre, from which "Paddy the Next Best Thing" was transferred to the Thirty-ninth Street. "The Charm School," which had been at the latter house, was moved back to the Bijou.

"The Meanest Man in the World" has again been placed in rehearsal by George M. Cohan and will be seen at the Hudson in a few weeks. The cast will include Marion Coakley, Frank Thomas, Alice Carroll, Hugh Cameron, Elwood Bostwick, Ralph Sipperly, John T. Doyle, Pete Raymond and Edward O'Connor.

"The Ziegfeld Follies" will remain only four more weeks at the New Amsterdam Theatre. "Hitchy-Koo, 1920," will probably be the succeeding attraction.

"The Champion," in which Grant Mitchell has the leading role, will reopen in Wilmington next Thursday. Ann Andrews will have the leading feminine role.

Minna Gombel has been engaged for "Mom."

"Daddy Dumplins," by George Barr McCutcheon and Karl Carroll, will be produced in Far Rockaway on Friday night, with Maclyn Arbuckle in the leading role.

Philip Bartholomae's "The Open Book," starring Evelyn Nesbit, will be produced in Washington by Walter Hast next week.

SCREEN PRESENTATION OF WILL CARLETON'S POEM
A Triumph!!!
HERE IS WHAT THE CRITICS SAY:
"It's capacity for tear-water and gallery cheers is unlimited. It is impressive. Its assault upon the emotions is sweeping."—New York Times.
"Wonderful it was—brought tears and rapture—kept first night spectators in their seats after final curtain applauding."—New York Tribune.
"We feel bound to state that we do not care especially for motion pictures, but last night we saw Mary Carr, of whom we never heard before, play a mother as a mother probably never has been played, for the screen at least, before. Reviewers of pictures raved over the work of Vera Gordon in 'Humoresque' and reviewers of plays did the same over Emma Dunn in 'Mother' and 'Old Lady 31,' but let them see Mary Carr in this picture. It is safe to assert that the camera never has recorded a finer, more faithful piece of acting."—Journal of Commerce.
"A remarkable impersonation of motherdom. So keen a picturization that your eyes fill—made with a fine big spirit, a remembrance of youth, an appreciation of the eternal mother-soul, and excellent photography."—New York American.
"Draws tears—presses severe strain upon the handkerchief—will doubtless have a wide appeal."—Sun-Herald.
"It is so true and so vividly yet simply told that it impresses itself upon your memory as one of the high spots in film production."—New York Telegraph.
"It is a picture too fine, too human and tender to miss. The wondrous depths of maternal love are sounded in this picture, which grips the heart and holds it for two solid hours."—New York Commercial.
"'Over the Hill to the Poor House' entered the Hall of Screen Fame at the Astor Theatre last night. It is a sure-fire hit."—Evening Mail.
"The applause was sincere and the comment after the picture was of the kind that ought to justify the management in expecting a long run."—Evening Sun.
"Abounds with excellent humor and pathos and tells a story of genuine interest that is gripping."—Evening World.
"New Fox film scores at Astor—brought tears even from most unwilling eyes. And it is funny—humanly, riotously funny."—Evening Journal.
"It is the sort of play in which the battle is more than half won before it is started because it comes pretty close to the heart strings of any one who has a heart."—Evening Post.
"An audience which included many distinguished persons gave it the hearty welcome which it so richly deserves and accorded not only the tribute of spontaneous laughter to the many delightful comedy scenes, but also paid that rarer tribute, the gift of sympathetic tears over the pathetic episodes in the story."—Evening Telegram.

KONEY SAVES DAY FOR THE DODGERS

NEIS FINISHES THE JOB

Registers Winning Run in Extra Inning After Sprinting from First on Myers's Double.

Dig Ed Konetchy and Bernie Neis yesterday conspired to knit a couple of more feet to the 1920 National League pennant for Brooklyn. The Dodgers were in the throes of a tussle with the Pittsburgh Pirates and things were not going as they should; in fact, defeat was hovering on the score board. As the Robins went to bat for the last half of the ninth inning the score was 1 to 0 against them. There was one out and the bases as empty as a Monday morning purse when Koney stepped to the plate. Hamilton tempted him with a high fast one but Ed did not offer at it, so Hamilton grooved the next one. Koney had taken a toe hold in the dirt and swung with all the power of his broad shoulders. The ball soared high and far, finally resting in the temporary bleachers in left field. The homer tied the score and a bit of fast sprinting by Neis won the game in the tenth when he raced over the plate from first on a double. The score was 2 to 1.

It was the second straight victory the Superbas had scored over the Smoketown troupe. It was the last scheduled game between the teams and gave Brooklyn the edge on the season's series. Brooklyn won 12 of the 22 games played between the teams this year. Incidentally, the victory enabled the Robins to increase their lead in the race for the flag by a half game while the Giants and Reds were splitting even in a double header. Uncle Wilbert Robinson's clan now leads the Giants by five and a half games and is seven and a half ahead of the Reds. Today the Dodgers will be idle and tomorrow they will tackle the Boston Braves for a single game before beginning a five-game series with the Giants on Saturday.

Pirates Overlook Chances.

Yesterday's game was a tough one for Pittsburgh to lose and an extremely lucky one for Brooklyn to win. Time and again during the early innings Opportunity knocked at the Pirates' door, but George Gibson's athletes were not able to produce a telling punch until the ninth stanza. Leon Cadore essayed to pitch the game for the Dodgers, but Leon had little outside of his ambition. He was in the water continually and, had he been permitted to remain on the mound longer than the sixth inning, the tale of what happened in Charley Ebbets's yard might be entirely different.

In each of the first three innings the Buccaneers succeeded in getting their leadoff man on the bases, but they were unable to drive him around to the plate. In the first inning Pittsburgh had runners on first and third, with but one out. The double steal was attempted, but failed. In the second they had the bases full and only one out. A fast double play saved Cadore. In the third a Pirate reached third with two out, but was left stranded there.

By the time the sixth inning had been played and Cadore had been touched for seven safe hits, Uncle Robbie decided that he had taken enough chances with Leon for the afternoon and relieved him from duty, sending Al Mamaux to the mound to finish out the game. On the other side of the score card Earl Hamilton was being hit, but not when bingles would have meant runs. He was exceptionally strong in the pinches and when Pittsburgh managed to parlay two hits into a run, in the ninth inning, it looked very much as if Hamilton would get away with the game. Then Koney stepped into the breach and gave Neis and Hy Myers the chance to win it in the tenth.

The first run of the game was deferred until the opening half of the ninth round. Grantland Traynor, the young recruit shortstop who is being tried out by the Pirates, started the trouble with a double to right. He scampered to third while Mamaux was tossing out Schmidt. Hamilton struck out, and the fans breathed easier. But Bigbee slashed a single to centre and Traynor scored.

Koney Ties the Score.

When Myers fell an easy victim to Traynor and Grimm, at the start of the Dodgers' half of the ninth, things looked very bad for Brooklyn. But Koney had not been reckoned with. Big Ed crashed a fast one, and it never stopped until it landed high in the temporary bleachers in left field for a home run. In the same round the Dodgers managed to get men on first and third, with two out, but Olson failed in the pinch.

It was in the tenth inning that Brooklyn put an end to the agony. Johnston had filed to Cutshaw before Neis singled to centre. Wheat filed to Summa, and Brooklyn's hopes for a run in the inning were rapidly dwindling, when Myers slammed the ball against the fence in right field for two bases. By fast sprinting, much the same as he had done on Sunday, Neis flashed across the rubber with the winning run.

The failure of Zach Wheat to touch third base in the tenth inning came within a bug's whisker of costing Brooklyn the game. Wheat started the inning by doubling to left field, and had plenty of time to touch third and still score when Myers followed with a single to left. But in rounding third Wheat failed to touch the bag and when McKechnie called for the ball Umpire Moran declared Wheat out.

There were many times during the subsequent innings when the 6,000 faithful who turned out to see the game recalled that costly mistake by the Brooklyn Captain. Had it not been for Koney's big bat in the ninth that mistake undoubtedly would have caused the downfall of the Brooklyn clan.

LIMIT SET FOR PURCHASES.

Majors Must Finish Buying of New Players by Monday Noon.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 20.—All purchases of minor league players by major league clubs must be closed at noon next Monday, the National Baseball Commission announced in a notice to all major league clubs made public here today.

The time for filing reserve lists is to be Nov. 1 instead of Oct. 1, and no waivers are to be requested on any players between Oct. 1 and Oct. 12, the period during which club officials are usually attending the world's series or other post-season games.

The commission says its rulings are made necessary so as to give major league clubs ample time to get rid of their surplus players before they submit their forty-player reserve list, which it seems impossible for some to do prior to Oct. 1.

Robins Almost Reach Goal; Indians Maintain Advantage

The National League race has reached the stage where the Brooklyn team can almost reach out and grab the pennant. By winning yesterday while the Giants and Reds were breaking even the Robins increased their advantage over the Giants to five and one-half games, while the Reds remain two games further back. Brooklyn has seven games more to play, New York has ten and Cincinnati thirteen. If the Robins win three of the seven games the Reds cannot beat them out even by winning all thirteen. If the Robins win two of their five games with the Giants it will be impossible for the Giants to beat out the Brooklyn team. Allowing Brooklyn two victories over the Giants and defeats in all its other contests, while the Giants are losing all except the two Brooklyn games, the standing would be:

	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
New York	89	65	.578

On the above figuring Cincinnati would need thirteen straight games to beat out the Robins. The Reds may be eliminated from the reckoning, however, as they hardly can profit. If Brooklyn slumps the advantage will be with the Giants, who now lead the Reds by two games. If the Giants fall the Robins will put themselves beyond Cincinnati's reach. Cincinnati has a chance for second place, but the coming New York-Brooklyn series makes it next to impossible for the Reds to be rated as pennant contenders.

In the American League all three leaders won, the edge still remaining with Cleveland. If the Indians win half of their remaining twelve games the White Sox would need seven of nine to beat them and the Yankees would need eight straight. However, the three-game series between the Indians and White Sox late this week may alter the situation.

GARDNER'S BATTING WINS FOR INDIANS

Drives In Six Runs and Cleveland Defeats Boston Red Sox by 8 to 3 Score.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 20.—The Cleveland Indians defeated the Boston Red Sox 8 to 3 in the second game of the series today. Gardner drove in six of the eight runs. In the third inning he tripled with the bases filled. In the fifth he scored a runner with a single, while in the seventh his second triple scored two runners.

Mails was hit hard, but he kept the hits scattered except in the second inning, when Boston bunched four hits with two Cleveland errors and scored three runs.

RALLY IN ELEVENTH WINS FOR YANKEES

Ruth Scores Tally That Beats Browns, 4 to 3—Saves Game with Catch in Ninth.

BREAKS COBB'S RUN RECORD

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 20.—The Yankees shook off the attack of sleeping sickness which they contracted in Chicago and beat the Browns in an eleven-inning skirmish this afternoon by a score of 4 to 3. Babe Ruth didn't make a home run, but he scored the winning run after making a double in the eleventh, and he decorated the soirée with a one-handed catch in the ninth which saved the ball game when the bases were jammed with run-hungry Brownies.

Babe's winning run today was the first tally he has made in the last five games, and gives him a new American League record for runs scored during a season. He had been tied with Ty Cobb's record of 147 runs for some time, and it was not until today that he was able to paste the ball hard enough to break the spell.

It remained for the St. Louis fans to attempt to humiliate Carl Mays after the pitcher has gone through the present trip and received the kindest consideration, even in Cleveland. Mays was booed and hissed when he first appeared today on the mound, but the cheers and applause drowned out the hisses. While Mays was pitching well the crowd did not bother him, but when they started to batter him in the seventh and tied the score the hoodlums broke loose again and hissed and jeered him. Mays paid no attention to the demonstration and tipped his cap to the fans who were fair enough to applaud him.

Browns Tie in Seventh.

The Yanks got their batting vision back this afternoon, and had no trouble in hitting Carl Wellman. Mays pitched a pretty game until the seventh, when a triple, a double and two singles enabled the Browns to tie the score.

Ruth opened the eleventh with a two-base bang to right field, speedy base galloping enabling him to make the station by an eyelash. Pratt bounded a single through short, and Babe went to third. After Lewis fouled to Severeid, Peck sent Babe home on a tantalizing little bunt that was spilled near the first base line. It was as neat a squeeze play as the Yanks have ever manipulated.

Ward then lifted the fluttering ender, and skied to Tobin in the first. Big Wellman nabbed Pipp's grounder and tossed him out at first. Much turmoil when Ruth came up. Turmoil immediately faded when Babe hoisted an easy fly to Williams, who was camped for it in left centre.

Well, well, here's something surprising! The Yanks got away in front. Pratt slapped a single to right in the second, and Lewis sacrificed. Peck jarred a single to left, and Pratt scampered home. Peck got to second on the throw-in. Sammy Vick continued the commendable example set for him and laced a one-bagger to centre, scoring Peck. Samuel died stealing and Hannah fanned.

First Hit for Tobin.

Tobin got the first hit off Mays at the start of the Browns' third, and Severeid followed with another single, putting Tobin on second. Wellman rolled to Mays and he threw to Ward, forcing Tobin. Gerber hit into a double play and the Yanks looked as if they had returned to consciousness.

Wellman southpawed our Babe into a strikeout in the fourth, and the populace enjoyed the tragedy immensely. Pratt got a hit to third, and went all the way around to third when Sisler made a wild peg to first. After Lewis whiffed Peck got a walk and Sam Vick's second hit whizzed to left, scoring Pratt. Hannah closed the session by rocketing to Tobin.

All the noise in the Browns' fourth was due to a single by George Sisler, who is the great I Am in this town. There was one out, and Sisler's progress was blocked when Baby Doll Jacobson unfeelingly hit into a double killing.

Mays beat out a bounder to Gedeon in the fifth and Ward sacrificed. Right here the Yanks calculated to catch the Browns off their guard, and Wallie Pipp tried to bunt. Nobody was fooled by these tactics but the Yanks, as Gedeon rushed in and caught Wallie's insipid pop and Mays was doubled before he even thought of going back to second.

Browns' Rallies Fail.

Smith got a single in the Browns' fifth after one had been set down. He didn't travel far, as Tobin fouled to Hannah and Severeid's liner was absorbed by Ruth. Again with one out, in the sixth, Gerber singled, but his purpose was thwarted when Gedeon hit into a double play.

The St. Louis fans got all het up in the seventh when the Browns fell on Mays hard. Sisler promoted the commotion when he rapped a triple between Ruth and Vick. Mays started to slip, and Jacobson's single to left scored Sisler. Williams doubled to right and Baby Doll went to third. Jacobson scored while Pratt was refiring Smith at first. Tobin laced a single to right, sending Williams across with the tying run. Tobin stole second. Severeid skied to Peck and the danger was over for the time being when Pratt threw out Wellman.

Mays was hooted when he came to bat at the start of the eighth, and the fans rejoiced when the pitcher flied to Williams. Ward slammed a two-bagger to right and Pipp's out at first sent him to third. Here was a fine chance for Ruth, but this time Babe was as harmless as he has been for nearly a week, and he rolled a grounder to Sisler, who tossed to Wellman, and the slugger was out.

With one gone in the Browns' eighth Gedeon singled to centre. While Sisler was at bat there was a dispute between Umpire Chill and several of the Yanks concerning a third strike on the St. Louis hero. Chill ruled that it was a foul tip and gave Sisler another swipe at the ball. Although the decision prolonged Sisler's time at bat, the local pride was called out on strikes. Gedeon was out stealing.

Tobin Makes Great Catch.

A perfectly good three-base hit was mussed up by Johnny Tobin in the ninth. Pratt hit a smacker between right and centre, and it was labeled and shipped to parts unknown, when Tobin, after a long run, just reached it and nipped it with his gloved hand. Peck skiked a double to left, and Yank hopes ran high up to that sad moment when Sam Vick's fly was grabbed by Jacobson.

Babe Ruth saved the game for the Yanks in the last of the ninth with a wonderful one-handed catch. Jacobson got a hit to short as a starter and Williams laid down a sacrifice. Pipp fielded the ball and was going to throw to seconds, but Umpire Dinneen was in the way, and Wallie had to pull his throw long enough for Jacobson to be safe at second. Smith rolled to Pratt, who tagged Williams and doubled Smith at first, Jacobson going to third.

With the winning run on third base, Mays then intentionally walked both Tobin and Severeid and filled the bases. Manager Burke did not send in a pinch hitter for Wellman, for he had no other pitchers to use. Wellman sent a low liner to short centre and Ruth came tearing in and grabbed it with one hand. The catch was a gem.

Boston Takes Second Game, 9 to 1, After Losing First, 6 to 1.

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—Boston and Chicago divided honors in clocking off a double header in less than three hours today, Alexander pitching the visitors to a 6 to 1 decision in the first game, while Boston hit Vaughn hard in the early innings and gained a 9 to 1 decision in the second. McQuillan was strong with men on bases in the second game and O'Neil's error on Enyra's throw in the fourth inning gave the visitors their only run.

Curves and Bingles

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 20.—Babe Ruth, by surpassing Cobb's run record of 147 tallies, has now gobbled up about all the records in sight. Babe even leads both leagues in smoking cigars.

They call it Sportsman's Park, but today was once it didn't live up to its name. It is always the loudest fans who do the damage.

Although it is the first time in a number of years that the Browns have finished in the first division, it is rumored here that Manager Jimmy Burke will have to look for a new job next season.

Manager Burke and Umpire Dineen had to warn the St. Louis bench warmers to stop criticising Mays in the seventh inning.

The Yanks' victory today didn't do them a bit of good, as the Indians and White Sox both had easy picking. The biggest washday crowd of the season saw the game, 16,000 fans being present.

Mays did a game thing when he walked two batsmen in the ninth and filled the bases so he could get at Wellman, an easy victim.

Pipp contributed a circus play in the tenth when Wardie made a great stop of Gerber's hopper, but threw high to first. Pipp jumped off the bag to get the ball and tagged the runner as he landed back on earth.

Manager Huggins shook up his lineup today, putting Ward at the lead-off position with Lewis batting fifth, Peck sixth and Vick seventh.

Vick and Pratt had the most productive visits to the plate. Del got three hits and Sammy two.

GIANTS AND REDS BATTLE TO A TIE

McGrawmen Take One Game, 5 to 2, and Drop Next, 9 to 3—20,000 at Double Bill.

The Giants and Reds, both of which teams are working a pulmotor overtime on their almost extinct pennant chances, battled for the greater part of five hours at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon. All their work served to help the chances of the Brooklyn team. In the first game the fading champions of the world faded still more from the pennant picture, and New York hopes revived. Then the Reds retaliated by knocking off the Giants in a one-sided game. The McGrawmen grabbed the opener, 5 to 2, and the Moran troupe annexed the closing half of the twin bill, 9 to 3.

In cold mathematics, it is possible to show how the Giants may win, but, outside of the old mathematics, the Giants' chances of success in this pennant hunt may be coupled with the Phillies' or the Braves'. The Reds, it might be mentioned, have the same sort of chance. The McGrawmen had been buoyed up for some days on the forlorn hope that they might gain some on Brooklyn before the five games to be played against the Robins and then deliver the big smash. After the sixth inning of yesterday's second game the crowd began to walk out on the Giants, and a city series between Yanks and Giants began to loom up bigger than ever. In that busy inning the Reds buried what remained of New York's prospects.

More than 20,000 fans sat in for the greater part of the two games. As the second section neared its finish the crowd thinned rapidly, owing partly to the débâcle and party to the chilly winds that began to invade the Brush Stadium as the sun was fading out with the pennant hopes. However, there were enough on hand to indicate that a city series will attract plenty of attention and considerable coin.

A Battle of Pitchers.

The opening game was a well-pitched affair between Ray Fisher, former Yankee, and Art Nehf, the Giant southpaw. Fisher was more successful in keeping down the hits and Nehf starred in taming the Reds with runners on the sacks. A pair of wild tosses by Heinie Groh and Jake Daubert in the sixth inning handed the Giants a pair of runs which they did not deserve, as a good throw by Heinie would have retired the side runless. Fisher pitched well enough to have carried the game beyond the nine innings if his support had not caved in during the sixth inning.

The Reds went to the front in the third inning of the opening game when Fisher slapped a double along the third base line and finished the journey on a double over first base. Burns.

Meanwhile the Giants had been playing dead for Fisher. Burns opened the game with a single and that was the only hit made by the McGrawmen up to the sixth frame, when another developed with a pass and a pair of errors for a total of three runs. The first two batsmen had gone out in order, when Bancroft hit to right for two bases and Young followed with a pass. Frisch rolled to Groh and Heinie threw to the grand stand in his effort to get Frisch at first base. Everybody kept on running while Daubert was getting the ball, and when Jake threw into the Cincinnati dugout Frisch completed the circuit, following Bancroft and Young over the plate.

In the seventh the Reds drew a bit closer and would have tied the score but for a fancy catch by Kelly Duncan singled to left, Kopf was hit and Neale sent both runners along with a sacrifice. While Doyle was throwing out Fisher and Kelly drove Bancroft over with a solid slam to centre.

The Reds threw a scare into the New York camp in the ninth when Neale's single and a high toss by Doyle put two runners

RUBIEN RE-ELECTED LOCAL A. A. U. HEAD

Also Chosen as Delegate to National Body by Narrow Margin After Bitter Fight.

JUSTICE WEEKS IS BEATEN

Opposition of Olympic Athletes Proves Too Strong to Overcome —Officials Arraigned.

Frederick W. Rubien was re-elected President of the Metropolitan A. A. U. last night at the organization's annual meeting in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory and retained his position as one of the six delegates to the national A. A. U., by the proverbial eyelash. The re-election of Mr. Rubien to both offices was recorded after stern opposition. With regard to the presidency, Mr. Rubien was re-elected only after Herman Obertubbesing, acting as chairman of the meeting in his capacity as First Vice-President, declined nomination. Obertubbesing declined to run on the ground that, in the absence of Mr. Rubien, who is now on the return trip to this country from the Olympic games, it would be unfair. Chairman Obertubbesing called for a resolution making Mr. Rubien's re-election to the presidency unanimous, but Dick Remer, delegate from the American Walkers' Club, and Al Hulsebosch of the Paulist A. C. demanded that they be recorded as against the unanimous vote.

In the balloting for delegates to the National A. A. U., Mr. Rubien just managed to poll enough votes to be included in the sextet by a margin of seven over Jack Fritts of the Hasker Athletic League, one of the independent candidates. Mr. Rubien's vote totaled 27 and made him the sixth delegate selected in the order of votes cast.

Justice Bartow S. Weeks, a former National A. A. U. President, and for years a prominent figure in local and national amateur athletics, was defeated for re-election as a delegate from the local association to the National Convention. Justice Weeks received but 18 votes and finished eighth in the balloting. Harold A. Dibblee of the Seventy-first Regiment A. A., an independent candidate, replaced Justice Weeks in the list, with 43 votes.

The complete list of delegates, with the order of their election and the number of votes, were: Jeremiah T. Mahoney, New York A. C., 67 votes; Herman Obertubessing, West Side Y. M. C. A., 65; Jacob W. Stumpf, Gravesend Club, 63; George P. Mathews, Morningside A. C., 60; Harold A. Dibblee, Seventy-first Regiment A. A., 43; Frederick W. Rubien, St. George's Club, 27. Others for whom votes were cast: Lester C. Stevens, New Brunswick Industrial A. A., 15; Murray Hulbert, 12.

A Stormy Meeting.

The alternates elected were: Roy A. Moore, 66 votes; Charles Elbert, 65; Stephen Byrne, 65; Val Dysert, 62; Martin A. Klein, 58, and Joseph Hewes, 15. Lester Stevens corraled 41 votes, but declined election. Others for whom votes were cast in the contest were: Harry Newcomb, 10; Murray Hulbert, 3; Jack Fritts, 2; Harold Dibblee, 1; John J. McHugh, 1.

The election, coming near the close of a typically stormy A. A. U. session, developed a bitter contest. The athletes, several of them recently returned from the Olympic games, dissatisfied with the conditions they encountered on the trip over to Antwerp, during their stay in the Belgian city and on the return journey, were determined in their opposition to Messrs. Weeks and Rubien.

Dick Remer, declaring that he spoke the feelings of the entire American Olympic team, objected strenuously to the re-election of either Mr. Weeks or Mr. Rubien. He arraigned both officials for alleged laxity in looking after the welfare of the athletes who were sent to Belgium, describing in detail the objectionable features of the ocean journey on the Princess Matolka, the housing accommodations in Antwerp, and the dissatisfaction which was engendered by the accommodations provided for the athletes on their return home.

"I am empowered by the American Olympic team to protest the re-election of Mr. Weeks and Mr. Rubien," said the veteran walker, "and I desire here to voice my sentiments and the sentiments of those whom I represent. The athletes are particularly bitter at Mr. Rubien, Mr. Weeks and Mr. Kirby, and as an expression of the opposition to the candidacy of Mr. Weeks and Mr. Rubien I wish to nominate Harold A. Dibblee as delegate to the national A. A. U."

The spirit of discontent of the returned Olympic games competitor was greeted with applause which lasted for almost a minute. The expression seemed to reflect unanimous support for the stiff arraignment of the A. A. U. officials by Remer. After repeated raps of his improvised gavel on the table, Chairman Obertubbesing finally got the meeting to order again and appointed clerks to collect the votes.

Ask for Report.

Previous to Remar's bitter attack on Mr. Weeks and Mr. Bubien, Chairman Obertubbesing had stepped out of the chair and offered a resolution calling for a complete report from the American Olympic Committee of its funds, expenditures and activities. This resolution follows:

"Be it resolved, That each and every member of the American Olympic team, as well as their coaches, be extended a hearty vote of thanks for their splendid showing at the Olympic championships at Antwerp, in spite of many handicaps and very unsatisfactory conditions, they again demonstrated to the world the supremacy of American athletes and American coaches. From reports received and confirmed by returning members of the team, our boys and girls were obliged to undergo great hardships on the boat on which they sailed, the U. S. S. transport Matolka. They had unsuitable sleeping quarters on the boat and also at Antwerp.

"On the boat the accommodations were such that each team member did not have proper facilities for sleeping or training, and, in addition, at Antwerp the housing was improper and there was a lack of food and proper training facilities, therefore

"Be it resolved, That we, the members of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U., ask that the American Olympic Committee give a detailed report of its receipts, expenditures and activities, so that those who subscribed may know to what use the funds were put. Also that all the details in connection with the raising of funds for the American Olympic team and the management of same be gone over, so that complications which arose on the trip may never arise again; that the money needed will be raised many months before the next team sails; that the arrangements for the proper transportation of the athletes and coaches on fast steamers, as well as their housing and training quarters at the next place where the Olympic games are to be held, be concluded in proper time; that our athletes will be happy and contented and in proper mental and physical condition to give their best efforts."

Secretary Elbert was instructed to send a copy of the resolution to President Gustavus T. Kirby of the American Olympic Committee.

In addition to this resolution Jeremiah T. Mahoney of the New York A. C., a few minutes before the meeting was adjourned early this morning, jumped to the floor with a recommendation calling upon the National A. A. U. to appoint a committee to investigate further into the dissatisfaction reflected in the ranks of American Olympic athletes, to find the cause for the dissatisfaction and to fix the responsibility for it. This recommendation was unanimously adopted and will be submitted to the National A. A. U. convention.

Chairman Obertubbesing was re-elected First Vice President; Lester C. Stevens, Second Vice President, and Charles Elbert, Secretary-Treasurer. Other office holders re-elected included George P. Mathews, handicapper; Charlotte Epstein, women's swimming handicapper, and the Registration Committee, composed of Chairman Jake Stumpf; Warren C. Fielding, Martin A. Klein, Stephen Byrne and John J. Delgnan. A. G. Savori, New York A. C., was elected men's swimming handicapper to replace Otto Wahle.

In the course of the meeting the candidacy of Chairman Obertubbesing for National A. A. U. President was announced by Harold Dibblee. Mr. Dibblee submitted a motion that the six delegates be instructed to work for Mr. Obertubbesing's election as national head, and, after a lengthy discussion, the motion was carried.

Definite action designed to curb the practice of so-called high diving and acrobatics that have been employed by some high jumpers in the past was taken. A recommendation was unanimously carried to change Section 6 of Rule 30 of the general rules to read:

"A fair jump is one where one or both feet go over the bar before the head of the contestant."

This recommendation will be submitted to the annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union next month for final action. For some time past the methods employed by some high jumpers have been the cause of serious adverse criticism and comment. In many instances it has been contended that the athletes were not jumping in the strict sense of the term, but were in reality diving and using other acrobatic tricks to propel themselves over the bar. For a long time there has been an ever-increasing demand for a rule which would specifically state what constitutes a jump.

Throughout the earlier part of the meeting when the routine business was being considered all those present felt the tenseness that pervaded the session.

Raise Registration Fee.

All seemed to be impatiently awaiting the election of officers. Just prior to the calling to order of the delegates representatives of the smaller clubs in the Association circulated a one page pamphlet among those present which set forth the ticket most acceptable to the small clubs.

It read: "Let us elect live men who will work for the interest of the athlete. Small clubs' choice for sixth delegate to the A. A. U., Harold Dibblee," and concluded with: "We want action. For President of the Metropolitan Association, Herman Obertubbesing; for First Vice President, Gerald F. Norman; for Registration Committee, Jacob Stumpf, Warren G. Fielding, Frank W. Manley, Stephen P. Byrne and John W. Diegnan."

A great many recommendations, which had accumulated during the year, were read to the delegates by Jeremiah T. Mahoney of the New York Athletic Club and action taken upon them. In this connection, however, nothing of a definite nature could be done. Action by the Metropolitan Association on such matters simply amounts to the indorsement by the association and its recommendation that favorable action be taken at the annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union.

A recommendation that met with the sternest of opposition and precipitated a lively contest on the floor of the meeting was that proposing that the registration fee of athletes be increased from 25 to 50 cents a year. Delegates representing the smaller clubs led the opposition and when it was finally put to a vote the recommendation was defeated by a tie ballot, thirty-five for and thirty-five against. It requires a majority vote to carry such measures. As soon as it was apparent that the recommendation had been defeated, Thomas Lockhart of the Yorkville Catholic Club proposed that the fee be increased from 25 to 35 cents. This was unanimously agreed upon.

Boost Club Members' Dues.

The high cost of living further hit the athletes of this district when it was unanimously decided to increase the dues of each member of the different clubs in the Metropolitan Association from $7.50 a year to $10. This will affect all clubs alike.

In order to do away with all devices which can be used as a support in shot putting, a recommendation was offered and adopted prohibiting "the use of any device which can be used as a support in aiding to put the shot." This is direct action against the employment of the leather harness for the hand which has been used by many shot putters for the last several years. This leather harness consists of a leather strap around the wrist and small finger and across the palm of the hand around each finger. It also is intended to do away with the use of gauze bandages and adhesive tape.

During the meeting it was formally announced that a civic reception will be accorded the American Olympic athletes on Saturday, Oct. 2, under the auspices of Mayor John F. Hylan's Committee. A parade will form in the vicinity of Fifty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue. It will be composed of A. A. U. clubs, national guard units and other organizations which will act as an escort for the members of the Olympic team. The athletes later will be received at the City Hall by Mayor Hylan, who will decorate each athlete with a gold medal. In the evening, at the Waldorf-Astoria, the members of the team will be the guests of the city at a banquet.

VANDEVENTER IS VICTOR.

Defeats Paul Martin in Hard Match in Hoboken Tennis.

Play was continued yesterday afternoon in both men's and women's singles in the tournament of the Hoboken Tennis Club at Castle Point, Hoboken.

Throckmorton defaulted, but though the champion of 1919 had disappeared from the picture nothing was lost in the interest of the proceedings of yesterday. Delaney, Fred C. Anderson and Ludlow Vandeventer were the players who advanced by reason of expert performances. Ludlow Vandeventer defeated Paul Martin by superiority of aggressiveness, winning from his rival by crowding the net at every opportunity. Another important victory in the fourth round was that of Fred Anderson over Joseph W. Fox, the fine chop stroke expert of the Harlem Tennis Club. The Brooklynite won by scores of 6—4, 6—3, but he never played a harder game in his life than he did against Fox.

Play was started yesterday afternoon in the women's singles, with the result that only a dozen players remain of the excellent entry list. One of yesterday's winners was Mrs. E. V. Lynch, who was one of the stars in the national competition in Philadelphia last week. Miss Marie Wagner advanced to the third round by virtue of successive victories over Miss Kidder and Mrs. Lowenthal. The summaries:

Singles—Third Round—P. Walden won from Harold Throckmorton by default; Edward Oelsner defeated A. L. Bruneau, 6—2, 6—1. Fourth Round—P. Walden defeated F. H. Devitt, 6—4, 6—3; Fred C. Anderson defeated Joseph W. Fox 6—4, 6—3; Ludwig Vandeventer defeated Paul Martin, 3—6, 6—1, 6—3.

Women's Singles—First Round—Mrs. McMillan defeated Mrs. G. B. Hirsch, 3—6, 10—8, 6—2; Miss Florence Sheldon defeated Mrs. Paul Martin, 6—0, 6—0; Mrs. A. Lowenthal defeated Miss R. Christy, 7—5, default; Miss Marie Wagner defeated Miss M. Kidder, 6—1, 6—3; Mrs. D. C. Mills defeated Miss C. Hopper, 6—2, 6—3; Mrs. Ingo Hartmann defeated Miss M. Calder, 7—5, 6—2; Mrs. Victor Woodhouse defeated Miss Louise Farquhar, 6—2, 6—0; Miss H. Newhouse defeated Miss E. Pallinich, 4—6, 9—7, 6—2; Mrs. E. V. Lynch defeated Mrs. Sidney Wolff, 7—5, 6—3.

Second Round—Mrs. Stephen Bruban defeated Mrs. N. Dain, 6—4, 6—3; Mrs. Ernest Quiener defeated Mrs. S. Straus, 6—2, 9—7; Miss Wagner defeated Mrs. Lowenthal, 6—1, 6—0; Mrs. D. C. Mills defeated Mrs. Ingo Hartmann, 6—3, 6—4.

Third Fire in White Sox Park.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—The third fire in two days at the Chicago White Sox Baseball Park tonight did damage estimated at $1,000 to the left field bleachers. Rumors of a plot were scuffed at by the club officials and firemen. They declared that they believed tonight's fire was due to a cigar or cigarette butt. Both the other fires were small and quickly extinguished.

ROSE SCOTT MAKES NEW MARK IN MILE

Sets Record for Season, 2:06½, in Two-Year-Old Trot at Columbus.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 20.—The Fall Grand Circuit Race meeting opened here today with weather conditions ideal and the making of a new season's race record by Rose Scott in the two-year-old trot, The Horse Review Futurity. The filly won this race in time which made it the fastest three-heat event of the year for two-year-olds. Her mile in 2:06½ also lowered the season's mark for this age, held until today by Bogulusa at 2:08.

Nelson Dillon won the first heat of this race, but could not ward off the Murphy entry in the remaining miles. Because of the illness of Mr. Murphy, Harry Fleming was behind Rose Scott in her record performance.

Miss Perfection, favorite in the 2:11 trot, won after dropping the first heat to Winterwood, who broke in each of the succeeding heats in the stretch.

Hal Malone, played to win the King Stake for 2:06 eligibles, captured this race in straight heats. Russell Boy, who finished second in the first heat, was later drawn on account of lameness. So many horses were entered in the 2:18 pace that it was split into two divisions. Oro Direct won first money in the first division and Dan Elger in the second.

GORSKY WINS TWO BOUTS.

Pastime A. C. Athlete Outboxes Dempswolfe in N. Y. A. C. Tourney.

The last of the New York A. C.'s Summer boxing shows was held last night in the gymnasium of the Mercury Foot organization and attracted one of the largest crowds of the year. Bouts in four classes were contested and a special exhibition in the 130-pound class between George Murphy of the St. Bartholomew's A. C. and E. S. Davis of the Paulist A. C. brought the show to an end. Murphy received the judges' decision after three rounds of fast ring work.

The stellar battle of the evening, however, was provided by H. Gorsky of the Pastime A. C., and O. Dempswolfe of the National A. C., who clashed in the final of the 138-pound class. Gorsky had previously defeated Jock Kane of the Brooklyn A. A. in a preliminary encounter, but he had even less difficulty with Dempswolfe, who absorbed a great deal of punishment before losing the judges' decision to Gorsky. The latter started with a rush in the opening round and sent his opponent to the mat with a stiff drive to the head. Dempswolfe weathered the round, but in the next period he went down again before a rain of blows. Gorsky was never able to finish the National A. C. boxer, but he won the judges' award by a wide margin.

In the 105-pound final, L. Barringer was the victor over J. Rafferty of the Paulist A. C. in three rounds. The 130-pound final brought together Joseph Saviola of the Union Settlement A. C. and D. Servedio of the Paulist A. C. Servedio winning after an extra round had been ordered by the referee when the judges could not agree. In the extra period Servedio had a clear edge, taking the aggressive and outpointing Saviola by a considerable margin. He won the judges' decision.

The encounter was Saviola's second four-round bout of the evening. In his preliminary with Frank Young of St. Mary's A. C., the Union Settlement A. C. man was forced to go an extra period before the judges gave him the award.

The winner in the 118-pound class was Harry Evans of the Holy Cross Lyceum, who beated Harry Elster of the Pastime A. C. in three rounds. Elster previously had stopped M. Weintraub, unattached, in one round, battering his opponent shortly after the first bell and keeping up the attack until the referee intervened and stopped the bout. The only other knockout was in the preliminary of the 105-pound class, in which Rafferty sent C. Carnevale, unattached, to the ropes in the opening period. Carnevale was completely outclassed and was soon helpless against his aggressive opponent.

The summaries:

Final Bout—Barringer defeated Rafferty, three rounds, judges' decision.

118-Pound Class, Trials—Harry Evans, Holy Cross Lyceum, defeated M. Bernstein, Paterson Y. M. C. A., three rounds, judges' decision; Harry Elster, Pastime A. C., stopped M. Weintraub, unattached, in one round.

Final Bout—Evans defeated Elster, three rounds, judges' decision.

138-Pound Class, Trials—H. Gorsky, Pastime A. C., defeated Jock Kane, Brooklyn A. A., three rounds, judges' decision; O. Dempswolfe, National A. C., defeated N. Penuti, Paulist A. C., three rounds, judges' decision.

Final Bout—Gorsky defeated Dempswolfe, three rounds, judges' decision.

150-Pound Class, Special Bout—George Murphy, St. Bartholomew's A. C., defeated E. S. Davis, Paulist A. C., three rounds, judges' decision.

To Play Off Postponed Game.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—The postponed game between Chicago and Detroit of April 16 will be played here Sept. 27, it was announced today. The Detroit club originally agreed to play the game here some time ago, but instead went to St. Louis and played a postponed game there. The question was taken before the Board of Arbitration of the American League, and on the recommendation of Colonel Ruppert, a member of the board, the game will be played here.

GREY LAG BEATEN IN AQUEDUCT RACE

Colt Recently Purchased by Sam Hildreth Loses Oakdale Handicap to Knobbie.

Grey Lag, the colt Sam C. Hildreth recently purchased from Max Hirsch for a price said to be more than $40,000, proved a disappointment in his first effort under the silks of his new owner at Aqueduct yesterday. This son of Star Shoot was a well-fancied favorite in the Oakdale Handicap, a six-furlong dash for two-year-olds, and was beaten a length and a half by the Quincy Stable's Knobbie. R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s Dry Moon was third among five starters for the $3,000 purse.

The defeat of Grey Lag yesterday did not necessarily mean that he is not a high-class youngster, for he was under a heavy handicap. He had been assigned 126 pounds, while Knobbie carried but 106, and Grey Lag found that he could not make that concession to so good a colt as Knobbie. Even with his high impost the Hildreth colt was easily second, saving that position by three lengths, but the weight told on him so much in the final furlong that he had to relinquish his lead, which he had held all the way from the start.

It was the first time in his brief racing career that Grey Lag had attempted to carry such weight, but he had won so easily in the Champagne Stakes at Belmont Park that he was heavily backed and was an even-money choice at post time. The fact that he had brought such a high price in the recent sale also had some influence on those who backed him.

Others in the race were Our Boots and Pluribus, the latter returning to the races after being out of training for some time. Pluribus was neglected, and his price went up steadily, despite the fact that he has been regarded as a high-class colt. His race showed that he was not ready for a severe test, especially with the top weight of 128 pounds. He finished a bad last, but showed fine speed for a short distance.

Weight Tells on Him.

Grey Lag had no excuse other than that he could not make the weight concession. He left the barrier with a rush closely attended by Pluribus. The two raced head and head for three furlongs when Grey Lag forced Pluribus to drop out of the contest. Turning into the stretch he was nearly two lengths in front of the balance of the field and apparently going easily.

In the meantime, Knobbie had come around the field and, entering the stretch, made a desperate rush. With the light weight he carried he soon gained on the leader until, at the furlong pole, he poked his nose in front. Fator did his best to keep the favorite up, but Knobbie drew away in the last sixteenth to win easily as Grey Lag weakened. Dry Moon was easily the best of the others. Our Boots was badly outrun all the way, while Pluribus dropped back to last and was not persevered with.

The favorites fared badly throughout the day, only two of them finishing in front. One was Mrs. G. W. Loft's Sweepment which won the steeplechase event for maiden jumpers. Sweepment proved to be much the best and improved in his fencing over his last effort when he had a rider. He had plenty of speed on the flat and Smoot was able to keep him in hand at the obstacles. Sweepment went to the front at the start and forced the pace all the way. Earlocker was the only one that remained close to him, and he finished second five lengths back. Surf was third.

Long Trail, making his first effort over the jumps, gave the spectators much amusement by his manner of clearing the fences. He appeared to be aiming at the moon every time he went into the air and made sure that he cleared with plenty to spare. He lost so much ground that he was finally pulled up.

Ting-a-Ling Overlooked.

The first race, in which a dozen cheap sprinters went to the post for a six-and-a-half-furlong dash, was won by W. C. Clancy's Ting-a-Ling, which got up in the last few strides to win by a nose at 5 to 1. Nightstick was second and Prince of Como third. Bon Tromp, which was so heavily played in the last few minutes that his price went to 13 to 5 and made him post favorite, was never a contender. Ting-a-Ling was always close to the pace. He moved up steadily in the stretch and outgamed Nightstick at the end.

The fifth race, at a mile and a furlong, was won by E. D. Springer's Pierre-a-Feu, which got up to win by a length from Great Gull, with Regressa third. Pierre-a-Feu and Aurum were both so well backed that they were practically equal choices, with Aurum being a slight favorite at post time. Aurum failed to become a contender. With the winner, who was ridden back to leave the barrier, and raced far back at the field for a mile, Pierre-a-Feu appeared out of it until he turned into the stretch when he moved up, and, under a vigorous ride, took the lead in the last sixteenth. G. W. Loft's Tamarisk proved much the best of the two-year-old fillies in the final event at five furlongs. She raced in front all the way and won by five lengths from Joan Marie, with Fright, the favorite, third.

Eastern Horses Are Entered In Cup Race at Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 20. — A number of Eastern horsemen will make an effort to win the Louisville Cup, a race at two miles, which will be run during the meeting at Churchill Downs, according to the entries which have just closed. Among the well-known distance performers named for the event are Exterminator, Sir Barton and Boniface, and it is quite certain that the first named will be a starter if he meets with no mishaps in the meantime. Audacious is another Eastern-owned horse which will probably be a starter, as he will be raced in Kentucky during the late Autumn.

JUDGE BUDROW IS VICTOR OVER SURE

Two-year-old Scores Impressive Lexington Victory—Helium a Disappointment.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 20. — While there was no feature on the card here this afternoon there was some good racing in which two-year-olds played the chief part. One of the best of these contests was the five and a half furlong dash, in which M. C. Moore's Judge Budrow scored an impressive victory over Sure, Nurse Jane and others, winning by three lengths after wearing down Sure in the stretch run.

Helium, which was the favorite, was a disappointment and failed to get anywhere near the leaders after the first three furlongs.

FALL SPORTS AT SCHOOLS.

Full Program Arranged by P. S. A. L. for Athletic Centres.

New York's After-School Athletic Centres will be opened under the supervision of the Public Schools Athletic League in the various districts of the city, commencing Sept. 27. This was announced recently, following a conference called by Dr. A. K. Aldinger, Director of Physical Training of the Department of Education. The P. S. A. L. officials have planned an extensive program of activities with which to occupy the thousands of embryo athletic champions who daily utilize the facilities for play and beneficial recreation afforded at the various centres.

These centres provide play space for thousands of pupils after school hours from 3 to 5 P. M. They are in charge of teachers in the schools in which they are located. All forms of athletic games are promoted, and tournament series in basketball, baseball and soccer football are conducted. In addition to team games, track and field sports are taught, and a form of training is given to the boys to make them both proficient and physically fit to participate in the various championship meets held during the school year.

This activity of the Department of Education, which has been in successful operation for the last five years, takes off the streets in the most congested districts of the city thousands of boys and girls and gives them a clean and wholesome play centre in their schoolyards wherein they play and exercise under proper supervision.

The advantages gained by this system of supervised play and recreation in schoolyards are many.

Vardon and Ray Break Losing Streak by Beating Dowling and Frank McNamara.

ARE TWO UP IN MORNING

And Finish the Afternoon Round Three Up on Thirty-fifth After Americans Had Crept Close.

Vardon and Ray did some winning yesterday, after a string of straight defeats. Perhaps it was the cool, golfing weather that was to their liking, or perhaps it was the Cherry Valley Club's course at Garden City which pleased them. At any rate they proved to Jack Dowling of Starsdale that when they have an old grudge to settle, there is no stopping them.

Dowling, it will be recalled, teamed with Tom McNamara a few weeks back and slapped a stinging defeat on the Britishers at his home links. Yesterday Dowling paired with another McNamara brother, Frank, the professional at Cherry Valley, but there was a different story. After taking a lead of two holes during the morning round, Ray and Vardon ultimately closed out the match on the thirty-fifth, winning by 3 and 1.

Cherry Valley tried a new stunt yesterday and found it worked to a nicety. They said to themselves, said they, "Vardon and Ray are conceding too many putts; let's make them work for their laurels and hole all of them out." No sooner thought than arranged. So the gallery of several hundred was treated yesterday to the spectacle of seeing the quartet of exhibitors tapping down even the tiny putts of a few inches long. There was a reason, and a good one, however, since the club paid well for this treat. Above and in addition to the fee of $400 for the services of the Englishmen, it offered several prizes. The club was quite safe in putting up $100 for any one who would break a course record, for no one came even near it. The record is 71 for Cherry Valley, held by Frank McNamara, with the young amateur, Grant A. Peacock, backing him up with several rounds made in 72.

Vardon Has Afternoon Low Score.

Then the club offered $25 for the low individual score of the morning and the same amount for the afternoon. This resulted in a tie in the morning between Dowling and Vardon, each having 77. Then to make a jubilee day of it, Vardon won the afternoon purse by a wide margin with his 74. Dowling was in the running up to the thirteenth hole, when his ball was lost in medium long grass and despite the collective efforts of a couple of hundred seachers it remained lost. Vardon took a liking to the course, for he felt more or less at home. Cherry Valley has most of its greens built according to the English system. They are mostly squares of the fairway which are cut short and seeded. Few of the putting surfaces at this club are especially constructed punch-bowls, or trickily trapped.

The morning's match belonged to either side right up almost to the last hole. Indeed, only two holes were won, both of these by the foreigners to give them their lead of 2 up. Vardon and Dowling had individual balls of 77, and Ray and McNamara were always right at their heels and returned scores of 78 each. It was a good, fair, intelligent, close test of professional golf.

Ray was the sole one of the quartet who played par on the first and consequently took his 4 easily enough for a win. McNamara halved the second with the Englishman, but on the third hole both Vardon and Ray had 4s to the Americans' 5s. That ended the winning for the round, every succeeding hole being halved. One of the fanciest shots was Vardon's on the seventeenth. He took a 5 here to all the others' 4s, but he was mighty happy to get it. His second skidded over the hole and landed in a bunker. In chipping out he had to knee in order to make the stroke, but he gained the green on his third and took two putts.

Britons Increase Their Lead.

There was considerably more exchange of holes in the afternoon round and infinitely more interest as a match. Starting with their lead of 2 up the Britons little by little piled up an advantage of four holes by the thirtieth, and for a few minutes the match began to seem a walkaway, particularly as McNamara was putting poorly and losing valuable chances for halves. But then the tall, young home club pro clicked off a commendable 4 on the next hole, after Dowling had lost his ball so mysteriously, and with this as an incentive, Dowling started in to tear things up. The diminutive Scarsdale golfer won the thirty-second with a birdie 3, the thirty-third with a brilliant par 3, bringing the Englishmen to 1 up. But with three holes to go, Vardon clicked off a par 4 on the thirty-fourth and both of the Britons made birdie threes on the next, officially ending the match.

Putting in the pinches started the sparks flying in the afternoon. Vardon curled down a twelve-footer on the third hole to win with a birde 3, and Dowling sank an eight-footer for a birdie 4 on the next. Then Ray reit it was his turn. After Vardon had taken three taps on the eighth green for a 5 and after Dowling had lost irretrievable distance on a sliced drive, big Ted played the hole exactly right for the par of 4. McNamara lost a fine opportunity for halving when his short three-foot putt stayed out.

All four messed up the thirteenth, where Dowling lost his ball. Ray's was lost for a time, but was located finally by his eagle eyes, but then he sliced it slightly to rough while Vardon was pulling his second to trouble on the left. This gave McNamara his chancce and he got his 4 for the win. Dowling holed a ten-footer to win the next and on the short 180-yard fifteenth, he was the only one of thhe four to gain the green on his tee shot and won another, after two faultless putts.

Vardon put his side back to 2 up by winning the sixteenth. Although he had pulled his drive to rough, and had kited his approach just short of the green, he was the only one to get a par 4, Ray having sliced both his drive and his second to long grass and both Americans having consumed three putts. Birdies by Vardon and Ray on the seventeenth gave them the victory, 3 up and 1 to go.

Annapolis Football Men Start Reporting to Folwell

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 20.—Shortening by ten days their leave of a month, the members of last year's Naval Academy football squad began to arrive in Annapolis today and the whole squad of forty, excepting the members of the Olympic rowing party, is expected by tomorrow. Those on the field this afternoon included Captain Ewen, right end; Larson, centre, and Koehler, Cruise and Walters, backs. Moore, right guard, and King, right tackle, with several important substitutes, are with the oarsmen and will not return before Oct. 1. Folwell talked earnestly to the arrivals, telling them of the importance of hard work and united efforts, particularly as the season opens in ten days.

TWO MORE COACHES ON HARVARD STAFF

Babe Felton and Ralph Horween Arrive to Help Whip Gridiron Backfield Into Shape.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 20.—Harvard's 'Varsity football coaching staff was increased today by the arrival of two of last season's 'Varsity players who will be with the Cambridge outfit pretty much all season. Babe Felton, who played quarter with Billy Murray in all of Harvard's important games last Fall, arrived to work with the former captain on the big squad of quarters. The other new coach was Ralph Horween, full back and drop kicker of last year's eleven. Horween will be here a week this time, but a little later he will come East again.

The Monday work of the 'Varsity squad was everything but easy, the squad having had a two days' layoff and the coaches being eager to get things in tirm to send the first-string players against the scrubs tomorrow. The scrimmaging so far has been among the first team candidates and has not been allowed to become very rough. Coach Fisher ran his three teams about as they were last Friday. His rush line contained what have appeared to be some of the most promising line men, but ends have been shifted in and out, and the backfields have been changed so frequently that the coaches have had no chance to see the best combination get into the thick of things together.

Keith Clark, the Colorado end rush, did no hard work. Macomber of last year's squad working with Kane as a one-wing combination. Lockwood and Tolbert were again the tackles and Woods and Brown the guards. Lockwood appears to be a lot stronger and more aggressive than he was a year ago when he was with the ends, and if Hubbard, last season's substitute tackle, is retained as a guard, Lockwood's chances for being a first string tackle as the practice games begin are excellent. The backfield which worked the longest with this rush line combination comprised Buell, last year's freshman quarter back, and Churchill, Hamilton and Humphrey as running backs. Humphrey again showed good form and distance in punting. The 'Varsity's work was held behind the closed practice fence for the first time this year.

FORDHAM MEN WORK HARD.

Maroon Football Coach Prepares for Game with N. Y. Aggies.

Football practice was started again at Fordham Field yesterday afternoon when the Maroon athletes donned their togs for the first time after the Sunday layoff. Head Coach Joe Dumoe put his charges through a strenuous workout to get them into shape for the opening contest with the New York Aggies on Oct. 2. While practice yesterday was confined mostly to signal drills, the tentative first team which Dumoe has selected worked very well, showing speed and precision.

Jerry Noonan, the youngster who played with the Northwestern University freshman team last year, is working out at the quarter back position and seems to be shaping up well. He is a good open field runner and an accurate tosser of forward passes.

Two new candidates reported yesterday, Steve Bessmer, a half back, and Ray O'Toole, who played tackle at Pennington School, New Jersey, last year.

N. Y. U. SQUAD INCREASED.

Opening of College Brings Out More Football Candidates.

With the start of the academic work at New York University yesterday the football squad was practically doubled by the return of the students. After working at the tackling dummy the candidates were separated into groups, the backfield men working on passes and kicks, while the forwards had a long line scrimmage. Three groups of fourteen linemen each, under the supervision of Coaches Gargan, Wall and Cusack, were busy while Howard Cann put the backs through their paces.

A call was issued for candidates for the freshman team and a group of forty men reported. Among those who signified their intention of playing were many men noted in scholastic circles. Five members of the Hamilton Institute team of last year will be on the squad. Tom Gargan, brother of the Violet coach, the Brennan brothers and Beck are the local boys who will be at the Heights, Carbone of Marblehead, Mass., and Ruddy Knipe of St. John's, Brooklyn, are also out for the team.

SETBACK FOR COLGATE.

Vore, Candidate for Guard, Breaks Collarbone and Is Out for Season.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Sept. 20.—The small Colgate football squad received a bad setback today, when Stan Vore, a promising guard candidate, broke his collarbone in tackling practice. Vore was a member of the Worcester Academy team last season and is one of the two Maroon candidates weighing over 190 pounds. He will be out of the game for the season.

Earl C. Abel, '15, an All-American guard of that year, has reported in response to appeals for help and will assist in coaching line candidates.

NIGHT DRILL AT RUTGERS.

Long Signal Practice Held in Preparation for Saturday's Game.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 20.—Night practice was started by the Rutgers football team here tonight in preparation for the Ursinus game Saturday. A long signal drill was held. It is expected that the 'Varsity line-up for the opener will be picked tomorrow afternoon. Scrimmaging is now a regular part of practice work. Punting was featured today. Coach Sanford, who was called away last week, is expected back tomorrow.

COLUMBIA ASSURED OF HEAVY ELEVEN

Coach Decides Upon Tentative 'Varsity Lineup—Will Average About 181 Pounds.

Coach Buck O'Neill yesterday began to shape the Columbia 'Varsity eleven that will face Trinity in the opening game a week from next Saturday. After a week of appraising the material that has been practicing on South Field, the Blue and White coach selected a first team for the signal drill that bore all the earmarks of a 'Varsity aggregation. The line and ends were filled by the most promising candidates on the squad, and the backfield, with possibly one exception, had an air of permanency about it.

The absence of Charlie Applebaum, who is still nursing a wrenched knee, and ex-Captain Frank Canapary prevented the observers from getting a definite line on the backfield. Both were members of the 1919 backfield, and are strong contenders for positions this year. Yesterday's backs were Harris, quarter back; Thornton and Moszczenski, half backs, and Allen, full back. Allen weighs only 154 pounds, but is lightning fast. He may be shifted to another position where weight is not so essential as at full back. Applebaum in that case would return to his old post. Canapary's regular place was taken by Thornton, whose great value lies in his punting. As an offensive player, however, it is doubtful whether he will be able to measure up to Canapary.

In the line, Captain Jack Kienninger was at centre, and the guards were Bill Miller, who weighs 235 pounds, and Walder, a 206-pound graduate from last year's freshman eleven. The tackles were Meyers, also a freshman player in 1919, and Scovil, 'Varsity regular. At the wing positions were Forsythe, who played at guard last season, and Pulleyn, a half back from the freshman ranks of 1919.

As it ran through signal drill yesterday the first eleven had an average weight of slightly more than 181 pounds, and if Applebaum returns to full back this figure would be increased to 183, making the 1920 'Varsity the heaviest that has represented Columbia since 1915. The brawniest player in yesterday's lineup was Miller, who tips the beam at 235 pounds, and the lightest was Allen, who played at Suwanee before coming to Columbia. Next to Miller was Walder with 206, and Meyers with 195. The two heaviest men in the backfield were Harris, quarter back, and Moszczenski, half back, each 172 pounds. The average weight of the line, from end to end, was in excess of 188 pounds.

The first scrimmage of the year will be held tomorrow, and it is probable that the same first eleven will be pitted against the second team, although changes will be made as experiments by O'Neill. The ends especially will be shifted about, some of the other promising men being O'Brien, from De La Salle High School, and Simons from Staten Island. Burt of the 1919 freshman team may also receive a trial at the wings, as will the reserves from last year, Larner and Grace.

The first line scrimmage workout was ordered yesterday, the first and second forward lines engaging each other at close grips. The initial drill of this kind resulted in Modarelli, 'Varsity guard, having his nose fractured. He retired from the field and it will be a week or more before he will be fit for strenuous practice work. The line scrimmage was carried out under the direction of O'Neill and Tom Thorp, who also gave the linemen a stiff drill at the charging and bucking machines. The tackling dummy was brought into play as usual and the backfield men had their customary drill in open field running, with the ends opposing them in uneven formations.

The only new angle to the practice, with the exception of the line workout, was a drill in the forward pass.

The lineup of the first and second teams yesterday, with the weights of the 'Varsity, was as follows:

Neither Scrubs Nor Second Eleven Can Keep Yale Regulars from Crossing Goal Line.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 20.—Yale's squad of football players today started their third week of practice with an hour's scrimmage when the scrub team clashed with the 'Varsity. Two full backs were tried out. Fred Webb started the engagement, but "Doc" Jordan, Captain of last year's freshmen eleven, played most of the time. His ground gaining in line plunges was the feature of the matinee.

The first touchdown scored against the scrub team was made by Jordan after smashing through on the ten-yard line. An attempt to kick a goal failed. Then 'Varsity then wore the scrubs down until they were on the five-yard line, when Head Coach Tad Jones ordered the second 'Varsity to take their places.

The second 'Varsity was unable to hold the regulars, even with the advantage already gained, and Aldrich went over on the first play for a touchdown, failing to kick the goal. During the scrimmage Aldrich tried three field goals, none of them succeeding. Of the forward passing tried during the scrimmaging, only one toss from Lay to Kempton for a five-yard gain succeeded. The 'Varsity tried two sets of ends, Dicky Dilworth and Ray Munger starting, and Shevlin and Calhoun later playing. The rest of the 'Varsity were Dickens and Walker, tackles; Acosta and Herr, guards; Galvin, centre; Kempton, quarter back; Aldrich and Lay, half backs.

The second 'Varsity lined up: Trowbridge, centre; Crulkshank and Bean, guards; Quaille and McKay, tackles; Speenden and Shepard, ends; Murphy, quarter back; French and Campbell, half backs; Boltwood, full back.

Guy Hutchinson of the 1905 eleven joined the staff of coaches and will coach the quarter backs the remainder of the season.

To Contest Jersey Net Title.

The mixed doubles tennis championship of New Jersey will be played on the clay courts of the Englewood Field Club, Englewood, N. J., starting tomorrow, Sept. 22, and continuing following days. Entries may be made to Earl Fink, Knickerbocker Road, Englewood (Telephone Englewood 323 J), no later than tonight. Play will commence at 3:30 P. M. tomorrow and 4 P. M. other days. Englewood may be reached by the Erie Railroad from Jersey City or by the 125th Street Ferry to Fort Lee, and thence by trolley.

Asserts Only Purpose Is Benevolent and That We Will Retire When Country Can Stand Alone.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Secretary of State Colby issued a statement tonight in defense of the Government's policy to Haiti and replying to attacks during the present political campaign.

Some of these attacks have been launched during the last week by Senator Harding, and in other quarters there have been criticisms of the attitude of the American Government toward Haiti, of the position of the National City Bank of New York in Haitian finance and of the conduct of the American Marines in Haiti. The prepared statement given out at the State Department tonight definitely insists that the American Government is engaged upon a task of benevolent purpose in the black republic and declares that the position of this country with relation to Haiti "should not be misunderstood" nor "misrepresented even under the temptations that a political campaign presents to irresponsible utterance and conscious unveracity."

There has been an attempt made to make it appear that the National City Bank of New York, which has acquired the stock of those foreign interests which formally controlled the Banco Nacional of Haiti, had seized the resources of Haiti and become the financial dictator of that country. In its statement tonight the State Department announces that the National City Bank does not control directly or indirectly the customs collections nor is it the financial arbiter of Haiti. The text of the announcement says:

"This country is engaged in a task which has only a benevolent purpose. It is a task which was undertaken for the benefit of the Haitian people and with their acquiescence the task was defined in a treaty entered into by the two countries. The work which the United States undertook to do is nearing completion and upon its completion this Government hopes to withdraw and leave the administration of the island to the unaided efforts of the Haitian people.

America Forced to Enter.

"As is well known, for many years prior to 1915, the island of Haiti was the scene of many revolutions and chronic disorder. The revolutions were sometimes accompanied by wholesale massacres and fatalities. Public authority had broken down and the people in the rural districts were frequently reduced to starvation. The culmination of those conditions came with the murder of President Villbrun Guillaume Sam, who was dragged by a mob from the French legation, where he had taken refuge. This gave affront to the rights of the French Government and resulted in the landing of French troops in Port au Prince.

"At this time Haiti's European creditors were pressing for payment of the foreign debts of Haiti and the fear was frequently entertained that murder of the Haitian President would prompt an aggressive program on the part of some European Governments which would not only challenge the Monroe Doctrine but arraign the United States for a failure to perform duties which it had expressly avowed as a part of the Monroe Doctrine. These duties have nowhere found more explicit statement than in the addresses and messages of the late President Roosevelt. In an address delivered by him in August, 1906, he said:

"'Inasmuch as by the Monroe Doctrine we prevent other nations from interfering on this side of the water, we should, ourselves, in good faith, help our sister republics upward in peace and order.'

"In the performance of this duty, and with no thought but to help the Haitian people until order could be restored on the island, the United States, with full assent of public opinion in this country and of Haiti, occupied the City of Port au Prince on Sept. 3, 1915. Proclamation of martial law was made by Admiral Caperton, commanding officer of the forces of the United States in Haiti and Haitian waters. It was expressly stated that no interference was contemplated or would be suffered with the proceedings of the Constitutional Government and Congress of Haiti, or with the administration of justice in the courts of law, which did not affect the military operations or the authorities of the United States Government. All municipal and civil employes were requested to continue in their vocations without change, and the express pledge was made by the military authorities not to interfere with the functions of the civil administration or with the courts.

Convention Was Signed.

"A few days thereafter a convention was signed by the two Governments expressing the mutual desires of both countries to strengthen the amity between them by measures for the common advantage. The United States obligated itself to assist Haiti in three specific ways: To co-operate with the Haitian Government in placing the revenues and finances of Haiti on a stable basis; to help the Haitian Government to maintain tranquillity throughout the republic; and to contribute in other ways to advance the prosperity of the republic and welfare of its people.

"The United States has confined its energies entirely to the announced purposes of its occupation, and as a result thereof complete tranquillity exists throughout the republic. The Haitian revenues are greatly improved and much progress has been made in road construction, port works, establishment of telegraphs, &c.

"The results have been brought about by Americans appointed under the provisions of the treaty, and from every quarter in Haiti, with the exception of a few centres of selfish and interested agitation, credit and gratitude are freely manifested and expressed to the Government.

"The course of this country has been moderate and dictated only by the desire to meet its duties and not any degree to go beyond them. Had less been done, this country would have been guilty of a dereliction of duty and might have been exposed to sound criticism.

Gives Policy on National City Bank.

"As to assertions that have appeared in the press recently to the effect that the National City Bank of New York has received improper support from this Government in the matter of its Haitian Branch, the following are the facts:

"1. No assistance or support has been given the National City Bank in Haiti other than that which would be extended to any first-class American bank in any foreign country.

"2. Far from encouraging the National City Bank in obtaining monopolistic privileges in connection with its interests in Haiti, the department has, so far as it has had an opportunity to exert an influence, used it toward preventing the National City Bank from enjoying monopolistic privileges. The National City Bank owned 50 per cent. of the stock of the Banque National de la Republic d'Haiti, and last year when the approval of the department was sought to the purchase by the National City Bank of a still larger interest in the French bank the approval of this Government was only given after the National City Bank had agreed to certain important modifications in the charter of the Banque National de la Republic d'Haiti, insisted upon by the Department of State and all of which were designed in the interests of the Haitian people, to eliminate the monopolistic features of the original concession granted by Haiti.

"3. The National City Bank does not control, directly or indirectly, the customs collections, nor is it the financial arbiter of Haiti. It exercises no control of loans, exchange rates or commercial contractions, as has been charged."

Told Salaries Will Be Withheld.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (Associated Press).—Withholding of the salaries of the President, the Secretaries, State Councillors and Palace Interpreter of Haiti will be continued until the Government of the occupied island adopts a less antagonistic attitude toward the American authorities, the State Department has informed J. Barau, Haitian Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Mr. Barau protested against the action of Col. John McIlhenny, the American financial adviser, in withholding the salaries of these officials who, the financial adviser contends, apparently are unwilling to carry out certain provisions of the treaty entered into at the time of the occupation of that country by American marines.

According to Mr. Barau, these officials have not received any salaries since June, although other public officers in Haiti have been regularly paid.

ASSERTS NAVY BARS NEWS FROM HAITI

Accuser Attacks American Government's Method of Investigating Complaints of Misrule.

INTIMATES A WHITEWASH

Marine Officer and Admiral Sent to Report on Charges Against Marines and Naval Department.

James Waldon Johnson, Acting Secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People, which sent him to Haiti to make an investigation and whose charges against the American occupation in the black republic have brought about an investigation by the United States Navy Department, yesterday in a statement challenged the methods which he asserted the Government had employed in Haiti.

"If the Navy Department will inform the American people whether a strict censorship still prevails on news from Haiti," said Mr. Johnson, "we shall better be able to estimate the reports of General Lejeune and Admiral Knapp when they are made. So far as I know no opening of the closed door on news from Haiti has yet taken place.

"Meanwhile the Administration sends, to make a report to the American people on the conduct of Marines in Haiti, the commandant of these Marines, General Lejeune and an Admiral of the Navy Department which stands accused of making Haiti unsafe for democracy. It looks suspiciously like an attempt at an official whitewashing before Congress assembles. The statement that Admiral Knapp was sent to Haiti more as a representative of the State than of the Navy Department is obviously an attempt to gloss over the facts.

"It should be borne in mind that there has yet been no official denial of the charges made against the Administration by Herbert W. Seligman, who was in Haiti at the time I was, and by myself, both Mr. Seligman and myself writing in The Nation. Although a number of newspapers demanded explanations from the Navy Department, no word was published in denial or extenuation until Senator Harding reiterated them. The Secretary of the Navy is reported to have characterized as 'unjust' the statement that thousands of natives in Haiti have been slaughtered. Will he dare to say it is untrue? Or will he rather attempt to characterize the people who were shot down as bandits—men who were defending their country against armed invasion?

"There has been ample time since the charges were originally made against the Administration's and the National City Bank's invasion of Haiti for some word about those charges to come from Haiti. So far as I know no newspaper in this country has published any news or any communication from Haiti.

"We do not need an investigation by officers subject to the present Administration so much as we need direct and open communication, openly arrived at, between the Haitian people and the American people. Then it will appear who were the bandits in Haiti."

Officials of the National City Bank yesterday declined to discuss in any way the alleged controversy between that institution and the Government of the Republic of Haiti. Roger L. Farnham, Vice President of the bank, reported to be in charge of its affairs in Haiti, is out of town on vacation, it was said, and John H. Fulton, General Executive Manager, sent word to newspaper men that he had "nothing to say."

ACCUSE KENTUCKY COAL MEN

Grand Jury Declares Prices Unreasonable—Indictments May Follow.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Fixing of coal prices by a Kentucky Grand Jury was said at the Department of Justice today to be the first action of this kind by a Grand Jury in the United States. The Special Grand Jury at Covington, Ky., which had been investigating soft coal prices, with a view to indictments under the Lever Act, reported to the court that prices of more than $4.50 to $5 per ton at the mines were unreasonably high in the fields under investigation.

An announcement by the Department of Justice stated that the court refused to grant the application of the coal operators for an injunction against indictments under the Lever Act.

The Grand Jury will resume its proceedings in the near future and supplement its preliminary report to the court. Prosecutions may ensue, it was stated today.

If other Grand Juries followed the example of the Kentucky Grand Jury there might be many prosecutions in Maryland and West Virginia and other soft coal producing States, officials stated.

JACK JOHNSON IS NO. 15,461.

Former Champion Is Taken to Leavenworth to Serve His Term.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Sept. 19.—Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion, was received at the Federal Penitentiary here today to begin serving a sentence of a year and a day imposed upon him at Chicago after his conviction on a charge of violating the Mann act.

The train bearing Johnson was met at the station by about 500 persons. A negro chauffeur offered the use of his car to take the party, which included two Deputy United States Marshals and three friends of the negro fighter, to the prison. Johnson climbed into the car, took the wheel and drove to the penitentiary grounds.

At the prison he was assigned No. 15,461.

Johnson has been made orderly of the prison baseball park. His duties are to keep the athletic grounds in good condition. Later on, according to the Warden, he will be made director of athletics.

ARNSTEIN IN JAIL ON CONTEMPT CHARGE

Rides to Ludlow Street in a Taxicab After Refusing to Answer Questions.

Jules W. ("Nicky") Arnstein went to Ludlow Street Jail last night. The man who had been sought for weeks in connection with the $2,500,000 bond plot finally landed back of the bars, on an order issued by Federal Judge Martin T. Manton charging contempt of court.

Arnstein, accompanied by Eugene McGee, of McGee & Fallon, his attorneys, appeared before Judge Manton yesterday morning. He was asked whether he was prepared to reconsider his previous attitude and answer questions put by Saul S. Myers, counsel for bond insurance companies.

Arnstein replied that by advice of his counsel he would refuse to answer any and all questions. Judge Manton, pointing out that the refusal constituted contempt of court, ordered Arnstein committed to Ludlow Street Jail.

Nicky arrived at the jail in a taxicab, and was assigned to a cell on the second floor. He said he expected to be out soon.

The jail authorities announced that Arnstein would be treated just like the other prisoners. He will be allowed visitors at the regular hours.

Judge Manton's order directed William J. Fallon to surrender Arnstein. It was said last night that Fallon was in Washington, trying to arrange bail for his client pending an appeal.

NO TERMS TO OUTLAWS.

Roads Deny Luring Them Back with Seniority Rights Restored.

Both the Lehigh Valley and the Lackawanna Railroads yesterday denied a report to the effect that outlaw strikers in Jersey City and Perth Amboy on the Lehigh, and at the same and other points on the Lackawanna, had returned to work on the basis of full restoration of seniority rights.

A. M. Rine, General Manager of the Lackawanna system and General Chairman of the Railroad Managers' Association, said that several strikers were taken back yesterday, but that they were employed as new men, having lost all privileges of seniority.

"The company has made no terms with the strikers," Mr. Rine said. "The men return under the same conditions as would obtain as if they had never been in the company's service."

A statement by the Lehigh system pointed out that none of the old employes had been taken back at Jersey City, although several had applied. Four got their old jobs at Perth Amboy, but they re-entered the railroad's service without any of their former rights, the statement said.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Librarians from all over the State, assembled at the Lake Placid Club for the thirtieth annual meeting of the New York Library Association, which opened today and will continue through the week, are looking forward with interest to the arrival here of the book caravan, on which Miss Mary Frank of the New York Public Library and a woman companion have been touring New England all Summer, making such sales of books as to necessitate repeated replenishing of the stock.

Lake Placid is the end of the route. The journey began at New York in June, and on Friday morning Miss Frank will relate her experiences in an address on "Caravaning with Books."

The opening session this afternoon was given over to the meetings of committees, at which arrangements for the remainder of the week were made. Tonight the librarians, numbering about 500, were welcomed to the Lake Placid Club by the club President, Melville Dewey, who was for many years State Librarian.

At tomorrow's session Hector Garneau, librarian of the Montreal Public Library, will give an address on French Canadian literature.

EUROPE VERY SICK, SAYS PHILIP GIBBS

Minds of All the Peoples Distempered and Hopeless from Loss of Idealism.

NATIONALISM IS RAMPANT

GREAT AGONIES TO COME

Only Through New Leaders and a New Spirit of Service Can Europe Recover Health.

By SIR PHILIP GIBBS.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Is Europe dying? I have put the heading of this article in the form of a question and it is a shocking question, but an old man of genius, cynical in his search of truth and now despairing (Anatole France), has said lately as a simple statement: "Europe is dying."

No man, unless he is blind or drunk with optimism, can deny that Europe at the present time is very sick. During the last year I have visited many countries of Europe and in most of them under the surface of social gayety, appearance of normal life and apparent recovery from the wounds of war, I found a sense of impending ruin and dreadful anxiety of the future.

In some countries, of course, ruin is not impending, but present and engulfing. Austria is one of them, so stricken, so starving, so helpless and hopeless that she exists on charity alone and is sapped of all vital energy. Germany, as far as I can learn, is in a better state and has within herself the means of recovery; but people over here who imagine that her factories are at full blast and that she will soon be rich and strong and truculent again are, in my opinion, deluded by false evidence.

Russia is one great empire of misery, and no mortal soul knows yet what agony she still has to suffer before her social revolution has worked itself out.

Poland, like Russia, is typhus stricken and starving in her cities, ravaged by the tidal waves of war.

Pessimism in France.

But let us come nearer home, to the countries of our Allies, the nations of victory.

What of France? France was joyous for a little while with the intoxication of that victory, after years of sacrifice and after the last turn of the tide when there had been a shiver of horror because the enemy was over the Marne again and Paris threatened, but other men in France whom I have met say: "Our million dead will never come to life again. Our debts will never be paid. Our industries are decaying for the lack of coal, which England sells us at outrageous cost and Germany does not deliver as she was pledged. Our best brains were plugged by German bullets and England won the peace which we lost, though we fought most for victory. Our population is dwindling away, and last year our deaths were higher than our births by 220,000. France, victorious, is dying."

In Italy there is no great comfort for the soul of Europe. They are staggering under a vast load of debt. Their paper money is worthless in the chase of high prices. Unemployment grows like creeping paralysis, and strikes for higher wages are ceaseless and futile. Strikes lessen the production of all the necessities of life, put prices higher and intensify the sickness of the nation. Now workmen are seizing factories, but the raw material is not in the factory sheds and there is no money to buy it.

And England? How does it go with England? Abroad they envy us. French, Italians, Germans, Austrians, Szechoslovaks, and Jugoslavs say: "Ah, England is the lucky country. She gained everything out of the war. She is richer than ever. Her empire is bigger and stronger than before. She grabbed everything. She is mistress of the world."

England Only Less Sick.

Beyond a doubt we have been less hurt by the war than most of the other countries who were in it, but, without analyzing our present discontent, it is enough to glance at headlines of today's paper or to have a little chat with any discharged and unemployed soldier to repudiate the gains of England in the war.

It is true that we have enlarged our empire by accepting certain "mandates" (Oh, blessed word!) and thereby clutching at hornets' nests which have already stung us pretty badly as in Mesopotamia.

We are not richer than ever, though no Frenchman I have met will believe otherwise. We have vast imperial tendencies, but our power of maintaining them is not by blood and bullion, for we can afford no more of either, but only by our old prestige and some new wisdom if we can find it.

The national debt, so great that its figures mean nothing to the average mind, crippling taxation of moderate incomes, high prices mocking at high wages, paper money worth little more than half its face value, lessening production and the black shadow creeping nearer of widespread unemployment because the markets of Europe are not buying or paying at English prices—all that makes the cynic smile when the foreigner envies our luck. We are only less sick of the same disease and it may have to take its course with us unless some cure is at hand.

World Has Turned from Idealism.

Is there any cure for the sickness of Europe? I think there is, though at the present time there is no sign of a remedy at hand, but only of a spreading fever, getting worse. It is a spiritual sickness as well as a physical, and just as in medical practice, it is known that health of body depends largely on health of mind, so it is hopeless to expect recovery in the body of Europe until the minds of the peoples of Europe are peaceful, hopeful and well balanced.

The cause of this insanity, for it amounts to that, is simple. It is the failure of idealism. We have been flung back from a kind of spiritual belief among all peoples, including our enemies, in war (apart from their thugs) that out of the ghastly folly of that homicidal mania there would come a new wisdom, which would lead to a new shaping of international relations, a wider sense of liberty, a nobler fellowship of men, a better chance of life for common folk.

That hope of faith has been smashed by the lack of leaders big enough to gather up all that latent idealism of the stricken peoples and use it for a forward movement, and by the intense national egotism of the peoples themselves, which soon overtowered their more generous instincts. Now we have fallen back on synicism as nations, as classes and as individuals.

What has become of that old watchword, "the war to end war?" It mocks at us with jeering laughter.

We are experimenting with new poison gases. We are bombing Arab villages. The French are hardening their faith in military science as the only safeguard of the future. The Germans are not quite certain yet whether it will pay them best to ally themselves with Russia, adopting the gospel of Bolshevism or with an anti-Democratic England if they can break our alliance with France.

The old States of the Austrian Empire will see the present Austria dying and dead rather than lift a little finger to help her.

Nationalism more narrow, more bitter, more selfish, than in the world of 1914, has replaced the fleeting hope of many peoples than there might be a real League of Nations in Europe, based upon the common sense of common folk. There is no such common sense.

Narrowness and Cynicism All About.

Within the nations there is narrow vision and candid cynicism. Where is the old comradeship of trenches which promised to break down divisions between classes? It has gone, and those who fought together are now separated by jealousies and enmities and selfishness. They are regrouping themselves for class warfare.

The greatest failure of all, in my judgment, is the failure of labor. I am for labor, having seen its men fighting and dying in great masses for no selfish purpose. Therefore many of us hoped most from labor and looked for leaders in its ranks who would show the way out of our present jungle. We thought they would give call to a new fellowship of men, overstep the narrow frontiers of national interest, get a new honesty into politics, and show power of open diplomacy. But have they done any of these things?

I see leaders of a small pettifogging spirit, fighting for "two bob" extra on the wages of their men, while their European comrades are starving for coal which at our export rates is outrageous in price. I see only the selfishness of class interest as greedy as that of the profiteer without any regard for the welfare of the nation as a whole or for the needs of Europe in distress. They refuse to "delute" labor in interests of the men who fought for them or with them.

Recent history convicts them of a secret diplomacy as bad as that of old bad statesmanship. Their press has not been more honest but even less honest than the "capitalist press" which labor has denounced. The appeals of their leaders have been not to the generous instincts of humanity, not to any noble ideal toward which we may all grope our way, but to the same little tricky, dirty, selfish interests with an underlying menace of the bloody things which have been the curse of national politics as the game is played by their opponents.

We are truly in a sick state, and although I do not believe with Anatole France that Europe is dying just yet, I think that there will be great agonies to go through unless there is a complete change of heart, a tremendous spiritual revival among the peoples of Europe.

Not by ceaseless strikes nor bloody revolutions are we going to find a remedy. Those will not increase production nor lessen prices nor stop wars, as we see by the Russian adventure.

Not by the intensification of national egotism, for that creates new hatred and does not open new markets, not by domination of the races.

New Leaders and Reconciliation.

There is only one cure for the woes of Europe and our own—not easy, but bound to come unless we are looking for downfall. It is the reconciliation of peoples, burying of old hatchets, wiping out of old villainies and co-operating in a much closer union of mutual help under the direction of a league of nations, made democratic and powerful by the free consent and ardent impulses of the common folk.

Before that can happen there must come new leaders, new enthusiasm for the ideals of life, a new spirit of unselfishness and service for the common weal—and just now we do not see them coming.

PLOT TO PROCLAIM RUPPRECHT AS KING

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Sept. 20.—The German monarchist leaders now sheltering in Switzerland have lately been noticeably busy. It transpires that they hope to begin re-establishing the thrones by setting up the Crown Prince Rupprecht as King of Bavaria. Propaganda for this purpose has been pursued actively among the Bavarian imperial troops, and in the opinion of monarchist leaders the great majority of officers and men favor Rupprecht.

According to a well-informed source, it was determined to proclaim Rupprecht King of Bavaria next Saturday, Sept. 25, when the imperial troops would be at rifle competition. But the Republican Party leaders of Bavaria have called a meeting to prevent, if possible, another Kapp escapade. From foreign monarchical circles in Switzerland I learn that should the Bavarians succeed in proclaiming Rupprecht King, Hungary would immediately proclaim Charles of Hapsburg King, and Austria would join Bavaria.

Ex-King Constantine, who is still in Switzerland, also is interested in the Bavarian-Hungarian monarchical machine, as he naturally believes their success would strengthen his position.

Ptomaine Illness on Warship Attributed to Preserved Food

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Sept. 20.—The American destroyer Gilmer, bound for Copenhagen from the United States, called at Plymouth today and landed Lieutenant Powell, who was taken to the Royal Naval Hospital suffering from ptomaine poisoning, attributed to preserved food.

There are three other cases of ptomaine poisoning aboard, including the Commander, but all are convalescent.

HARDING OUTLINES POLICY TO ENGLAND

ANTICIPATES KEEN RIVALRY

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The Morning Post correspondent who has spent the past few days at Senator Harding's home in Marion, Ohio, has had several conversations with the Senator on his policy, especially so far as it relates to England. The correspondent says that Harding was not averse to having his position clearly stated to English readers through The Morning Post and that where he has been quoted it is with his own permission.

"Harding's policy, in few words," says the correspondent, "will be a policy of 'America first,' protection of American interests, fostering and development of American commerce and an American merchant marine and recognition that the first duty of an American President and his Government is to America.

"With this policy in view there is bound to be a sharp commercial rivalry between the United States and Britain and it is inevitable that in some direction their material interests will clash. That rivalry, however, will be, in his own words, 'honorable and fair.' It will be a contest in which there will be no foul playing and will not disturb 'the long continued friendship that has existed between the two nations.'

"Harding has no hostile feelings toward England; on the contrary, he does not hesitate frankly to voice his admiration for the cleverness with which England has always managed her affairs—managed them with such ability that her power and prestige and importance have constantly increased. He says this without envy or rancor, but he also says that England has set an example that America should follow and the same single purpose that has always been the British policy of promoting national interests should now be pursued by the United States.

"It would have been crass folly for the United States," he said, "to assume a mandate over a country in which the United States has no political interest.

"In one of our conversations I brought up specifically the subject of Anglo-American relations and the commercial rivalry between the two countries as a sequel to the war which may produce some irritation. Harding anticipates some, but he does not fear it will threaten the harmony of intercourse. He believes that the United States ought to carry the great bulk of her Atlantic commerce in her own bottoms and is firmly convinced that this is for the benefit of America.

"'How foolish we have been,' he says. 'We built up England's great merchant fleet, we made Germany's mercantile marine possible, but we must not repeat that folly. We must not give our carrying trade and its profits to other nations when we ought to keep those profits in our own pockets.'

"Harding foresees a sharp struggle betwen England and the United States for the trade of South America, which, in his opinion, the United States and not England should control, because South America is within the sphere of America's influence and not England's."

ITALIAN EMPLOYERS SUBMIT UNDER PROTEST

Giolitti Assumes Full Responsibility for His Plan and Proceeds to Carry It Out.

ROME, Sept. 19.—Delegates of Italian employers informed Premier Giolitti today that they were unable to accept his formula for reaching a settlement of their controversy with their workmen, but would submit to it. The Premier answered he would assume full responsibility for imposing his plan, and later issued a decree making formal announcement of his action.

Giolitti's conference with the employers and workmen was prolonged chiefly because of the difficulty of reaching an agreement whether workers guilty of attacks on property and persons during the occupation of the factories should be reinstated. After a lengthy discussion the Premier proposed that all the workers be reinstated but that accusations against any individuals should be taken under consideration by a commission composed of two representatives from each side. The employers strongly opposed this, but Signor Giolitti intimating that he would impose it, they submitted.

It is expected the factories will be handed back to the masters tomorrow.

The Messagero says today that it learns that the General Confederation of Labor has ordered the workmen to leave seized plants and to resume normal work. The Confederation has guaranteed that order will be preserved, the newspaper adds.

Following a conference with the Minister of the Interior today representatives of the employers and workmen reached an agreement whereby the increases granted the workers shall be retroactive to July 15. This, however, does not include salaries for the days the plants were occupied by the employes.

MASSACRE BY UKRAINIANS.

Jews Reach Vienna with Story of Burning and Shooting.

VIENNA, Sept. 20.—Jewish refugees arriving in Vienna report that the troops of General Petlura, the Ukrainian leader, are committing widespread anti-Semitic outrages in East Galicia. The refugees give a list of towns and the number of alleged victims in the districts between the Russian frontier and Tarnow and say the whole region is terrorized.

They assert the Jews in Gliniaka sought refuge in a temple, whereupon the soldiers set fire to the building, burning fifteen to death. Then the soldiers shot thirty-six more in the square, according to the refugees.

CARLSBAD, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 19 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Foreign Minister Benes has agreed to permit a large number of Jewish refugees from Poland and Eastern Galicia to remain in Czechoslovakia until they are able to proceed elsewhere, says a dispatch from Prague.

The Minister has also promised M. Landman, political Secretary of the Zionist organization, on whose request this action was taken, that the refugees will be permitted to use Government barracks for their temporary accommodation.

A committee has been organized to look after their welfare, while the Joint Distribution Committee for American Jewish Relief has undertaken to attend to their immediate wants.

Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in New York City for week ending Saturday, Sept. 18th, 1920, on shipments sold out, ranged from 16.00 cents to 28.00 cents per pound and averaged 19.78 cents per pound.—Advt.

London Hears Scotch Communists Plan Coup to Seize Coal Mines and Set Up Soviet

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Rumors are in circulation throughout Lanarkshire to the effect that the leaders of the Scottish Communist movement have planned a sensational coup to be sprung at Blantyre, eight miles southeast of Glasgow, says a dispatch to The Westminster Gazette from Hamilton, Scotland.

"It is asserted that the cashiers and officials have been bluntly told that seizure of the coal pits is imminent, and that it is proposed to establish a Soviet system of mining controls," the dispatch adds. "The authorities are not skeptical of the rumors, for they are not unmindful of the undercurrent at work."

A dispatch almost similar in tone has been received by the Exchange Telegraph.

TURKISH MINISTERS QUIT THE CABINET

Failure to Gain Nationalists' Assent to the Treaty the Cause.

PRINCES' THREAT TO SULTAN

Reserve the Right to Break Allegiance to Him Because of Foreign Domination.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 19 (Associated Press).—Three members of the Turkish Cabinet have resigned because they have been unable to bring about a compromise agreement with the Turkish Nationalists by which the treaty between Turkey and the Allies may be carried out. Their action makes the selection of a new Ministry necessary.

At a conference of Princes of the imperial dynasty, held at the palace of Osman Fouad Effendi, cousin of the Sultan, yesterday, a resolution was passed declaring that the Princes reserved the right to break their allegiance to the Sultan. Prince Mehmed Selim Effendi, another cousin of the Sultan, declared that until now he had declined offers to join the Nationalists, but added that "as a Sultan is apparently a servant of the Grand Vizier," he might change his mind.

The Princes were offended because the apartments of Abdul Mejid Effendi, heir presumptive to the throne, were searched recently. They declared that the Sultan was unable to protect his dynasty from insult.

With the Greek offensive ended in order to give full chance of a compromise with the Nationalists; the French and Italian missions, it is reported, are going to Anatolia.

It is threatened that if the Nationalists refuse to submit, the Sultan will ratify the peace treaty by royal decree or else call the Crown Council to ratify it, just as when the treaty was signed. To all this the Nationalists are turning deaf ears.

While the Nationalists are friendly to Americans, they have declared that they will not recognize President Wilson's Armenian boundary line if it gives the three eastern villayets to Armenia, with or without Trebizond. It is assumed that President Wilson's line will be announced after ratification of the treaty.

The Armenians are holding to the belief that President Wilson will include Trebizond in the scope given in deciding the boundary claims. The Greek committee for the territory of the ancient Kingdom of Pontus, in the northeastern corner of Asia Minor bordering the Black Sea, has telegraphed President Wilson, however, setting forth its claims to Trebizond. The purpose of this committee appears to be to abandon the plan for a Pontus republic and to seek to make the province a Greek dependency.

Fearing the loss of Constantinople to the Greeks, the Turks are secretly assembling valuable documents and religious treasures and transferring them to the residence of the Sheik-ul-Islam and other sacred buildings.

ALANDS' CASE AND IRELAND.

Principle Approved That Affects Status of the "Emerald Isle."

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—"They talk about Isles of Aland but it really is all about Ireland," runs a punning caption in the Oeuvre this morning with reference to the League of Nations consultations regarding the Finno-Swedish dispute. It is, in fact, highly significant that the English representative, Mr. Fisher, appointed to read the report on the subject before the open meeting of the League Council, this morning said:

"The League Council will without any doubt approve entirely of the principle that it belongs exclusively to the sovereignty of any State definitely constituted to accord or refuse to a fraction of its population the right to determine its political status by a plebiscite or otherwise."

That the Council evidently did approve of this principle is shown by the fact that the foundation of the report of its legal advisers concerning the Aland Isles is that Finland cannot be considered a definitely constituted State of which the isles are a fraction—as is the case with Ireland and the British Empire—and that therefore the principle of self-determination can and should apply.

In point of fact the League Council did not go quite as far as did its legal advisers whose verdict was against Finland. The League decided to appoint three delegates to give it a further report "on which the League could base a recommendation to establish conditions favorable to the maintenance of peace in the area concerned." In other words, the League ducked a decision on what Mr. Fisher accurately called "a question of extraordinary difficulty" and contented itself with an earnest appeal to both the Swedes and Finns not to get hot about the dispute which has already brought them both to the boiling point.

Which would seem to show that, as the French have always maintained, the League of Nations can never be of much practical service until force to insure that its decisions will be respected is given to it, whether that force be offered by nations in the League or consists of a separate, permanent body at the League's disposal does not much matter, but its absence is the crux of a case like this, where the Finns have as good as said they would fight rather than give up the islands.

MILLERAND WILL RUN FOR PRESIDENCY

JONNART MAY BE PREMIER

Briand, Who Backs Millerand's Candidacy, Likely to Become Foreign Minister.

PARIS, Sept. 20 (Associated Press).—Premier Alexandre Millerand today agreed to be a candidate for the Presidency of the Republic to succeed President Deschanel, who has tendered his resignation.

M. Millerand's acceptance as a candidate for the Presidency has virtually solved the Presidential crisis, as it is conceded by all sides in the Chamber of Deputies and Senate that his election is a foregone conclusion. He will probably receive more than 700 votes, no other candidate officially entering the field.

The Premier's opponents have decided to refrain from voting, and expect to muster about 100 blank ballots.

The question uppermost in the discussion among the Deputies and Senators at present is the formation of the new Cabinet to replace that headed by M. Millerand. At least two Ministers of the Millerand Cabinet are slated to go. Aristide Briand probably will become Minister of Foreign Affairs, with Charles Jonnart as Premier. Ex-President Poincaré's name has been mentioned as Minister of Finance in place of Frédéric François-Marsal, although there is strong opposition to M. Poincaré in the Chamber, while he is popular with the Senate.

M. Millerand's decision came after an hour's conference with M. Briand, who openly said at the conclusion of the meeting that he was working for Millerand, and would ask his followers to work for him.

While the Premier's candidacy is unopposed, there is strong opposition, even among his most fervent supporters, to any revision of the Constitution. The slogan at Versailles will be: "Elect Millerand, but don't tamper with the Constitution."

M. Millerand formally announced his candidacy in a statement reiterating his declared policies. He expressed the belief that he could best serve the country as Premier, but said that if Parliament preferred him as President he would "not evade the call."

BIG FETES IN ROME HONOR ITALIAN UNITY

Addition of Trent and Trieste Adds Zest to Fiftieth Anniversary Celebration.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Sept. 20.—For several weeks the Eternal City has been busy preparing festivities for the fiftieth anniversary of the fall of the temporal power of the Papacy and the occupation of Rome by the troops of Victor Emanuel I.

Games, receptions, the dedication of tablets, monuments and busts, processions and mass meetings follow each other day by day through streets decorated from end to end with flags. The quarter where rejoicing is least evident is round about the Vatican, where the date Sept. 20, 1870, recalls sad memories. Time, however, has done much to heal the wound. It is interesting to note that Catholic members of the Municipal Council of Rome approved the appropriation and celebration and are on the National Committee.

This is the first time in the comparatively short history of united Italy that there has been such a general celebration of an event which only a few years ago caused bitter feeling. The festivities are made still more notable by the fact that Trent and Trieste now from a part of the Kingdom of Italy, an event which fifty years ago seemed unrealizable.

WANT UNION WITH GERMANY

Great Nationalist Demonstration is Held in Vienna.

VIENNA, Sept. 20.—German Nationalist societies some 760,000 strong manifested today in favor of Austria's joining Germany and protesting against the provisions of the peace treaties ceding millions of Germans to Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia.

Besides the procession along the Ringstrasse a meeting was held at the City Hall under the presidency of General Kraus. Resolutions were adopted affirming the right of self-determination, demanding the establishment of a state comprising the entire German people, protesting against the extradition demands of Italy and Jugoslavia and denouncing the "traitorous policy" of the Austrian Government.

The affair was the greatest Nationalist manifestation ever witnessed here.

Roosevelt as Anonymous Author

It has just come to light that the late ex-President, in addition to the vast amount of writing he did under his signature, contributed unsigned editorials to one of the leading monthly magazines.

The story will be told in The New York Times Book Review and Magazine Section next Sunday.

Nobody knew Theodore Roosevelt was the author of the editorials. The fact is disclosed in the autobiography of a famous editor, published this week.

DUBLIN, Sept. 20.—A pitched battle in a Dublin street this morning between the military and armed civilians resulted in the death of a soldier and the wounding of four others. The casualties among the raiders is unknown.

The affray, which was of brief duration, took place outside a bakery in Church Street. About 11 o'clock a motor lorry with an armed guard drew up at the bakery to collect the daily supply of bread for the Collinstown Aerodrome. While it was being loaded about twenty young men who had been lingering near by dashed on the guard with a cry of "Hands up." The soldiers immediately opened fire, which was returned by the raiders, and for a few minutes bullets were flying in all directions. One of the civilians fell wounded under the lorry and was subsequently captured.

BELFAST, Sept. 20.—Rival mobs clashed in the east end of the city last night and fought with stones until the police arrived and dispersed them by firing over their heads.

Last night was the last in which the curfew law was effective.

WATERFORD, Sept. 20.—A battle was waged Sunday morning at the police barracks twelve miles from Waterford, where a large party of armed men attacked the police.

There was a heavy exchange of rifle fire, but the police held off the attacking forces until they had attracted the attention of the military at a station six miles distant by means of Very lights.

A force of soldiers arrived and beat off the besiegers. No casualties have been reported.

MacSwiney Retains Consciousness.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The question whether Lord Mayor MacSwiney is being fed is answered by the Home Office with "if he is we do not know it."

In this connection it is pointed out that it would be virtually impossible for any one to administer nourishment without the attending physicians becoming aware of it, and, the Government officials argue, if the doctors ascertained that the Lord Mayor was getting any food whatever, the entire effects of his cardiac starvation would be nullified.

The Government physicians and Government nurses have done everything they can think of to induce MacSwiney to eat, and if their efforts have met with any success, the officials say, they certainly would report it to the Home Office, which they have not done.

The case has dragged so long, with such similarity in the reports from the bedside daily, that most of the London papers confine their accounts to paragraphs, some on the inside pages. Today, however, The Evening News says it has a report from "a trustworthy source" that the Lord Mayor is far from being cheerful; was very sulky on Sunday, and disinclined to answer questions."

The paper add: "And he slept most of the night, from 10:30 onward. His temperature was 97, pulse 78, and varied from weak to regular. During the night he had drunk some hot water. In the afternoon he was able to sit up in bed and be washed. He seemed to have sufficient strength to assist in the process. He was able to talk a good deal, and read newspapers with interest."

In his report to the Home Office today the physician at Brixton Prison said that the Lord Mayor's condition was virtually unchanged. This was the thirty-ninth day of his fast.

A bulletin issued by the Irish Self-Determination League said the Lord Mayor had a bad night and was very weak this morning. The bulletin stated that Annie MacSwiney, sister of the Lord Mayor, had just left Brixton Prison, and declared that his condition was unchanged except for the weakness incident to his long fast.

Although a little brighter this evening than he was in the morning, there is no material change in MacSwiney's condition, according to the League bulletin issued at 10 o'clock tonight. He is still conscious.

Mrs. MacSwiney said that her husband was able to say a few words to her this afternoon.

QUEENSTOWN, Sept. 20.—No representations have been made at the American Consulate in Queenstown with the claim made at Cork in behalf of Joseph Kenny, one of the hunger strikers in the Cork jail, that he was an American and that documents had been received from the American authorities establishing that fact, it was stated at the Consulate today. No information on the subject had been received there, it was added.

Kenny's wife, it developed today, has made a sworn statement to the effect that the soldiers who arrested her husband after raiding their house had placed in a sewing bag in the house cartridges which they accused Kenny of having in his possession.

The American Vice Consul here, John E. McAndrews, this evening received the papers on which Kenny's claim for American citizenship is said to be based. They prove to be merely a declaration made by Kenny at Moapa (Nevada?) in 1904 of his intention to become naturalized.

No evidence was submitted to the Consul to show that Kenny had completed the naturalization process before returning to Ireland.

POLES DRIVE REDS OUT OF GALICIA

Russians Concentrating for a Big Attack on the Northeastern Front.

WARSAW, Sept. 19 (Associated Press).—Russian Bolshevist forces have been driven out of Eastern Galicia by a general Polish advance along the southern front.

The advance was begun four days ago. The Poles, fighting their way eastward, have reached the line of the lower Zbruch, capturing Trembovla, Tarnapol and Brody.

Further north they took the fortress of Dubno after heavy fighting and are advancing in the direction of the fortress of Rovno, the capture of which is expected shortly.

The Russians are concentrating heavy forces along the Niemen River beyond the Polish northeastern front preparatory to an offensive which is expected to be begun within a few days, according to military attachés who have been at the front for several days past.

Not Optimistic on Peace Parley.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—The Riga peace negotiations set for tomorrow between the Poles and Bolsheviki, if reliance is to be placed on the declarations made by representatives of both parties. To date the prospects of anything more than a brief truce at the best appear very slight, according to opinion here. On the other hand, it is thought that a good deal of such declarations are in the nature of preliminary bluff to impress the adversary, such as always occurs in the case of a peace by negotiations. The real key to the whole problem is held to be the actual strength of the Bolshevikl and the degree to which it can be discovered by the Poles.

Maine Court Rules Women Need Not Tell Age at Polls

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 20.—The Supreme Court today decided that a woman should not be required to tell her age to qualify as a voter.

In a writ of mandamus Justice Wilson ordered the local board of registration to enroll Mrs. Elizabeth Alden Holman "regardless of the fact that she refused to give the exact date of her birth or her exact age." The writ is returnable on Oct. 6, when the registrars will be heard if they wish to oppose the order.

Mrs. Holman was not allowed to enroll on Sept. 4, when she insisted that it was sufficient for her, or any other woman, to describe her age as "over 21 years."

SAYS BRITISH OFFER MUCH TO IRELAND

Ready to Grant Self-Government in South and West, Declares Beaverbrook.

HE PRAISES "MOVIES" HERE

Peer and London Newspaper Owner Sees a Great Future for the Films.

England would gladly dispose of the Irish question by granting self-government to the South and West of Ireland if the Sinn Fein were not blocking the way with an ambition to hold sway over the whole of Ireland, declared Lord Beaverbrook, former head of the British Ministry of Information and owner of The London Daily Express, yesterday. Lord Beaverbrook was the guest of Adolph Zukor, President of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, at a luncheon in his honor at the Ritz-Carlton attended by leaders in the motion picture world.

"I'm told that many of you are displeased with England's management of Ireland," said Lord Beaverbrook. "There isn't a man in England who wouldn't welcome a settlement of this question, not one who would not grant Ireland a measure of self-government, that is, the South and West of Ireland. But Sinn Fein asks for a republican form of government, an undivided Ireland, control of the North as well as of the South.

"I think I truly represent the character of Lloyd George in this matter when I say that I know he would do all in his power—make any sacrifice—to solve this long standing and vexing problem. Ireland herself, with factions and civil strife, stands in the way."

Lord Beaverbrook is a Canadian, and as Sir Max Aitken was official eye-witness with the Canadian troops on the front in France throughout 1915. In December, 1916, King George conferred a peerage on him and he assumed the title Baron Beaverbrook. He has been close to the Lloyd George Government and filled various offices under it. In February, 1917, he was appointed Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and head of the then newly established Ministry of Information. He succeeded Sir Edward Carson in the Information Department.

Motion Pictures in the War.

As Minister of Information he said he called upon the motion picture men of Great Britain to rouse the people to their great peril.

"Without the aid of the films there must have been a great delay in the final victory," Lord Beaverbrook added. "The motion picture in England has never received its proper credit. Indeed, in many circles over there it is still looked upon as a sort of sideshow at a circus; it is my chief determination to overcome this prejudice. American pictures are far in advance of the pictures on the continent and in England. We are not rivals of yours. We're only friendly imitators."

Touching briefly upon Anglo-American relations, Lord Beaverbrook said:

"Although I am entirely opposed to unions, associations and organizations and the like to promote better feeling between America and Great Britain—opposed to any machine-made efforts to bring us closer together—I know that there is nothing now, nor will there be anything in the future, that will sever us in our common objects.

"The feeling in England is one of great admiration and respect for America. We know the plight we were in when America came to help us. We know, too, to what extent our resources were exhausted and how our morale was lifted and how comforting it was when we had your armies with us. I know, therefore, that the feeling in Great Britain is one of affection for the United States.

Denies British Hostility.

"I have been told that there is a feeling of hostility in the United States toward Great Britain. I have also been informed that there is a feeling of hostility in England against America. But I want to tell you that the antipathy of the men of Liverpool toward the men of Manchester is far greater than any antipathy of Englishmen toward Americans."

William A. Brady, President of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, when he introduced Lord Beaverbrook declared that the English newspaper proprietor represented the theory that England and America must be friends.

B. F. Albee, head of the B. F. Keith enterprises, recalled the days when the late B. F. Keith and he exhibited the first motion picture in this country at the old Union Square theatre. Jesse L. Lasky, Vice President of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, predicted that in the future the great historical film dramas would come from Europe, while the United States would continue to maintain its lead in the field of modern life. Mr. Zukor described Lord Beaverbrook as the stanchest friend in England of the American motion picture industry. Other speakers were E. J. Ludvigh and Bayard Dominick.

SUPPLIES FOR RUSSIA BOUGHT IN BRITAIN

Krassin Said to Have Obtained Huge Amounts of Goods—After 10,000,000 Cigarettes.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—While negotiations for reopening trade with Russia are pending, Leonid Krassin, Russian Soviet Minister of Trade and Commerce, who came to England first as trade negotiator and later as member of the join Soviet diplomatic and trade commissions, is buying huge amounts of commodities for the Russians.

When it became known that Krassin had purchased 36,000 yards of khaki flannel manufactured for American uniforms, the London press asked why this was allowed, in view of the fact that the trade negotiations had not been completed and that diplomatic relations with Russia, if not broken off, at least were suspended.

Notwithstanding this adverse comment, Krassin is completing arrangements for the delivery of much foodstuffs to him in England. The Russian buying organization is so well arranged that Russians associated with Krassin are even negotiating for the purchase of between 9,000,000 and 10,000,000 cigarettes, manufactured and owned by Britishers and stored at Reval, Esthonia, where they were in transit to Russia when the revolution removed Russia as one of the Allies.

LEAGUE TO ACT FOR FOUR NATIONS

COUNCIL AND PUBLIC CHEER

Finland Decides to Accept Investigation of Dispute with Sweden Over Aland Islands.

BELGIUM KEEPS TERRITORY

Definite Transfer of the Eupen and Malmedy Districts from Germany Is Recognized.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—The ninth session of the Council of the League of Nations adjourned today after having smoothed out difficulties between four nations in controversies which at one time threatened to result in war.

Through its action in the Polish-Lithuanian crisis the Council succeeded in getting the two countries to agree to an immediate suspension of hostilities pending a settlement of their dispute, which both sides agreed to accept.

The Aland Islands question likewise is considered in a fair way for settlement. A Finnish reservation which at first appeared seriously to cloud the issue was explained as not offering an insurmountable difficulty and as having been made largely for technical reasons.

League officials explained that although neither Finland nor Sweden was legally bound to accept the League's decision, they were morally bound to do so. It was further pointed out that a settlement "if backed by public opinion would virtually compel acceptance."

Count Quinones de Leon, Spanish Ambassador to France, and Baron Keishiro Matsui, the Japanese Vice Foreign Minister, have been appointed to represent the League of Nations in the settlement of the Polish-Lithuanian questions, and it is expected that at least a tentative decision will be ready for the approval of the League Council at its October session.

Called Halt to Fighting at Once.

The Polish-Lithuanian accord came after the Council had passed a resolution calling on the countries to cease hostilities immediately. The resolution asked Lithuania to adopt the provisional line of the frontier fixed by the Supreme Council in December last and withdraw her troops from the territory to the west of the line, while Poland was asked, during its war with Soviet Russia, to respect the neutrality of the territory occupied by Lithuania east of the line of demarkation fixed by the Supreme Council.

Acceptance of the League's arbitration came in a most dramatic manner at the public meeting of the Council. The delegates and spectators seemed pessimistic as to the probability of an agreement being reached, when Ignace Jan Paderewski, Polish delegate to the League of Nations, arose and made a stirring speech in which he said Poland desired to be in complete peace with Lithuania and had full confidence that Lithuania also desired peace.

The Lithuanian delegates, headed by Foreign Minister Woldemar, walked over to the Polish delegates and warmly shook hands with them amid cheering by the spectators and delegates, marking the first instance in which the League's mediation has been accepted by countries virtually in a state of war. M. Woldemar said he had full confidence in the spirit of fairness of the Council of the League and would abide by its decision.

Finland also ironed out her difficulties with the Council by accepting, with certain reservations, the report of the Council on the Aland Islands question, which calls for an investigation by three commissioners. These reservations as given out by M. Enckell, Finnish Minister in Paris, were that Finland retains the right to continue to maintain the viewpoint that Finnish interests are so interwoven with sovereignty over the Aland Islands that Finland alone has the right to decide whether there shall be a plebiscite. Sweden, however, is urging the League to hold a plebiscite.

Léon Bourgeois, the French representative in the Council, speaking at the opening of the session, asserted that submission of the Lithuanian-Polish and Aland Islands disputes to the Council was the best augury which had developed for the future of the League of Nations.

Approves Geneva Headquarters.

The Council today approved the purchase of the Hotel National in Geneva as the future home of the League.

Definite transfer of the districts of Eupen and Malmedy to the sovereignty of Belgium was recognized, following an investigation of the protests filed by Germans against the plebiscites.

The Council ratified the appointment of Dr. A. Hector of Saarlouis as member of the Sarre Basin Governing Commission and accepted the resignation of Herr Alfred von Bock from the same position. Von Bock resigned following the strikes and other difficulties in the Saar Basin last July.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks React Under Late Realizing—Time Money Easier —In Fair Supply.

After a period of pronounced activity, with a rising scale of quotations, the stock market turned reactionary yesterday and the final price list showed much irregularity. Selling pressure was not accompanied by developments of a sort to promote liquidation, and for this reason the decline appeared to be the result of realizing of the substantial profits which had accrued in the railroad, petroleum, rubber, steel and miscellaneous issues during the preceding week. Offerings were accelerated in the last hour and in this wave of selling stocks which had held up firmly before weakened. In the main, the more extensive declines were in issues whose strength during the morning had added sizable advances to those of last week, so that the declines as compared with Saturday's prices were chiefly fractional.

The professional trading element has veered lately to the thought that pool operations were springing up abreast of the easing tendency of stock market money. Brokers handling business of the speculative investment order, report that public participation on the buying side has gradually been expanding in the last fortnight, and brokerage house literature has changed its tone from one of caution to mild cheer over the industrial outlook, despite indications coming from one source or another of a slightly slackened state of employment during August. But it is in respect to railroad shares that the speculative fraternity has of late been exercising its imagination and constantly recurring rumors of railway mergers indicate that the possibilities held forth by the Transportation act are receiving close attention. It must be conceded by even the most pessimistic students of railroad operating results in the last ten years or longer that, through the lately increased freight and passenger rates, the carriers have the best opportunity offered in a decade to prove their earning power under efficient management. At the same time, it would be too much to expect a quick change for the better as far as profits are concerned, especially profits which may be viewed in terms of dividends. The roads need to spend millions upon millions for improvements and additions and the aim of the managements is likely to be the liquidation of outlay for equipment, track, terminals, &c., through earnings as far as possible instead of through loans. Such profit taking in railroad stocks as occurred yesterday disclosed the feeling among traders that the market might not be ready for a steady improvement until the future of both railroad and industrial undertakings could be determined more clearly. Railroad bonds continued in the firm state of last week and Liberty bonds were steady.

There appears to be only a light demand for collateral time loans for over the year end and offerings of shorter maturities increased sufficiently yesterday to bring an appreciable easing of rates. Loans secured by "mixed" collateral were quoted at 8 per cent. for all dates and industrial loans were negotiated at 8 to 8¼ per cent., these rates being a quarter to a half per cent. lower than last Friday. Call money let at 7 per cent. Whether the softening of time loan quotations is to go much further in the next few weeks is something which cannot be determined now. The process will be shaped to a degree by the state of industry and by the flow of the gathered crops into the markets. Last week's statement of the Federal Reserve system showed a natural result of the liquidation of the $640,000,000 Treasury certificates, for member banks were able to use part of the proceeds to retire $168,000,000 of rediscounts. A fall of more than $100,000,000 in net deposits was reflected in an upturn of a full one per cent. in the reserve ratio, but the permanence of improvement of this advantage will be determined by the demands which member banks make upon Reserve Banks in connection with the needs of clients and Treasury requirements.

Sterling exchange declined rather sharply in the afternoon, recording a recession of 2¾ cents to 3.50¾ for sight drafts. The Paris rate declined with sterling, and other Continental quotations were barely steady.

AUSTRALIA TO USE 'PAY AS YOU GO' PLAN

Will End Loans for Fiscal Year and Raise Greater Sums from Revenue.

WAR TAXES WERE LIGHT

Federal Treasurer Reports 1920-21 Estimated Surplus as $1,195,000.

Australia is determined to embark upon a wholesome "pay as you go" policy as concerns her national finance, according to a cablegram received from Melbourne yesterday by the Commissioner for Australia in the United States, Mark Sheldon, at his offices at 61 Broadway, setting forth the Commonwealth budget of 1920-1921. Its outstanding features are the proposal to transfer to revenue account charges which previously were borne by the loan fund, and no further loans to be floated this financial year. The last loan, which was for £25,000,000 sterling, closed on Sept. 6. This was a war loan.

Sir Joseph Cook, Federal Treasurer, who presented the budget sheet to the Parliament, pointed out that of $1,905,745,000 war expenditures up to June 30, 1920, $353,580,000, or 18.6 per cent., was paid for revenue and the remainder from war loans. Continuing, he said:

"The public of Australia during the war, and when money was plentiful, were taxed to a very small extent as compared with Great Britain. The taxation in Australia, both Commonwealth and States, is £10 13s 9d per head as compared with £22 3s 11d in Great Britain.

"Borrowing in Australia is presenting greater difficulties with each successive loan. In either case heavy charges for interest and sinking fund must be met, and these are already burdensome. Faced with these facts, the Government has resolved to reduce further borrowing to the absolute minimum and to provide greater sums from revenue than hitherto.

"The present deadweight war loans will be reduced by definite sinking funds, for only by this means is it hoped to deflate credits, to lower prices and to return to conditions of sound finance."

Sir Joseph's statement showed that the total revenue for the year was $263,915,000, while expenditure was $252,795,000, leaving a surplus of $11,120,000. To this is to be added the surplus of the previous year, namely $17,615,000, making a total surplus of $28,735,000. Estimated revenue for 1920-21 is $316,820,000 and estimated expenditures $344,360,000. This would leave a deficit of $27,520,000, but if this deficit is deducted from the total surplus of $28,735,000 it leaves an estimated surplus of $1,195,000 for the year 1920-21.

Rio Grande Stockholders Ask Delay.

The Common and Preferred Stockholders Protective Committee of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, headed by J. M. Levy, has asked the United States District Court in Denver, Col., for an extension of the date for a hearing regarding the sale at auction of the company's property. The hearing was scheduled for Sept. 27, and the committee asked yesterday for a stay of two weeks to allow for the appointment of counsel to represent its interest in Denver.

Middle States Oil Expansion.

Stockholders of the Middle States Oil Corporation at a special meeting yesterday authorized an increase in the capital stock from $8,000,000 to $16,000,000. The stock will be used at the discretion of the Directors to continue the policy of capitalizing settled production by issuance of stock allotments. The corporation's wells are now averaging about 7,000 barrels daily.

LANE FINDS NATION ON A SOUND FOOTING

Thinks the Main Issues Are the High Cost of Living and Foreign Trade.

The greatest issue in the public mind today is the high cost of living, and it is being overlooked by both major political parties. Republican sentiment was stronger three months ago than it appears to be now, though the trend still is in that direction. The country is on a sound economic basis, is better off than any other country in the world and there is generally a spirit of confidence in the future, regardless of the outcome of the election.

The foregoing statements are the principal points in an announcement yesterday by Franklin K. Lane, former Secretary of the Interior, which he describes as "a summary of the first comprehensive, carefully made and approximately accurate picture of industrial, agricultural, financial and political conditions throughout the United States," based upon virtually simultaneous telegraphic reports from 900 field representatives of the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Baltimore, who questioned men and institutions of all sorts.

"With the Presidential election but six weeks away and the Winter rapidly approaching, many thoughtful people stand hesitant and undecided, having difficulty because of the general lack of knowledge of business conditions outside their own locality or interests," Mr. Lane prefaces his analysis. "The general tendency has been to see what the next man thinks, with the uncomfortable feeling that his guess is no better than another's. I believe for this reason the picture presented in the tabulated analysis made by the Fidelity and Deposit Company is of interest to every business man and other voter. While it is not, of course, perfect in detail and exact in prophecy, it is as clear and valuable a conspectus of present conditions as can be gathered."

Turning first to industrial conditions, Mr. Lane calls attention to this country's most favorable position among the nations, then adds:

"There is no evidence of idleness. Our people have the opportunity to work and are at work.

"There is no shortage of raw material sufficient to curtail production reported from any of the nine geographical districts into which the country was divided for the purpose of survey. Only in the district including Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Wisconsin is there evidence of a lack of orders. New England industries report a number of cancellations, but there, as elsewhere, manufacturers are well filled with calls for their products.

"Transportation conditions are improving everywhere and a substantial reduction in the freight car shortage is reported in every district except in the Rocky Mountain States, in the Southwest and in the district including Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi, although an improvement is noted in the latter district.

"A shortage of coal and the failure of labor to increase individual productivity appear to be the only unfavorable aspects in the immediate industrial situation. The Rocky Mountain and Pacific States report a sufficient supply of fuel. All other sections of the country are feeling the shortage, but it is apparently least felt by the South Atlantic States.

"Although labor is costing still more than it did last year, it apparently is producing no more. Wages have advanced from 10 to 50 per cent. in the last twelve months, and yet nowhere is there reported increase in productivity per man. I am not expecting that the cost of labor will fall off even in the worst of times to its pre-war stages, for I believe that the real differential between directing labor and manual labor will never again be as great as it has been.

"So far as the distribution of labor is concerned, the situation nationally appears to be well equalized. A shortage of labor is found only in the Middle and South Atlantic States and this is largely of unskilled workers. In the rest of the country the demand and supply appear balanced. Only in some sections of the Middle Atlantic States is any unemployment reported, and this is in certain of the skilled trades, chiefly the building and shipbuilding trades.

"An important disclosure of the survery is the seriousness of the housing situation. In many of the larger industrial centres, where the shortage has been most acute, the investigation of the Fidelity and Deposit Company has disclosed building operations to be decreasing instead of increasing.

"The call for buildings comes loudest from the most essential places of manufacture, rather than from the retail centres, and is for low-priced dwellings. Building construction is increasing in New England, but the bulk of the construction is of factories, warehouses and stores. New York, Pennsylvania and most of the other great industrial States of the East and Middle West show a falling off in building operations. There is improvement in the housing situation in Southern and Pacific Coast industrial centres, with special emphasis on the erection of workmen's homes.

"In no section of the country did the investigators find sentiment in favor of government ownership of the railroads; and everywhere better transportation conditions are reported.

"Agriculture is generally recognized as the backbone of the country, and the farming situation is excellent; from no section has an unfavorable report been received. Our farmers appear everywhere to be in too happy a mood to permit at this time the cynicism, 'the farmer is always grumbling.' They are well supplied with funds from the sale of this year's crops, but they are wise in that they know that more favorable marketing conditions can be created.

"The recent drop in grain prices is reported to have had no effect except in the Rocky Mountain States. Farmers of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and other Central States are withholding grain.

"In the financial field money is tight. That may mean several things: First, that the people want money badly to put into producing activities; second, that the banks attempt to get whatever the traffic will bear, shearing close to the skin; third, that there is an inadequate supply of money; or fourth, that those who have money lack confidence.

"There are other reasons, no doubt, and among them that as the dollar now buys less than heretofore, people with money wish to charge more for the service that money gives. No one can accurately say which of these causes is the most important factor, but probably all contribute to the present situation.

"The telegraphic reports from every section of the country state that the banks are well loaned up, although money is available in the East and Central districts at from six to eight per cent. interest. The Southwest, Rocky Mountain and Pacific States report the highest interest rates, averaging from 8 to 10 per cent., and in the Mountain district as high as 12 per cent.

"There is great encouragement, however, to be drawn from the fact that in only one of the nine geographical divisions, the Rocky Mountain, has there been a decrease in bank deposits during the last six months. While the general increase includes corporation deposits, individual savings accounts show a more marked improvement everywhere. This seems to show clearly that the orgy of spending and extravagance is over.

"Discounting of bills by industrial concerns is universally reported. Except in the Middle Atlantic, Southwestern and Pacific Coast States, manufacturers appear to be carrying large amounts of customers' paper.

"The country does not like the present taxation system. The excess profits tax is in bad favor everywhere. Opinion is divided, however, as to a substitute. In the East and Central West sentiment runs strongly for a sales tax, but elsewhere opinion as to a substitute is divided.

"We are not yet masters of the art of distribution of products. The fact that the farmers uniformly report a desire for some co-operative method by which their products can be brought to consumers means that this problem is of the greatest importance. But it is not for the farmers' benefit primarily that such a movement must quickly culminate in action. The consumer feels that somewhere between the farmer and himself too much is taken for a service of comparative insignificance in contrast with that which the producer himself renders.

"The farmers apparently are not alone in desiring co-operative action. The survey shows opposition to co-operative movements only in the New England and Pacific Coast districts. Sentiment is divided in Ohio, Illinois and other North Central Western States, but favorable in the Middle Atlantic, the South Central and the Southern States.

"Politically, the replies indicate that it is too early to tell what the outcome of the November election will be. Three months ago there was a stronger Republican sentiment than there appears to be now. The trend has been, and is, Republican. What it will be in November these gentlemen do not prophesy.

"The large outstanding fact developed by the Fidelity and Deposit Company seems to be that the greatest issue in the public mind is being overlooked by the campaigners—the high cost of living. I think this conclusion might well be justified, but the blame should not be cast upon the producer, and certainly the farmer has not received his share of the wealth which he creates.

"The cost of living and foreign relations seem to be the main issues. Taxation and industrial relations also occupy a place in the general political thought. Least interest appears to be shown in the railroad policy of the present Administration, radical movements, and prohibition.

"It is clear that the country is on a sound economic basis, and there is generally a spirit of confidence in the future, regardless of the outcome of the election.

"The business outlook appears to be good in every section. Wholesalers and retailers view the Fall and Winter optimistically. The retailer is finding that the consumer is looking forward without fear to the Winter, and his purchases from the wholesaler are founded upon this optimism. From the simple toiler up through the tradesman to the industry and the financier there runs the connected feeling of confidence."

Closed Mortgage Bonds

The increase in rates recently granted will permit the financing of a number of railroad projects which it has been impossible to undertake as a result of poor credit.

As future railroad financing must be done with refunding issues, the old line closed mortgage bonds are in a position of greater strength than ever.

With the increasing equity in back of this class of security, it is evident that the demand from the conservative investor will absorb the available supply and the "Old Line" bonds will gradually disappear from the market.

On request we shall be glad to supply a list of high grade investments.

COTTON TAKES RISE ON STORM REPORT

Prediction Dispels Early Weakness Due to Unexpected Break in Liverpool.

BRISK COVERING AIDS, TOO

Some Prices Gain 100 Points or More, but Average Advances Are 25 to 45 on the Day.

A Weather Bureau prediction of the first big tropical storm of the season, which has been located in the Gulf and was reported to be moving northward, turned yesterday's cotton market from weak to very strong. The market had opened heavy and in the first half hour or so selling around the ring was heavy and there were contributions to the movement from some of the big Wall Street houses. This weakness was occasioned by the unexpected break in Liverpool, where prices were much lower than due and selling was reported as heavy.

No very satisfactory explanation for the Liverpool break was received, either in the regular news dispatches or in the private cables, and the local trade was left to speculate as to what had happened. This uncertainty, in all probability, made the foreign situation look considerably worse than it really was. One private report said that Liverpool was selling because of the prevalence of good weather over the belt for the last several days, and this probably was correct. However, it was of little avail, for the trade here was alarmed and some sold freely until the storm warning was posted.

When this happened there was an immediate turn. Prices started up immediately and as they rose the buying gained in volume, being increased by a good deal of short covering. Prices which had been down 35 to 50 points did not stop their rise until they were up 100 points, or even more. In the last half hour there was some quieting down and prices lost about 20 to 30 points of their extreme gains, but still were up 25 to 45 points on the day.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

Many of the uncertainties which affected railroad bond prices until recently have disappeared. As a result, the trend of prices has since been upward.

Seasoned issues of the highest grade can still be purchased at an unusually low level with a correspondingly high yield.

HUMAN judgment is very much like a policeman—in time to see what's happened but too late to prevent it.

Some people will buy Guaranteed 6% Prudence-Bonds on the strength of this advertisement.

But far more will pass it by and ultimately condemn their lack of judgment.

It is better to store up revenue than regrets.

We have prepared a booklet describing Prudence-Bonds in detail, which we will send without any obligation to you.

Security for Credit Managers

The credit department of a modern mercantile concern shoulders financial responsibilities equivalent to those of a bank—but without the security that protects the latter.

The American's Policy of Credit Insurance furnishes just such security. It not only insures the credit man's house against abnormal, unforeseen losses, but it insures the credit man himself against risks and unpreventable mishaps, and constantly strengthens his standing as a credit executive.

Now of all times is the time to safeguard, with the American's Credit Insurance, against the uncertainties of trade. Manufacturers and wholesalers, write or phone today for complete details of our protective service.

The Duty of Credit

Every seed that is planted, every hour of labor that is expended on production of raw materials represents effort to increase the resources of the world. Between production and final application to mankind's needs of the fruits of this effort there may be an interval of months.

The highest duty of credit is to finance this element of time in the processes of production and distribution.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday .....8 per cent. for the best names
Saturday .....8 per cent. for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Parcel Post Packages.

Criticism has been launched at the manner of delivering parcel post packages, and the recommendation has been made that receipt be given for deliveries. As it is at present, the packages are often thrown into the doorway of a wholesale concern, whether the house wishes to receive the goods or not. Owing to the large quantity of returned merchandise being received, this sort of delivery is causing endless confusion and loss. If receipts were required, the packages would reach responsible hands and be either accepted or refused.

Reductions in Woolens.

As a post-opening development in the woolen market, prices are being revised downward all the way from 15 to 50 cents a yard. These reductions are said to apply chiefly to cassimeres, although concessions are to be obtained even on some worsteds. To sellers the present hesitancy of buyers is proving a "facer," and the slightest delay is interpreted as being due to high prices. The widespread reductions being made have had a demoralizing effect on buyers, who are now determined to wait and see just how low values will drop. Just at present there seems no bottom, and the prices quoted by some mills are known to be lower than will permit profit.

What the Leading Shapes Are.

In an endeavor to find out just how public taste ran in the way of shapes in the early Fall hats for women, an observer was turned loose on Fifth Avenue very recently by the Retail Millinery Association of America to make notes. About 100 well-dressed women were carefully noted as to headgear, and it was found that more than 60 per cent. of them wore hats of the "Chin Chin" variety or with brims of the "off-the-face" type. By actual count, there were 24 devotees of the former style and 39 of the latter. Fifteen turbans were noted. Mushroom effects came a rather poor fourth with 6, while "tams" and sailor shapes trailed with scores of by 5 and 3, respectively.

Labor in the Needle Trades.

Labor in the needle trades, according to those in close touch with conditions, is showing an increased disposition to modify its demands and temper its conduct with the changed situation in business. Sales are harder to get and more workers are idle. Interest is fastened on the outcome of the fur strike. The unions claim to have made settlement with three-quarters of the manufacturers on the basis of a forty-hour week, but agreements have yet to be reached, it is said, with the largest houses. Manufacturers in other lines in the women's wear trade are understood to be interested in the results of the strike, as it is thought that a successful attempt to introduce the forty-hour week in one branch will be followed by efforts to put the same schedule into the other trades.

Prices Hit Gray Goods Trading.

The high prices at which many sellers of gray goods now hold their merchandise militated strongly against buying activity in this market yesterday. Asking prices in the case of important first hands ranged from half to three-quarters of a cent. a yard above Saturday's quotations. Buyers regarded the increases as arbitrary and refused to pay them. Some printcloth business was done, however, September deliveries of 39-inch 72-76s and of 39-inch 68-72s having sold, respectively, at 18 and 16 cents. Spot sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were put through at 15 cents. Sheetings sales were limited, although some five-yard goods were disposed of at 12½ cents for this month's shipment. Some further business in voiles also was done, chiefly at low prices.

More Seller Than Buyer.

Now that the downward swing of prices has made careful purchasing a watchword and has restored to the merchandise man the power of which he was largely shorn during the boom period, it is said here that more than ever is the word "buyer" a misnomer for a department head. It is admitted that he still selects the merchandise, but it is also contended that other important matters in relation to buying goods have largely been assumed by the merchandise man. With this change has come more or less of a revision in the duties of the department heads, with more stress laid on selling than on buying. The day is said to have passed when a buyer could select his goods with care and then just trust to luck that they would be sold. With the growing realization that it is the goods that are sold quickly which show the profit, the department head who is not prolific in ideas regarding how to get his goods into the hands of consumers is losing caste.

UPPER BROADWAY THEATRE PLANNED

NEGOTIATIONS ARE PENDING

Building Cost Estimated at $450,000 —Michael Friedsam Is Owner of the Land.

Negotiations are pending for the sale of the northerly half of the old Montefiore Home and Hospital block bounded by Broadway, Hamilton Place, 138th and 139th Streets. The plot is owned by Michael Friedsam, President of B. Altman & Co.

The prospective owner, a newly organized syndicate in which Queens Borough theatrical interests are said to be represented, plans a $450,000 store and theatre improvement, if the present deal is closed.

In anticipation of the project, plans were filed yesterday with the Manhattan Building Department, calling for the construction of a three-story theatre, with store, to occupy the place front on the south side of 139th Street between Broadway and Hamilton Place. The theatre will have a seating capacity of 2,331, with 1,301 orchestra seats; 800 balcony seats, and with 50 large boxes. It will have a frontage of 99.11 feet on Broadway and 223.9 feet on 139th Street and extending to Hamilton Place, where it will have a front of 108.6 feet. Carlson & Wisemen are the architects. The home, several years ago, moved to its new location in the upper Bronx.

Mr. Friedsam said yesterday that he was interested in the deal only as owner of the land and was not identified with the building or theatrical project.

Other Plan Filings.

Plans were also filed yesterday for the erection of a five-story apartment on Davidson Avenue, near 190th Street, for Peter Cesse, owner, by Springsteen & Goldhammer, architects, who estimated the cost at $125,000.

In Manhattan, the Greenwich Bank plans a two-story bank building on the site at 402 Hudson Street. George F. Pelham, who prepared the plans, estimates the cost of the building at $75,000.

WHEAT MARKET DECLINES.

Break Due to Small Receipts and Small Offerings.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Wheat prices declined today in sympathy with depression of the corn market. On the break, however, fair support developed, and a rally followed. Receipts were not large, and country offerings light. Opening quotations, which ranged from 1c to 2¼c lower, with December $2.38 to $2.39 and March $2.33, were followed by an additional setback, but then by an upturn to nearly Saturday's finish.

Corn Has Severe Break.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 20.—For the first time since the Summer of 1917 corn fell below $1 here today. Contracts for December delivery dropped to 99¾c soon after the market opened. This was 1¾c under Saturday's close.

JACKSON HEIGHTS
and the Mortgage Market

IN 1919, when it was extremely difficult to obtain building, or permanent loans on real estate, two of the most prominent lending institutions in New York—the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and the Title Guarantee & Trust Co.—accepted the applications of the Queensboro Corporation for loans aggregating approximately $1,000,000 for the erection of two blocks of "Garden" apartment houses, at Jackson Heights, Borough of Queens, City of New York.

The Prudential Insurance Co. of America (Newark, N. J.) recently made its first loan in Long Island ($540,000) to the same corporation on another block of "Garden" houses.

When the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. made its first big loan, Mr. Walter Stabler, Comptroller, issued a statement in which he said:

"We accepted the Queensboro's application for a $500,000 loan because of the excellent work done by that Corporation in improving and upbuilding the Jackson Heights apartment house section, in Queens; also because of the property, its close proximity to 42nd Street, and the excellence of the existing rapid transit facilities; also because of the Queensboro's control of 100 city blocks at Jackson Heights, its selection of an excellent class of tenants, and the moderate rentals charged for apartments."

Mr. Frank Bailey, Vice-President of the Title Guarantee & Trust Co., which has loaned about $1,200,000 at Jackson Heights, said:

"We have made loans at Jackson Heights because the type of houses being erected there appeal to us as being good investments, and good lending propositions. They are splendid houses in every way, and, I am quite certain, they will meet the requirements of people who want to live in a restricted community at rentals that are moderate."

P.P.C. Printing Facts

In three-color process work, the colored copy is photographed three times through colored glasses. The green glass, or filter, cuts out all color in the copy excepting the red. The blue negative is made by photographing through a red filter, and the yellow negative, through a blue filter. The plates made from these negatives are printed generally in the following order: First the yellow, then the red on the yellow, then the blue on the yellow and red. In theory, every conceivable variety and tone of color can be reproduced by this method. In practise, it is generally desirable to add a black plate. When an exact reproduction of emerald green and a certain shade of lavender is required, extra plates are usually necessary.

Additional Tax Burdens?

HAVE you been assessed additional taxes for the years 1917, 1918 or 1919?

The Revenue Department's audits now being made often result in the imposition of taxes in addition to those already reported or paid for these years.

The patriotic duty of the taxpayer calls for full payment to the Government of a legally just tax, but no more. The Tax Department of this organization is at the service of the taxpayer in preventing the payment of an additional tax not warranted by the facts.

The marshalling and presenting of tax data to the Government for the abatement of unjust taxes is one of the many features of the service of our Tax Department.

Fuller information on request.

Justice Benedict Says It Would Do Much to End the "Divorce Evil."

HE ASSAILS AMENDED LAW

Criticises Legislation for Shortening Probationary Period for the Guilty to Three Years.

In granting an application for an amendment of a divorce decree so that the person adjudged guilty in the proceedings might remarry, Justice Russell Benedict, in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday criticised the State Legislature which changed the divorce law so as to allow guilty parties to apply for permission to marry again after a period of three years instead of five years, as the law previously required. In his memorandum the Justice said:

"Whether the Legislature shortened the period of probation out of sympathy for some particular defendant or whether it acted from motives of extreme liberality toward erring spouses in general, is not pertinent to the present inquiry. The statute is plain. The responsibility for it must rest upon the Legislature which enacted it, not upon the court which is called upon to interpret it.

"It has become my firm conviction, after many years' experience upon the bench, that the only really effective way to cure the so-called 'divorce evil' would be to make it practically impossible for either party to the marriage to marry any one else during the lifetime of the other party. I am aware that such a rule would, in a small number of cases, work an apparent hardship. After listening to the evidence in many hundred actions of this sort, I believe that a very large proportion of these actions would never have been brought if the plaintiff were prohibited from contracting a new alliance, arrangements for which are not infrequently made before the suit is begun.

"The Justices of the Supreme Court of this State are, in the main, constantly striving to lessen the evil, which, while all too prevalent in this State, is much more so in other States, where the laxity of divorce laws is greater than with us. Judicial records demonstrate that where dissolution of the marriage tie is easy of accomplishment it is the more frequently resorted to. Efforts are being continually made in this and other States to loosen the marriage relation. Such socialistic attacks, however veiled they may be, should be combated at every point if the sanctity of marriage is to be preserved.

"The efforts of the court to stop fraud and detect collusion require constant care and watchfulness and even with the greatest vigilance these efforts are not uniformly successful. They, however, certainly are not aided by such legislation as the enactment of 1919 referred to. Instead of shortening the probationary period during which the person guilty of the crime of adultery—for it is still a crime under our laws—must live a clean life or appear to do so, the Legislature might well return to the five-year period and also authorize the court to require the consent of the injured spouse before granting the application.

"As the defendant in the present instance has waited five years and has produced proof of conduct such as the statute requires, I feel constrained to grant his application that he be permitted to contract a new marriage, which I sincerely hope will, by his upright conduct in the future, result differently from his former alliance."

Elmer L. Bennett of 1,047 Bergen Street made the application which called forth the opinion of Justice Benedict. His wife, Mrs. Adeline Bennett, divorced him in September, 1915. They had been married eight years. Bennett submitted an affidavit from Dr. S. Edward Young, pastor of the Bedford Presbyterian Church, stating that his character for the last five years has been excellent.

SEES COAL STRIKE BROKEN.

Anthracite "Vacationists" Have Largely Returned, Says Warriner.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—Reports received here today by S. D. Warriner, President of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, and head of the anthracite coal operators' wage scale committee, showed, it was announced, a general return to work of hard coal diggers, who quit the mines because of dissatisfaction with the recent award of the Anthracite Coal Commission.

Only in two sections, Mr. Warriner said, are large numbers of men still idle. One is in the Pittston district, where about 8,000 men are on strike against the contract miner system, and the other in the Shamokin field, where about 10,000 men failed to return. There are approximately 150,000 men employed in the anthracite industry.

HAZLETON, Pa., Sept. 20.—The "vacation" strike of the anthracite mine workers was virtually ended today in the Hazleton district. Virtually all the collieries resumed operations. Many of them, however, were crippled by the short working forces.

The situation in the Shamokin district continued unsettled. Thousands of miners remained on "vacation," declaring they will not report for work until the fire bosses and monthly men who quit in sympathy with the miners are reinstated.

READING, Pa., Sept. 20.—Reports from the coal companies in the Schuylkill hard coal region received here today, indicated slightly more than 75 per cent. of the men have resumed work. Eight of the operations are idle, while with few exceptions all are short handed. It is expected, however, that at least 700 cars of anthracite will be produced during the day. In normal times the daily average produced is 1,400 cars.

2 NEWARK WOMEN END LIVES

One Killed Herself with Razor, the Other Uses Gas.

Two women committed suicide in Newark last night, according to the police.

Mrs. Teresa Aulermiller, 385 years old, of 537 South Seventeenth Street, was found on the floor in the parlor of her home with her throat and wrist slashed with a razor. Her eight-year-old daughter found the door to the apartment locked when she returned from school. She presumed her mother had gone shopping and waited for her father to return from business. He forced the door and found his wife dead on the floor with his razor lying beside her body. She had been suffering from nervous trouble, the husband said.

Mrs. Ida Dilworth, 54, wife of William Dilworth of Gordon & Dilworth, manufacturers of preserves in New York, was found dead in the kitchen of her home with the gas turned on at the range. The janitor of the house traced the odor of gas to the Dilworth apartment. He notified the police, who broke into the apartment and found the woman dead. Her husband is in the Presbyterian Hospital and despondency over his long illness is believed to have caused her to end her life.

Council of Women Indorses League.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The International Council of Women, in session at Christiania, Norway, has indorsed the principle of the League of Nations, said a message received today by President Wilson from Ida Clyde Clarke, President and representative of the National Council of Women of the United States. "Representatives of twenty-eight countries meeting here International Council of Women unanimously indorse principle of League of Nations," the message said.

WE carry Educator Shoes—the shoes you have seen advertised in the magazines for years—because we know they will prevent foot-ills—the corns, bunions, callouses, ingrowing nails, weak arches, etc., that come from wrong shoes.

For Educators are shaped scientifically to give room for all five toes to serve you unhampered. They "let the feet grow as they should," never bending or crumpling the toes.

Come in and try on Educators. If you have thought a shoe can't combine good looks with good sense, a surprise awaits you. You'll decide to get Educators for all the family.

BOOKS OF PAST TIMES.

The old book store has many friends, but it is fast disappearing. Its purpose is served by the Book Exchange in The Book Review and Magazine section of Sunday's New York Times, wherein may be discovered valuable volumes of centuries past and old prints and manuscripts.—Advt.

Construction Service which starts with the idea and delivers the finished structure

IN construction the Goethals plan is unique. It covers the entire life of the project from the original conception to delivery of the finished structure, ready to operate. This comprehends engineering, architecture, management of construction and equipment layout.

We begin with the idea, often assisting in the choice of location. We create the designs, plans and specifications. We act as technical agents for the owner, either (a) employing special contractors for each class of work, or (b) organizing a construction force, paid by the owner, and directed by us or (c) by combination of both.

In the case of factories, mills, shops, power plants, harbor developments and terminals, we study the processes, design and build the structures to fit them, lay out and select equipment, and supervise installation.

Goethals, Wells & Co., Inc., works upon a fee, fixed in advance by contract. We shall be glad to be consulted about projects of any size and character from a small factory to large public works.

The parent corporation, George W. Goethals & Co., Inc., is available to undertake the management of a new enterprise, or to reinforce the existing management until it is established and operating effectively. It also makes examinations and reports upon all kinds of industrial and commercial enterprises.
